Member Story

A pre-adolescent female with multiple medical problems including severe developmental delay, cerebral palsy and scoliosis. Scoliosis surgery has been recommended. The family not sure surgery the best thing for their daughter and they are concerned it will cause more harm than good. They requested an Expert Medical Opinion for information about the risks/benefits of this surgery for their daughter.

The expert recommended not pursuing surgery as scheduled due to the patient's relatively young age and skeletal immaturity. He noted that the scoliosis is not likely causing the patient's pain and that the surgery would likely not change her pain picture.

The patient's Parents were very grateful for the service provided. They were looking for an "outside" view of their daughter's situation and whether this surgery is advisable. The patient's mother noted that the service has been "a wonderful resource" as they try to make this decision and noted that the report was "much more thorough" than they were expecting.
