Cyberbullying is a Growing Problem. How to Recognize and Report Cyberbullying.

Even though teenagers and young adults are common victims to cyberbullying, every age group is vulnerable. Cyberbullying can range from embarrassing or cruel online posts or digital pictures, to online threats, harassment, and negative comments, to stalking through emails, websites, social media platforms and text messages.

By clicking on each button above, you will learn to help protect kids against cyberbullying. Here are four tips: 1) Talk to Your Kids 2) Document cyberbullying 3) Limit where your children post personal information 4) Report cyberbullying to the appropriate authorities. Let's work toward making the Internet a kinder and safer place for everyone... Together.
