During a winter filled with travels from city to city and rink to rink, members of the Fargo Force hockey team are making a stop at Clara Barton Elementary School to read to Siri Jystad's fourth grade class on Tuesday.

The hockey players have selected a couple of books to read to the class, either personal favorite children's books or books with a message they believe in. And they will talk to the kids about the importance of reading to help them lay the foundation for a lifelong love of literature.

After the reading time has concluded, students will have a short question and answer session with the players and time allowing, will have an opportunity to get their picture taken with them.
