Davies psychology students have teamed up in groups to put brains on the menu. Zombies near and far will flock to Davies High School to sink their teeth into the finest grey matter on the market at the AP Psychology Zombie Café on Monday, October 31.

The students have created restaurants serving a zombie's favorite cuisine to showcase their knowledge of the brain and its functions. The restaurants will be presented together in a project fair atmosphere with the students sharing information about the human brain.

The psychology class has invited all adults in the building to visit their zombie café, but due to space constrictions, other classes will not be able to attend. Snacks and refreshments will be served, but no real brains will be eaten.
