About The Yawp

“Now, for those of you who don't know, a ‘yawp’ is a loud cry or yell,” actor Robin Williams proclaimed in the famous 1989 movie, Dead Poets Society. In the film, Williams played the role of English teacher John Keating who inspired his students through his teaching of poetry to make their lives extraordinary. Shortly after the movie, in the early-1990s, a student newspaper named The Yawp was developed and existed for several years at Pacelli High School. When creating this magazine, The Yawp seemed to be a fitting name due to both its meaning and history on campus. We are so excited about what's happening at St. Anne-Pacelli Catholic School, we're ready to shout it from the rooftops! So, today, The Yawp is one of many opportunities to help you stay connected with St. Anne-Pacelli Catholic School.

Mission Statement: St. Anne-Pacelli Catholic School provides a complete educational experience building knowledgeable, faithful, and responsible Christians who compassionately serve others.

A Message from Fr. Robert

St. Anne-Pacelli is and always will be a Catholic School. Its Catholic identity is at the very core of its mission. Our beautiful school is Catholic because our teachers, staff, administration and students model their lives after Jesus Christ. It is Catholic because we dedicate time during the day for prayer and reflection. It is Catholic because our Catholic faith is taught in all of our classrooms and integrated into as much of the curriculum as possible. It is Catholic because the Lower School has Mass every week and the High School has Mass every other week. Twice a year our children are given the opportunity to go to Confession, and we hope to increase these opportunities. This year, our Athletic Director, Corry Black, received a call from someone scheduling some of our teams' state playoff games. During the call he was asked if they could schedule a game on Good Friday. Without any hesitation, he asked that another date be chosen. When I hear something like that it gives me great joy because it illustrates just how much our faculty and staff understand the importance of our Catholic identity. The greatest gift we can give our young people is the gift of faith, and I am so proud and grateful that our administration, faculty and staff understand that.

It's a Great Day to Be A Viking!

Fr. Robert Schlageter, OFM Conv.
St. Anne Catholic Church Pastor

Fr. Emanuel Vasconcelos, Fr. Robert Schlageter and Fr. Paul Pantiru serve as priests at St. Anne Catholic Church. From celebrating Mass, to supporting our students at various games and matches, their presence at St. Anne-Pacelli Catholic School is greatly appreciated.

Faith in Education

On Holy Thursday, our Pre-K4 students washed the feet of their classmates. After washing the Disciples' feet, Jesus explained what He did and why. "You should wash one another's feet," He told them. "I have set an example that you should do as I have done for you. Very truly I tell you, no servant is greater than his master, nor is a messenger greater than the one who sent him. Now that you know these things, you will be blessed if you do them." (John 13:1-17)

STEAM: Teaching Outside The Box

By Heather Dalelio, Kindergarten Teacher

Mrs. Dalelio's Kindergarten class is so excited to be using STEAM bins on a daily basis. The acronym STEAM stands for Science, Technology, Engineering, the Arts and Mathematics. When students have extra time throughout the day, they may choose from one of 24 bins. They are challenged to build a simple structure with only the materials within the STEAM bin. Some items may include, but are not limited to, dominoes, Scotch tape, Playdoh, index cards, toothpicks, foam balls and Legos. Examples of structures that they are asked to build are a tower, animal house, maze, trap, airplane and more. Students may choose to work alone or with a partner. Activities encourage project-based learning that crosses all five STEAM disciplines while students are engaged and contribute to their own learning. These activities promote problem solving, creativity and analytical thinking at a young age.

Flexible Seating Elevates Student Engagement

By Emily Miller, 3rd Grade Teacher

Third graders are embracing new flexible seating options. Research has proven that flexible seating is not only a great choice, but an important change to improve student health, learning and engagement. Studies show that students are able to focus and perform at their highest level when they are comfortable. Additionally, flexible seating provides ample opportunities for peer collaboration and creates an environment where students take ownership of their learning.

