C⁴ KICKS OFF TOURS WITH HAUSER JETS

>>> Hauser 8th Grade

Every year, C4 partner schools are invited to tour C4 classrooms. This allows these students to see the action in the labs and classrooms, ask questions, and determine which pathway they may want to pursue. By doing these tours, the goal is that these younger students have plenty of time to plan their class schedules to make room for C⁴ classes during their junior and senior years. Hauser Jets' 8th grade kicked off this year's tours earlier this week.

MARKETING CEREAL BOXES

>>> Business Marketing

Business Marketing students created cereal boxes as part of their lesson on target audiences. Students had to pick an audience such as athletes, fashionistas, certain age groups, and many more. Once they determined their target audience, they created the box design, a commercial, and wrote a paper based on their research.

PCC classes allow freshmen to dive into the C⁴ program. Each week the students get a taste of a different C⁴ pathway. Mr. Nash's class jumped right in on the Fashion and Textile Class by making trash bag outfits for a fashion show. The classroom was full of fun and laughter as the students prepared the best outfits with supplies like trash bags, tape, and minimal other scrap material.

NEW BARCON HOUSE UNDERWAY!

>>> CONSTRUCTION YEAR 2

Construction Year 2 classes started the next house at 1320 Pearl Street. This will be the 44th house built by C⁴ Construction students. They are currently working the floor system. Construction students use designs from C⁴ Architecture students. This year's house was drawn primarily by last year's seniors Owen Hebert and Brody Voss.
