THANK YOU FOR BEING YOU, MR. RICHEY

"Who is one of your teachers that deserves to be recognized?" I asked my 2nd period library aides. They both replied confidently "Mr. Richey!"

I have heard this again and again since I've been here. When I first started here, I overheard a group of girls at lunch talking about how entertaining Mr. Richey is. Lunch is prime time social hour, so the fact that these students were talking enthusiastically about how much they appreciate a teacher stood out to me.

When I asked my 2nd period aides why they think Mr. Richey is a great teacher, student Harmony Jones stated "He makes learning easier".

"How?" I asked. "He helps students with assignments and explains things thoroughly, in an entertaining way," she replied.

I stood outside his classroom during a passing period and asked students coming in to his classroom if they love Mr. Richey as a teacher. They all answered with a resounding "YES!" and that "he really deserves to be recognized".

I asked them why and they told me that he is extremely funny and gets the information they need to them in a way that they understand and want to listen.

"That's true," a student added. "If I was in any other English class, I probably wouldn't care as much."

Thank you for who you are, Mr. Richey! Thank you for engaging the 8th grade students at Euless Junior High and for making English class interesting and fun! We appreciate you going above and beyond to make learning exciting.

"HE HELPS STUDENTS WITH ASSIGNMENTS & EXPLAINS THINGS THOROUGHLY, IN AN ENTERTAINING WAY."

-HARMONY JONES, 8TH GRADER

MIDDLE YEARS

Short Stops A to-do-later list
Here's a clever way for your tween to stay focused while he works. When he finds himself tempted to do something unrelated to his assignment, encourage him to write it on a to-do-later list. Examples: "Check Twitter." "Daydream about summer." Moving his thoughts onto paper may get them off his mind and help him concentrate on his work.

HEB students have organized and are holding a community voter registration drive this Saturday, March 27th from 11am to 1pm in the Pennington Field parking lot.
