What makes a middle school?

Association for Middle Level Education model for middle schools

“Every day, twenty million diverse, rapidly changing 11 to 14 year olds enrolled in our nation’s middle level schools are making critical and complex life choices. They deserve schools that support them fully during this key phase of life.”

- Association for Middle Level Education; This We Believe

Our Mission and Vision

Tenaflly Middle School

A Community of Caring and Excellence

“Tenaflly Middle School, in partnership with parents and the larger community, is dedicated to the growth and development of young adolescents by providing an environment that promotes academic rigor, academic integrity, social responsibility, and lifelong learning.”

Guiding Rules

"One of the most heartening examples we've encountered is a middle school that operates as a robust community of students, faculty and staff by agreeing that all behaviors and decisions are based on three rules, and just three rules.

Take care of yourself. Take care of each other.
Take care of this place.

These rules are sufficient to keep them connected and focused, and open enough to allow for diverse and individual responses to any situation."

- Margaret J. Wheatley

From Elementary to the Middle

The single most defining characteristic of both a middle school and its students is change.

- Physical
- Social/Emotional
- Intellectual
