Linking Internally & Externally from Your Site:
Dangers, Opportunities, Risk, and Reward

Linking to external sites/pages

Linking to internal pages or other sites you own/control

- A) Good, external-pointing links CAN reward your perceived relevance and rankings.
- B) Linking out can draw traffic and earn the value of other site owners who are more likely to link to you.
- C) Manipulative linkings to low quality sites/pages OR to spam sites or non-editorial content CAN hurt your rankings.

- A) The RIGHT internal links can have a large, positive impact on indexing and ranking.
- B) Internal links that draw traffic and reduce the website journey, as well as those that provide useful reference information, are often the most helpful.
- C) Internal links tend to have the largest impact on search optimization sites of intermediate size OR newly established sites.
- D) Manipulative internal links, especially those that are over-optimized, can have a negative impact on search optimization. But not those that are always correct.
