

Important Message from The Health Office:

Dear Parent/Guardian:

We are facing an increasing number of students and families dealing with serious nut and/or seed allergies. With feedback from parents, and working with the school nurses, we were able to expand our birthday treat options. All parents who wish to send in a birthday treat or other class treats will be required to choose only from the following link below. We want the students to be able to enjoy the celebrations while being cognizant of the medical concerns that are present in the building.

As much as we all love home baked goods, unfortunately due to the risk of cross contamination, no home baked goods or bakery items will be allowed. Please note that all home baked goods, bakery items, or other snacks that do not appear on the link below that are brought or sent in will be returned home.

Children with food allergies are welcome to leave snacks in the health office. Also, please remind your children that all students are not allowed to share food at JK.

For more information on peanut, tree nut and seed-free snacks, updated information is available at <http://www.snacksafely.com>. You can access the Safe Snack guide directly by following this link at <http://www.snacksafely.com/safe-snack-guide>. We ask that you consult this resource regularly in order to select daily snacks for your children, as well as appropriate snacks for birthday treats and celebrations.

Thank you for helping us provide a safe environment for all our students.
