An aerial photograph of a large-scale construction project. The main focus is a complex of several interconnected industrial or commercial buildings. The structures are in various stages of completion; some have dark grey brick walls, while others are still showing their steel skeletons. A prominent feature is a large, flat roof with a blue-grey finish. In the foreground, a red and white crane stands on a dirt area. To the left, a parking lot is filled with several white trucks. In the background, a residential neighborhood with many houses is visible, along with a railway line and open fields under a clear sky.
