A Survivor's Perspective

When I was 14 I got into a really bad fight with my mom. I don't even remember now why we were arguing. I left the house slamming the door on the way out.

I was so mad. I just kept walking and walking.

I started noticing it was dark and I was downtown in a part of the city I'd never seen before. I saw people partying and heard club music going. I sat down on a bus stop bench but no busses were running, it was too late. A nice car pulled up, that was the first time I met him. It seemed like my only option at the time and I was still too mad to even think of going home.

I thought, well maybe I'll just ride around with him for a while.

The Shocking Truth

Child and teen sex-trafficking is real, scary and has devastating physical and mental health consequences for victimized youth.

Between 244,000 and 325,000 American teens are considered “at risk” for exploitation, and an estimated 199,000 incidents of sexual exploitation of minors occur each year in the U.S.

In 2017, all 50 States reported multiple cases of child human trafficking.

Traffickers shop for their victims online, at shopping malls, bus stops, at school, at after-school functions, foster homes... basically anywhere teens hang out.

The common age of entry for a victim of sex trafficking nationally is thirteen-years-old. At WP, the common age is sixteen.

Trafficking Boys

Currently 9% of WP survivors are male. Our youngest victim of sex trafficking has been an eleven-year-old boy.

Up to 36% of trafficked children in the U.S. are boys according to a Department of Justice 2016 report.

LGBTQ youth who had been kicked out of their home were 3 times more likely to be trafficked.

“What we found there (Super Bowl) were little boys dressed up as little girls and being sold.”

13 Safety Tips For Children

1. Know your name, address, and phone numbers(s).

2. Learn how and when to call 911.

3. If you are scared of someone, RUN to safety.

4. It's okay to be RUDE to a grown-up if you feel you are unsafe.

5. Learn the difference between an "OKAY" secret and a "NOT OKAY" secret and beware of an adult that asks you to keep a secret from parents.

6. Don't let anyone on the phone or at the door know that you are home alone.

7. If you ever get lost in a mall, ask the closest store clerk for help and then stay where you are until you are found.

13 Safety Tips For Children cont.

8. Avoid shortcuts when you are walking from one place to another.

9. If you are ever “scooped”, scream, kick, bite, and FIGHT as hard as you can to get away! NEVER trust what the “scooper” tells you.

10. Tell your parents or trusted adult if someone is asking you to do something that makes you feel uncomfortable. Listen to your “Uh Oh” voice.

12. Always ask you parents for permission before getting on the internet.

11. Never talk to people online without your parent’s permission.

13. Never be afraid to tell your parents or an adult if someone asks you to keep a secret that makes you feel uncomfortable.

13 Safety Tips For Parents

1. Work hard to establish trust and communication with your children from day one.

2. Don't ever leave your children unattended in a vehicle, whether it is running or not.

3. Make sure you know how to find or contact your children at all times.

4. Have a "Call List" of emergency contacts to call if they can't reach you.

5. Take an active role in your children's activities.

6. As tired as you may be, take time to listen intently to your children when they tell you they had a bad dream. There could be a reason. Trust your instincts.

7. Talk to your children about inappropriate reports on the news and get their perspective.

8. Question and monitor anyone who takes an unusual interest in your children.

9. Teach your children that they can be rude to an adult if they feel threatened in any way. They need to hear it from you directly because this message often contradicts what they've been told.

10. Teach children the difference between an “OKAY” secret and a “NOT OKAY” secret. Assure your child that you would never want him/her to feel like they had to keep a “NOT OKAY” secret.

11. Have your children practice their most annoying scream. They may need to use it someday.

12. Check websites for registered offenders in your neighborhood. Talk to your children about why these people should be avoided.

13. Keep your family computer in a central location that is easily monitored and avoid letting your children have internet access in unsupervised areas (i.e. computers in their bedrooms, etc.).

Talking To Your Kids

The first tactic begins at home. We need to communicate with our kids.

Tip #1: Just do it. Talk to your kids so that they trust you and are willing to talk with you about anything. If they are being groomed by some predator, you want to know it!

Tip #2: Talk to your kids about what to do if they are threatened. Yell, run, fight. They need to be told that it is ok to behave in this way when they are under attack.

Tip #3: Talk to your kids about what is happening in the world. This goes for any threatening topic and you will have to adjust the type of words you use to be age-appropriate. Hiding your kids from the dangers of this world will not protect them when they are faced with a situation that could alter their lives in a matter of seconds.

Tip #4: If appropriate, use the internet to communicate with your kids. Know what they are looking at, what social media outlets they use and who they are talking to. It is harder these days, but communicating with your kids to know who their “friends” are, both in real life and virtually, is important.

Tip #5: Know when your child meets someone new and where they met them. When they come home from school, from the mall, from sports practice, ask them how their day was and if they met anyone new.
