Lesson plan published by Laura, paintedpaperart.com

Summary:

Students study and discuss the characteristics of Russian Architecture.

Learning Target:

I can identify and create a cityscape.

I can identify characteristics of Russian architecture and create a drawing illustrating some of those characteristics.

Materials:

You can use any of the following materials depending on what's available at your house:

Paper, pencils, erasers, colored pencils, crayons, markers, ruler, paint, paint brushes.

Directions:

1. Read the information in the artist study page for this lesson. View and discuss the characteristics of the buildings you see in the artist's work.
2. Draw several overlapping buildings with similar shapes. Add details, and then color with paint or dry media. Create 3-D forms by adding lighter areas where the sun reflects.
3. Always have your child sign their artwork and provide an opportunity to review the learning targets and compliment work.
4. As an extension, create another cityscape using buildings where you live. Compare.
