When BCSC let out for spring break, no one anticipated that was the last day students and teachers would meet face to face for the 2019-2020 school year. Last week, Precision Machining instructor Dalton Foley sent his seniors a token of remembrance from the time spent in C⁴ along with a letter of appreciation and encouragement.

In his letter, Mr. Foley stated, "... you should feel accomplished...Take this token as a reminder not only of difficult times, but as a reminder that YOU have succeeded. I hope that the skills and knowledge you have gained by participating in our C⁴ program will benefit you throughout your entire life. It was a pleasure being your instructor."

Students in Amanda Godwin's Education Professions class were asked to create a book related to COVID-19. Edinburgh junior Kaitlynn Frey showed extraordinary artistic talent while driving home an important message. To view the full book, please go to the following site:

Virtual 6th Grade C⁴ Tours

Over 300 sixth grade students have experienced C⁴ in a new way this year - via a virtual tour and activity, followed by a Google Hangout with C⁴ Ambassadors. While it's disappointing not to be able to welcome these students into the physical building, it's still exciting to share a taste of what they could experience with C⁴ in a few years.