Fr. Jeremiah McCarthy Science Lab

St. Anne-Pacelli High School students are conducting experiments in a brand new, state-of-the-art science lab, thanks to a $250,000 grant from the Mildred Miller Fort Foundation, Inc. The lab was designed by Sheldon Laboratory Systems, a company that manufactures the most innovative and durable lab furnishings available for school science laboratories. “Our new lab places students at the forefront of a multitude of science disciplines, including Biomedical Sciences, Chemistry, Forensics, and Physics,” St. Anne-Pacelli High School Science Teachers Mr. Adrian Anderson, Mrs. Lisa Aut, Mr. Jeffrey Klotz and Mrs. Lynda Wright said. Features of the new lab include: six Axis Infinity Lab Tables; a fume hood; storage cabinets; and stockroom. “It is exciting to imagine the impact this facility will have on future students and their careers. Creating this beautiful lab space with better equipment will allow for more diversity in advanced placement labs with more complex chemicals and supplies.” The new lab was constructed over the summer months and is named in honor of Fr. Jeremiah McCarthy, pastor of St. Anne Church from 2013 until 2018.

British Literature – Past to Present

By Erica Crenshaw, High School English Teacher

Junior British Literature students have been hard at work this year diving into the Old English & Medieval literary period with Anglo-Saxon poetry. Students are identifying poetic devices that are specific to the time period and analyzing the poems' overarching theme of exile. British Literature can be challenging, especially in the earlier literary periods, as the English language at this time is so very different to the English language we all know and speak today. Throughout the school year, students will be tracing the changes to our language through literature from some of the earliest-known British literary pieces to contemporary literature.

Two International Students In Class of 2020

In 2016, St. Anne-Pacelli began accepting international students into the high school for long-term study programs. This spring, two Chinese students will be the first international students from this program to graduate with a St. Anne-Pacelli diploma.

Xin Yue “Carla” Tu enrolled as a 9th grade student in the 2016-17 school year. Carla is from the province of Hebei, China, a coastal area outside of Beijing. She wanted to come to the United States because she felt her best opportunities would come from an American education and she wanted a different high school experience. She is very happy with her choice to attend St. Anne-Pacelli saying, “The people are really nice here and I enjoy the school spirit. I also like that it is a small school so you can ask the teachers questions.” She says she has also enjoyed learning about the Catholic faith and enjoys attending Mass with her peers.

Carla is currently taking three AP classes and two Dual Enrollment courses to prepare for college. She would like to stay in the United States after graduation and is applying to several schools, including the University of Florida, Emory University and Boston College.

Joining Carla in the Class of 2020 is Zhuoli “Jack” Wang. Jack is also from China but from farther south in the Anhui province, close to Shanghai. Jack came to St. Anne-Pacelli because he wanted more exposure to the arts in education. Since arriving in 2017, Jack has been pursuing his passion for art and is currently enrolled in AP Studio Arts 2D. In July, he spent 12 days at the Cleveland Institute of Art’s Summer Pre-College Program. He spent eight hours a day taking a Foundation in 2D Design course. He was also able to tour three art museums in Cleveland, an experience that he describes as, “...most awesome because there was every kind of art.” He hopes to attend the Cleveland Institute of Art, Chicago Institute of Art, or the Savannah College of Art & Design after graduation. Like Carla, Jack says one of the best parts about being at St. Anne-Pacelli for high school is, “All of the people are friendly and kind.”

Since the international student program began four years ago, St. Anne-Pacelli has enrolled students from China, Spain, Mexico, and Germany. Admitting international students is “definitely more challenging,” according to Julie Davis, Director of Admissions. “We want to make sure they have the right personality and skill set to be successful and happy so far from home. We also have to be very careful to follow immigration regulations and report to the Department of Homeland Security. I feel it is worth the extra effort to expose our student body to other cultures and broaden their world view.”

Former Student, Now Four Star General Returns

By Mark Rice, Ledger-Enquirer (republished with permission)

After his Patriot Day speech Wednesday, September 11, 2019 at St. Anne-Pacelli Catholic School, U.S. Army Gen. Michael Garrett was asked by junior Enrique Dickerson for advice he would give teenagers.

“When you talk to people, look them in the eye,” the general told approximately 300 students in grades 8-12 “... Something as simple as that sets you in a whole different category than a whole bunch of people.”

It was among the nuggets of wisdom Garrett offered during his visit to the school he attended for several years in the 1970s.

Garrett’s visit was arranged by Pacelli alumnus Lt. Col. Gregory Majewski, a U.S. Army public affairs specialist, taking advantage of the proximity with the general being in Columbus to speak at a Fort Benning conference.

Pacelli principal Ronie Collins was one of Garrett’s classmates. She told the Ledger-Enquirer the general’s visit gives the students “someone to aspire to be like, a very faithful man, very much one that’s very focused and dedicated and a mighty Viking.”

Garrett deflected the praise from Collins.

