Hillsboro School Board Selects Travis Reiman as Superintendent

Rigorous selection and vetting process results in identification of Reiman as top candidate

April 25, 2023, Hillsboro, OR - After a months-long and nationwide search facilitated by one of the premier superintendent search firms in the country, McPherson & Jacobson, LLC, the Hillsboro School District Board of Directors has selected HSD Assistant Superintendent Travis Reiman as the next superintendent of the Hillsboro School District. Reiman's term as superintendent will begin July 1, 2023 following Superintendent Mike Scott's retirement.

The vetting and interview process was extremely rigorous. After initial interviews and video presentations, the three finalists were each taken through a full day of meetings, school visits, interviews, and Q&A sessions with various stakeholder groups. Participants were then asked to share their feedback on the candidates. Board Members were given access to video recordings of all public sessions - which were held in person with an option to join virtually - as well the compiled feedback, to evaluate along with their collective experience of interacting with the finalists.

Ultimately, they felt confident that Reiman was the best candidate for the position. Reiman is well respected in the community and across the State of Oregon as a leader for leveraging the District's rich diversity of people and industry to the advantage of all students. He has experience, skills, and success in the areas of instructional leadership, curriculum development, family engagement STE(A)M education, career and technical education, and partnership development with local industry and institutes of higher education.

Reiman is also bilingual in English and Spanish, and is a proven leader in creating schools that serve an increasingly diverse student population. This includes expanding opportunities for thousands of students to access bilingual education from preschool through college.

Reiman and his family have lived and served in the Hillsboro community for twenty years, and his commitment to long-term collaborative relationships and building bridges across language and culture are part of what make him the right leader for our school community. "The Board of Directors is excited to welcome Mr. Reiman as our next superintendent," remarks Board Chair Mark Watson. "We look forward to his leadership on our shared objectives of student wellness and safety, world-class educational programs and practices, and strong relationships with families and community partners in order to maintain and grow HSD's reputation as the heart of the greater Hillsboro community.”
