

"Preparing and covering the content and learning the content" are not synonymous (p. 7)

"I'm a successful middle school educator... explore curriculum through a range of modes including differentiated instruction, study, small group work, and special 'talents' experiences" (p. 31)

I connect with this statement particularly as we focus on global competencies & making/ create meaningful learning opportunities.

These are stuff I look for in a middle school. This is the time to explore ourselves and find out what we like/dislike.