“I’m sure there are a bunch of people out there,” he said, “when they hear that Mike Garrett is a four-star general leading the largest organization in the Army, they probably go, ‘Huh. That can’t be the Mike Garrett that I know.’”

Garrett, 57, has been in the Army his entire life, first as the son of retired Command Sgt. Maj. Edward Garrett of Columbus, then as a soldier himself.

Although most of his audience Wednesday wasn’t alive during the 9/11 attacks 18 years ago, it’s more important to remember that day’s significance, Garrett said.

Beyond the 2,977 deaths, Garrett urged the audience to “never forget the heroism and compassion we witnessed that day and the days that followed. The first responders and patriots from all walks of life responded with speed, courage and compassion.”

The nation “rallied together as one, galvanized in our stand against a new threat,” he said. “Young men and women, many just a little older than some of you in here, signed up and volunteered to join the Armed Forces, knowing full well that they would be sent far from home to protect the American people, our values and our ways of life.”

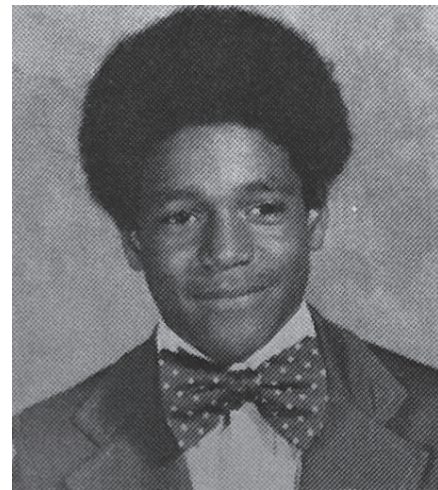

One of those patriots, Garrett noted, was 2002 Pacelli graduate Pvt. John Henderson Jr., who died in 2005 during a combat mission in Afghanistan.

Through “challenges, setbacks and heartbreak” during his Army career, Garrett said, “my faith, my family and my dedication to serving our country grounded me. Each one has contributed to my moral compass.”

Now, Garrett commands the U.S. Army Forces Command, based at Fort Bragg, North Carolina, with around 745,000 soldiers and 96,000 civilians.

All of which shows, he said, “Life is full of opportunities, and the only person that’s going to judge you is God, so stay right with Him and learn from your mistakes.”

Faith was one of the three factors Garrett mentioned as driving his success, along with family and service.

“Prayer helps me reflect, refocus,” he said, “and there’s almost a meditative quality that helps me sort out what’s important.”

Garrett challenged the students to consider what they are passionate about and to ask themselves, “How can that passion blossom into something long-term and fulfilling? ... I ask you to be deliberate and thoughtful in terms of how you answer.”

Opportunities are fleeting, Garrett warned, so he also challenged the adults in the audience.

“You play an important role in encouraging our young people,” he said. “You are their sources of inspiration. Open their eyes to the possibilities. Offer them direction to find their own dreams. Then provide them support and a pathway to achieve that dream.”

Pacelli senior Daniel Forlines, 17, appreciated the advice he heard from the general, especially because he is applying to the service academies.

“I hope to one day serve my country in a role of leadership as someone who can be a model for others,” he said.

Knowing the general came from St. Anne-Pacelli to reach that height, Daniel said, makes his goal seem more achievable.

“We didn’t have the exact same experience, but we walked the same halls and seen the same things around town,” he said. “I can relate to that. It’s not something too far away or impossible.”

St. Anne-Pacelli Earns Five Readers' Choice Awards

St. Anne-Pacelli Catholic School is honored to receive Ledger-Enquirer 2019 Readers' Choice Awards for Favorite Private School, Favorite Preschool, Favorite Child Care, Favorite School Principal - Ms. Ronie Collins, and Favorite Assistant Principal - Mrs. Angel Cash! Thank you for voting for us!

Service Spotlight: Viking Outreach Leadership Team

Our newly-formed Viking Outreach Leadership Team (VOLT) is planning ways to educate, inspire and mentor our school community about the needs of St. Anne Community Outreach clients.

All VOLT members volunteered a minimum of 12 hours at Outreach over the summer and rotated through working in the clothing room, observing client interviews and helping in the food room. They all found the experiences to be very impactful and have a greater appreciation for the needs in our community. One member remarked, "These people are just like us. They have just fallen on hard times."

