Minnesota-based children’s book author and illustrator Nancy Carlson is visiting Lincoln Elementary School for two school day presentations and an evening drawing clinic on Thursday, March 23.

Carlson will give presentations to students in two 45-minute morning sessions. The first, for Grades K-2, will be from 8:30-9:15 a.m. and the second, for Grades 3-5, will be from 9:25-10:10 a.m. She will discuss the source of her ideas and imagination and how she accomplishes her work. She will then do a drawing demonstration on a large easel pad with the audience watching her draw. All drawing will be given to the school.

Carlson will return to Lincoln for an evening presentation at the school’s Family Involvement Night from 5:30-7 p.m. During this presentation, she will give art instruction and teach guests how to draw characters from her books.

Carlson, a resident of Bloomington, Minn., has published more than 60 children’s books, including her personal favorites, “I Like Me,” “It’s Going to be Perfect,” and “There’s a Big Beautiful World Out There.”
