Title

Recognition of Cherokee County School District 2024 Media Specialist of the Year -- Jennifer Cogdill of Woodstock High School

Requested Action

School Board Recognition of Cherokee County School District 2024 Media Specialist of the Year -- Jennifer Cogdill of Woodstock High School

Summary Explanation and Background

As a former classroom teacher, Jennifer Cogdill understands how a school's media center can support teachers' daily instruction and enrich student learning.

Her numerous achievements include certification as a Microsoft Innovative Educator and Apple Teacher and selection as a Harvard University Library Leadership in a Digital Age Institute scholarship winner. She previously was honored as the 2017-18 Woodstock Zone Media Specialist of the Year.

Ms. Cogdill earned her bachelor of science in education degree from Northern Illinois University, master of education degree from Piedmont College and specialist degree in school library media from University of West Georgia.

Ms. Cogdill will advance to represent CCSD in the regional competition, from which she could move on to the state contest.

All CCSD school media specialists were eligible for the award, and Ms. Cogdill was selected as the winner from a pool of outstanding nominees by a judging committee of retired educators.

Ms. Cogdill was presented with a $500 Visa gift card from sponsor Credit Union of Georgia.