VOLT's mission is to:

INSPIRE the St. Anne-Pacelli Catholic School community to provide assistance to the families in crisis that visit St. Anne Community Outreach.

EDUCATE peers, family members and other youth in the greater Columbus community on the scope of poverty in the region and how time, talent and treasure can be shared with those in need.

MENTOR fellow students, providing opportunity for spiritual growth and deepening of faith, through St. Anne Community Outreach related projects and activities.

Our Viking Outreach Leadership Team was awarded a $2,500 Innovation Grant from the Community Foundation of the Chattahoochee Valley in late-2019. Funds received from the grant will be used to help VOLT work with the CSU Servant Leadership Program. VOLT members will determine their strengths and develop skill sets to reach their goal of becoming leaders while continuing to partner with St. Anne Community Outreach. This is very exciting news for the group in its inaugural year!

VOLT Members Javonte Bowen, Isabel Sillitto, Kristen Schlies (faculty advisor), Olivia O'Shields, Thomas Landeche, Bradley Dalelio, Anna Ranieri, and Mallory Sorrell.

After spending the day in retreat in August our VOLT members decided that a great way of fulfilling their mission of Inspiring, Educating and Mentoring other students was to form an Outreach Club for both middle and high school students. Twice a month VOLT members lead Outreach Club members from grades 6-12 in various tasks at the St. Anne Outreach Center. This can include sorting clothing, packaging up dry goods and meats, writing letters for donations, and any other needed task.

Out-of-this-World Friendships Forged at St. Anne-Pacelli

By Zach Coker, Pacelli High School Class of 2004

Ever since I was a child, I have been awed by everything space. The vastness of the universe, the curiosity of the unknown, and, not to sound cliché, but the exploration of the final frontier, have always been at the forefront of my passions.

Years ago, when I first started as a Kindergartner at what was then still just St. Anne School, I met a classmate named Matthew Bartow. Like me, he was curious about everything – literally everything. Before I knew it, he and I were best friends. We stood with each other in line, we ate lunch together, and played together during recess. We were inseparable. As the years passed, we, along with a small group of other friends, got closer and closer. To this day, I still remember a conversation we had in 5th grade. This was when St. Anne was still just two buildings connected by the main hall of Pacelli High School. I remember having a great Science class just before lunch where we talked about space exploration. This was then the topic of our conversations at lunch, as well as at recess. We told each other, no matter what, even if we were the guys cleaning the floors, we were going to work for NASA one day. A little bit later that year, something happened that started us on a path that would one day see that dream become a reality.

In 1996, the Coca-Cola Space Science Center in downtown Columbus opened. Our 5th grade teacher reached out to the head of the observatory there to see if he would be willing to come to St. Anne to do an evening of telescope observation out on the football field. It ended up being a Friday night where they brought out telescopes, and we looked through them for hours. When we were done, we went up to the cafeteria, watched sci-fi movies and had a class sleepover. I still remember that like it was yesterday. Matthew and I stayed up all night talking about NASA and the exploration of space.

Skip to about 5 years later, I was at Pacelli High at this point and Matthew was going to Columbus High, but we stayed close friends. One night, we went to a telescope night at Providence Canyon State Park that was being hosted by the Space Science Center. My dad had to drive us down since we didn't have our driver's licenses yet. When we arrived, the same man who had come to our science night years before was in charge of the telescope night. His name was Dr. Shawn Cruzen, Director of the Meade Observatory and the Coca-Cola Space Science Center. With his guidance, we would go telescope to telescope, gazing into the heavens, and as the night went on, we asked for more and more. I will take a moment to say, we probably got to the point of being annoying, but Dr. Cruzen never missed a beat. He would show us objects through the telescope, get us to try to remember where they were in the sky, then move the telescope and tell us to go find them again. For two space nuts like us – best game ever. At the end of the night, Dr. Cruzen was so impressed with our eagerness to learn and the speed at which we were learning the telescopes, he asked us to come down to the center to talk about part-time jobs. A month later, Matthew and I were the two newest staff members of the Space Science Center. We did everything from running planetarium shows to public outreach programs to teaching astronomy, all the while, still dreaming of that day when we'd work together at NASA. The years passed, and we made more dear friends, including a guy named Cameron. We all finished high school, went through college, and continued to work there. By the time I left, I had been there for 12 years. At that point I had married the love of my life and we moved to West Texas where she had been offered a position as a geologist. When we arrived in West Texas, I was offered a position to be the Director of the Planetarium and Science Center at the Museum of the Southwest, where I would continue teaching astronomy. Matthew stayed at the Space Science Center, and the two of us would collaborate often, still with that ultimate goal of working together at NASA.

