Behavior Standards #4. Apply self-motivation and self-direction to learning

April 22, 2020 (Firefighter)

Greetings,

I hope all is well today. It's time again for "What Will I Be" Wednesday. Firefighters are community workers who have very important jobs. They do more than just riding on big red trucks with flashing lights and loud sirens. Firefighters save people from burning homes, put out fires in homes, buildings, and forest areas, and they also rescue people from car accidents. Firefighters also educate students on fire safety, and they inspect homes for gas leaks. To be a firefighter, you need a high school diploma and on the job training. You also must pass a certification test at the end of your training. Is this a career you would enjoy? Thank you, Dr. Sutherland, for bringing more career awareness to us! Have a remarkable day!
