Hello, my name is Alyssa Olvera. I was born and raised here in the Rio Grande Valley. I graduated from Lyford High School in 2008. I went on to attend college at Texas State University – San Marcos. In 2011, I earned my Bachelor of Science degree in Anthropology with a Minor in Geography. After college I went on to continue my education at the University of Texas-Pan American. In 2014, I earned my Master of Arts degree in Interdisciplinary Studies with a concentration in Anthropology and subfields in English and History.

I began my teaching career in 2015, so this will be my 9th year teaching, but first year at STPA. I enjoy spending time with my husband and our 2 kids, traveling, and visiting different museums.