After four years of being in West Texas, my wife and I decided we wanted to be closer to home, so we moved back east. I took a couple of jobs to get by while we started to work on our future plans. Around that same time, our friend, Cameron, got offered a job with NASA at Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Alabama after an internship. Before we knew it, Matthew had applied for a position alongside Cameron and was offered the job, as well. Shortly thereafter my wife, who has a master's in planetary volcanology, decided to apply and was also offered a job. Finally, right behind her, I decided now was the time to fulfill our dream. I applied for a position as a Flight Controller and within a couple of days was offered a position at Marshall Space Flight Center.

When people ask me what we do, I ask, "Have you seen Apollo 13?" Nine times out of ten, they say, "Yes." "Those guys in mission control... that's what I do." That's what we all do. Matthew, Cameron, Cheryl (my wife), and I are all Flight Controllers in Mission Control for the International Space Station. We work as ground support for the crews flying on board the station, flying 17,200 miles per hour, 250 miles up. It's an amazing career, and we are now living out our dream from years ago. It is a dream that started and grew in the halls of St. Anne-Pacelli Catholic School and we have never forgotten it. Even as we work alongside famous astronauts and support daily operations aboard the Space Station, we still reminisce about our years at St. Anne, walking the halls and dreaming of working for NASA.

New Partnership Provides First Class Care for Student-Athletes

St. Anne-Pacelli Catholic School and The Hughston Clinic have formed a partnership to protect the school's athletes and students. Champ L. Baker III, MD, David C. Rehak, MD, Aaron A. Joiner, DO, and John Henderson, DO are the team physicians. Dr. Joiner along with Athletic Trainer Jessica Carter, ATC, will be on the sidelines during games. Jessica will also work with the student-athletes during practices and will be available at the school daily for additional athletic training needs. As the official sports medicine provider for St. Anne-Pacelli, Hughston also helps plan and implement safety protocols and procedures at the sporting events.

Hughston physicians have been on the sidelines since Dr. Hughston started the tradition 70 years ago. When an athlete is injured, the sports medicine team provides immediate expert evaluation and care. If the injury requires further treatment or follow-up the team physician will design the treatment protocol. If an injury occurs during practice or a game, an athlete doesn't have to spend hours in the ER. Hughston Urgent Ortho offers after-hours orthopaedic care, six days a week, and no appointment is needed. Additionally, the Hughston sports medicine team provides high school pre-participation exams and Saturday morning injury clinics at Jack Hughston Memorial Hospital during football season.

"Our sports medicine team and state-of-the-art facilities allow us to provide St. Anne-Pacelli athletes with orthopaedic care like no other," said Dr. Rehak and Dr. Baker.

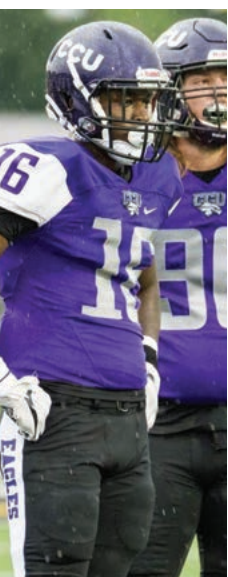

"We are thankful for the partnership with The Hughston Clinic," says St. Anne-Pacelli Athletic Director Corry Black.

"We are getting first class care for our student-athletes."

Where Are They Now?

Over the past five years, 24 St. Anne-Pacelli Viking student-athletes have signed to play at the collegiate level in basketball, baseball, football, golf, soccer and softball. Others have competed in tryouts at their chosen colleges to earn a spot on their teams. We checked in with a few of them to share their experience.

Playing sports at the collegiate level requires a commitment to hard work and a passion for the sport. No one knows that more than Mikal Marble '16. Mikal went over 500 miles from home to be part of the first-ever football team at Cincinnati Christian University. He chose the unique chance to build something from scratch over other football opportunities. Being part of an inaugural program has been "very tough and a lesson in patience," says Mikal. He credits his experience at St. Anne-Pacelli with preparing him for the challenge at CCU saying, "the thing that I brought here from Pacelli, the thing the coaches and players taught me there, was toughness." Mikal, a four-year starting linebacker with over 80 career tackles, got to see his hard work and perseverance pay off when the program celebrated their first-ever win on August 31, 2019 over Warner University.

