

All-Time Track & Field Dual-Meet Team Rankings

With the 2007 Track season - with the start of the six classification system - Who's Who redesigned the All-Time rankings to reflect schools in those divisions at that time; hence why a strong team may predate the classifications creation. Thereafter, all teams are ranked in the classification they were competing in.

Top-10 Dual Meet Rankings by Season -- Who's Who has striven to compose a list of top Dual Meet teams since the 1966 season.

Methodology: Who's Who staff looks at a team's PR lists and – thinking like a coach – places athletes in events to maximize their scoring potential for their team relative to their opponents. This has the advantage of producing standings rooted in PR performances and does not consider uncontrollable variables such as injury, illness or coaches discretion of resting a significant athlete. Several hundred hypothetical dual meets are then scored out to determine the top teams.

A Note on Classifications: In 1966 there were three classifications – large, medium and small schools. As the labels of the classifications changed and new classifications were added (one new in 1992, and two new in 2007), it becomes necessary to clarify which classifications are ancestral to current classifications.

	1966-to-1970	1971-to-1991	1992-to-2006	2007-to-present
(large school)	A1.....	3A.....	4A.....	6A 5A
(medium school)	A2.....	2A.....	3A.....	4A
(small school)	B.....	1A.....	2A.....	3A 2A 1A.....

Top-10 Dual-Meet Track Rankings - Girls 6A

Who's Who has recognized the best dual-meet teams for each classification. Prior to the 2007 season a top-20 list was constructed, and top-10 after that date. What follows is a history of those rankings.

Methodology: The Who's Who editors scrutinize all the teams in the state, and run hundreds of hypothetical duel meets (we place ourselves in the coaches shoes, and put athletes where they would score the most points) in order to determine this ranking.

Note: This classification is the composite of all prior "large" school classifications, even if it was titled something differently.

Top-10 Dual-Meet Track Rankings - Girls 5A

Who's Who has recognized the best dual-meet teams for each classification. Prior to 2007 a top-20 list was constructed, and top-10 after that date. What follows is a history of those rankings.

Methodology: The Who's Who editors scrutinize all the teams in the state, and run hundreds of hypothetical duel meets (we place ourselves in the coaches shoes, and put athletes where they would score the most points) in order to determine this ranking.

Note: The 5A classification was created in with the 2006-2007 academic year, when OSAA realized there was a growing population of schools which resided between the traditional "large" and "medium" school divisions.

Who's Who started the dual meet rankings for girls teams with the 1970 season

Top-10 Dual-Meet Track Rankings - Girls 2A

Who's Who has recognized the best dual-meet teams for each classification. Prior to 2007 a top-20 list was constructed, and top-10 after that date. What follows is a history of those rankings.

Methodology: The Who's Who editors scrutinize all the teams in the state, and run hundreds of hypothetical duel meets (we place ourselves in the coaches shoes, and put athletes where they would score the most points) in order to determine this ranking.

Note: The 2A classification was created in the 2006-2007 academic year, when OSAA realized there was a growing population of schools which resided between the traditional "small" and fourteen-year-old "smallest" school divisions.

Top-10 Dual-Meet Track Rankings - Girls 1A

Who's Who has recognized the best dual-meet teams for each classification. Prior to 2007 a top-20 list was constructed, and top-10 after that date. What follows is a history of those rankings.

Methodology: The Who's Who editors scrutinize all the teams in the state, and run hundreds of hypothetical duel meets (we place ourselves in the coaches shoes, and put athletes where they would score the most points) in order to determine this ranking.

Note: The 1A classification was created in 1991-1992, when OSAA realized there was a growing population of schools which were significantly smaller than the traditional "small" school divisions already in existence. Therefore, this classification ranking begins in 1992.

Who's Who has recognized the best dual-meet teams for each classification. Prior to 2007 a top-20 list was constructed, and top-10 after that date. What follows is a history of those rankings.

Methodology: The Who's Who editors scrutinize all the teams in the state, and run hundreds of hypothetical duel meets (we place ourselves in the coaches shoes, and put athletes where they would score the most points) in order to determine this ranking.

Note: This classification is the composite of all prior "medium" school classifications, even if it was titled something differently.

Note: The 2A classification was created in the 2006-2007 academic year, when OSAA realized there was a growing population of schools which resided between the traditional "small" and fourteen-year-old "smallest" school divisions.

Top-10 Dual-Meet Track Rankings - Boys 1A

Who's Who has recognized the best dual-meet teams for each classification. Prior to 2007 a top-20 list was constructed, and top-10 after that date. What follows is a history of those rankings.

Methodology: The Who's Who editors scrutinize all the teams in the state, and run hundreds of hypothetical duel meets (we place ourselves in the coaches shoes, and put athletes where they would score the most points) in order to determine this ranking.

Note: The 1A classification was created in 1991-1992 when OSAA realized there was a growing population of schools which were significantly smaller than the traditional "small" school divisions already in existence. Therefore, this classification ranking begins in 1992.
