

Wondering about all of the 'local' produce offerings on the menu this year?

The MPS Food Services Department is committed to purchasing local fruits and vegetables whenever possible. Living in Massachusetts, our growing season is more limited than in other parts of the world, but we can still enjoy many locally-grown items, such as apples, lettuce, and root vegetables, year-round. Because of shorter shipping times, locally-grown produce is fresher and better for the environment. Supporting local growers keeps money in local economies, benefiting local communities by providing jobs and keeping money in local communities. And last -- but not least -- local tastes better!