Mikal Marble, a Psychology major graduating in May, earned the 2018 Mid-South Conference Academic All-Conference Award and the 2018 Distinguished Student Athlete Award (for 3.5 or higher GPA) while starting at linebacker for Cincinnati Christian University.

Madison Vinyard splits her time between working towards her degree in Psychology and cheering at basketball games and in cheerleading competitions for Young Harris College.

Deandre Bowman '16, redshirt junior wide receiver for Georgia State University, agrees with his high school classmate that toughness is an important part of being a student-athlete. Deandre had to battle injuries that kept him off the field his first two years at GSU. He came back to play in the last four games of the 2018 season and is an integral part of GSU special teams and offense this season. Deandre says, "I overcame my setback by keeping a positive mentality and working hard every day to get back on the field."

He also kept working hard in the classroom and earned a spot on the GSU Athletic Director's Honor Roll. He is graduating with a major in Public Relations and a minor in Marketing in the spring and plans to start graduate school in the summer in either Computer Information Systems or Economics. He says his time at Pacelli helped him prepare for the academic rigor of college classes by teaching him study skills.

Deandre Bowman celebrates the 38-30 upset win against the University of Tennessee putting Georgia State football in the national spotlight.

Another Viking celebrating college athletic success this year is Madison Vinyard '17. Madison is a member of the Young Harris College competitive cheerleading squad. Her team will compete in the National Cheerleaders Association Collegiate Cheer & Dance Competition in April 2020 in Daytona Beach, FL. Last year the squad took 2nd place in the competition, the best finish in program history.

"Getting to experience college nationals for the first time with my teammates and friends is the best moment from my cheerleading career," says Madison. That moment did not come without hard work. "The most challenging thing about being a student-athlete in college is having to get everything I have to do for my classes done before I go to practice and workouts,” says Madison. “Being a student-athlete at Pacelli helped me with my time management and balancing working on both grades and cheerleading skills. Balancing both things can be extremely difficult, especially at a collegiate level, but it is possible.”

Jake Rehak proudly displays the 2018 Southern Conference Soccer Championship trophy and ring.

Also juggling school work and sports is Jake Rehak '17, a redshirt sophomore on the Mercer University's men's soccer team. Jake was part of the 2018 Bears team that posted a 12-4-2 record to become the Southern Conference Regular Season Champions. At the same time, the Industrial Engineering major was named to the 2018-19 Southern Conference Honor Roll for student-athletes with a 3.0 or higher GPA. While it means he has a very hectic schedule, Jake wanted to play soccer at Mercer because he enjoys being part of a team and competing at a high level. “Another rewarding aspect would have to be the opportunities that have presented themselves to me through playing sports. For example, we quite frequently do community service, such as volunteering at Miracle League (a baseball league for special needs individuals) and local outreach organizations,” says Jake. He also enjoys travelling to new places with the team.

When asked how Pacelli prepared him for his experience in college, Jake replied, “A lot of my teachers in high school were very helpful to me by laying the foundation for many subjects that I have done well in. On top of laying the foundation, they all pushed me to do the best I could in my classes which has helped me to excel in college. As far as athletics go, there were many coaches, across multiple sports, during my time at Pacelli that helped shape me into the athlete and person that I am today. They always drove home the point that working hard on and off the field would help in all aspects of life.”

Spotlight on Viking Volunteers

By Rene McEvoy, Volunteer Director

Meet 2018-2019 Viking Volunteer of the Year: Artemisa Harmon

Artemisa Harmon is the St. Anne-Pacelli Catholic School Viking Volunteer of the Year. Artemisa, better known across campus as Arte, is a Pacelli alumna and parent. She and her husband, Jason, have always valued the importance of Catholic education and their children, Lola and Ruben, have been St. Anne-Pacelli students since their very first days of school. Home & School Association President and Treasurer, Booster Club Membership and Concessions Chairperson, and Middle School Football Team Parent are only some of the leadership roles Arte has held over the past few years. It is impossible to attend anything at St. Anne-Pacelli without finding Arte working hard to ensure that the event is a success. Her love for this school community is evident through her selfless commitment to volunteerism. Thank you, Arte!

A Viking Volunteer Will Soon Turn 100!

