X. Unfinished Business

Vice-President Angela Raimo and President Maria Venuto reported on the information they received from workshops and presentations while they attended the annual NYSSBA (New York State School Board Association) Convention in Buffalo.

Vice-President Raimo thought the convention was great. Her first presentation was seeing how our district piloted the Seal of Civic Readiness and the questions from other districts who showed interest in starting it. Dr. Raimo went to other programs including addressing learning loss. She stated it was reassuring but still sad to hear about how many schools are in the same position especially after Covid. The other workshops she attended although interesting were repetitive from the board trainings they have had. The Hampton Bay presentation was her favorite and would love to see it integrated into our curriculum some way. She added that with a similar immigrant population, having the multi-disciplinary approach was fantastic in giving the kids an opportunity to use their voice.

President Venuto's comments were that it was good to see our district presenting the piloting of the Seal of Civic Readiness with many districts in attendance interested in including it in their offerings as well. Some of the other workshops President Venuto attended were already touched upon. She mentioned a grading discussion she attended. It made sense that grading should be based on a student's understanding of the content and the presenter mentioned that a lot of the grading can be subjective and not based on a student's actual learning. The presenter spoke about the importance of a shared vision, the purpose of grades, communicate achievements and other topics. These topics had President Venuto start doing more reading and has shared her findings with another board trustee. She also spoke to one exhibitor that does surveys and as she's aware that administration meets with seniors, President Maria Venuto is interested in reaching out to other students that have graduated and get information from them as well.

Superintendent Rianna responded by saying that she had her annual November senior luncheon and will be meeting with our returning graduates at the end of December to give us feedback. Dr. Rianna mentioned how spot on these students are with their discussions as it's similar discussions we are having as a district. I don't find it as a criticism but valuable information to do better in presenting programs and support. Dr. Rianna introduced a new teacher that was appointed this evening and was in the audience as well as a fellow graduation of Glen Cove.

XI. New Business

XII. Board Comments

Trustee Anne Markoulis encouraged the community to visit the districts website as our field is nearing completion and she can't wait to see the kids play on it. Trustee Markoulis went on to say that she's looking forward to more of the projects being completed and thanked the community for supporting it, without it, it wouldn't have gotten done.

Dr. Rianna added to Trustee Markoulis' comment. She also thanked everyone that came out on Thanksgiving morning in support of the Annual Turkey Trot with over 300 people.

Trustee Maureen Jimenez reminded everyone about the Laramie Project this Friday and Saturday. There will be a talk-back after Friday night's performance monirated by Phoebe George and the panel includes the director, Ms. Goldaper, Marsha Silverman and Mathew Shephards parents. Trustee Jimenez stated that what we are doing here is sending a pretty amazing message.

Vice-President Angela Raimo mentioned that she attending the senior luncheon with the input from all the kids was very interesting.
