Retired U.S. Army Lieutenant Colonel John Johnson will speak during the program.

The McKinley students have invited family members and friends who are veterans and active military members of the United States Armed Forces to attend the program. The names of all veterans in attendance along with their rank and branch of service will be read off as well as the McKinley student who invited them.

McKinley has presented a Veterans Day program for more than 25 years. The program spans generations as at least one former McKinley student is expected to be recognized as a veteran as a guest of current McKinley students.
