UNIQUE COMPARISON GROUP

In some of the charts, MPS data points are compared against various groups (state, etc.) A unique comparison includes a category defined as the Elite Comparison Group (ECG), comprised of nine Michigan school districts that routinely exhibit elite academic outcomes. This group does not compare to MPS in terms of demographics or funding. In most cases, the districts within the group receive higher state revenues and have a lower percentage of students “at risk.”

It's hard to get to the top and even harder to stay there, a reality that serves as a strong motivator for the folks at Midland Public Schools.

"We can't take anything for granted," said Interim Superintendent Penny Miller-Nelson. "The people who make our district great – from bus drivers to teachers and building support staff to coaches and many more people along the way – we take pride in how well we serve the community, and we understand how quickly we can sink into mediocrity if we take our eyes off our goal."

"We're not going to let our district's excellence, which has taken so long to build, ever slip away," Miller-Nelson said. "It drives us to foster an equitable, collaborative and inclusive culture where all who work, learn and partner with MPS achieve success."

WHERE DID MPS EARN TOP GRADES?

In addition, MPS earned high marks by Niche, an online resource focused on connecting students with colleges, in a number of categories, including:

- A for Academics
- A for Teachers
- A for Clubs/Activities
- A for College Prep
- A- for Sports
- A- for Administration

The point is not to score well on the metrics, but to deliver value to the community in ways the metrics measure.

"The schools have become a magnet for relocation. Companies look for good schools when they're thinking about investing somewhere. It keeps business investment coming in. It keeps property values up," Dolinski said. "Quality of life in general is significantly enhanced when you have a quality school system. Students are less likely to get into a life of crime, which might cause people pain and suffering. We all benefit from having great schools."