On June 28, 2019, Rose Zeranski will turn 100. Rose, known for her double string pearls, bright red lipstick, and joyful personality has a true heart for volunteerism. She believes in hard work and loves to be in social settings. Perhaps hard work and strong ties to community are her secrets to a long life.

Rose and her husband, Hank, raised six children, all of whom attended St. Anne-Pacelli Catholic School (then Holy Family and Pacelli High School). During that time, Rose and Hank were active volunteers helping with fundraisers and contributing to meet pledge goals to grow the then, “new” high school. They helped sell tickets at home football games long after their children had graduated.

In addition to being an incredible volunteer for the school, Rose has always been a strong supporter of St. Anne Church. She was an active member of the Altar Society, washing and pressing hundreds of altar cloths and corporals used at Mass. She and her husband were active in Knights of Columbus and the Ladies Auxiliary, and she is still a member of the Columbus Council of Catholic Women.

Not only did Rose dedicate many hours to volunteering at the church and school, but she also worked full-time in civil service on Fort Benning. She even waited until she was 70 years old to retire!

Later in life, Rose took on a new commitment as a Pink Lady at St. Francis Hospital. While in her 90s, she received an award for 3,500 volunteer hours!

I.P.T.I.D.

A Letter from Lee Duncan '66

Dear Alumni and All Supporters of St. Anne-Pacelli Catholic School,

The Class of 1966 began a new initiative a few years ago - I Pledge Thirty in December (I.P.T.I.D.). The I.P.T.I.D. program is intended to provide an avenue of last resort for families of motivated students at Pacelli who have fallen on hard times. By providing access to funds in cases of financial emergencies, that could require those families to withdraw their children due to those challenges, the I.P.T.I.D. program is intended to provide a "gap scholarship" as assistance in those cases. In developing this program, we wanted to encourage wide participation and set the suggested contribution at a level that would not be overwhelming to most - $30. We approached this with a strategy that if we could spread our ask to alumni to participate in a concurrent giving program that would create an energy that would provide a steady supply of funds to offer some relief for those families. The program has achieved our desired mission in several instances over the last three years, and we hope to continue to hear stories of how our gifts have assisted these families.

While at Pacelli, most of us enjoyed the benefit of an environment that provided a quality experience devoid of outside pressures from negative influences. This atmosphere allowed for us to each mature in our formative years with unique support from the staff as well as our fellow classmates. To me, the strength of the Pacelli experience is not only the academics, religious influence, athletics, and other extracurricular activities, but the legacy established over the years that we enjoyed and are now leaving for the future. Recently, a former student who is now a 4-star general serving in the U.S. Army met with and addressed the current students at Pacelli, focusing his talk on faith, family and service. His accomplishments are impressive, but frankly I sense we all were able to develop similar expectations for ourselves as a result of the four years we spent at Pacelli. Our program is intended to provide that same opportunity for students who may otherwise be unable to matriculate due to reasons outside of their control. There are many of you who are already participating in the I.P.T.I.D. program, and we thank you! To those of you who are not yet part of the I.P.T.I.D. family, we ask you consider adding your support to this program, and know your gift is welcome anytime of the year!

May God Bless You,

Lee Duncan '66

Say "Yes!" to GRACE

By Tiffany Shreve, Director of Advancement

This school year marks a 20-year enrollment high here at St. Anne-Pacelli Catholic School. There are many factors contributing to this milestone, one of them is the ability we have to provide tuition assistance to families joining us from Georgia public schools through GRACE Scholars. Since GRACE Scholars was established in 2009, $797,384.00 in contributions has been designated to help students attend St. Anne-Pacelli Catholic School. In 2019, we received $131,780 from our generous donors, up from $69,490.66 in 2018. Because of their generosity there are currently 32 students, from 4th grade to 12th grade, receiving GRACE Scholars awards at St. Anne-Pacelli; 14 of these students are new to our school this year! While we celebrate this growth in giving, every year we receive more requests for tuition assistance than we have funds available to award. GRACE funds help more families be able to afford St. Anne-Pacelli, and the more support we receive for GRACE, the more families we can award. We need your help; will you help us?

GRACE Scholars (GRACE) is a designated student scholarship organization (SSO) in Georgia which allows Georgia taxpayers who donate to GRACE the ability to receive a 100 percent tax credit on state income taxes. You are telling the state of Georgia how to spend your tax dollars! Thanks to the Georgia State Legislature, the statewide cap on tax credits increased to $100 million in 2019 from $58 million in 2018, and will remain at $100 million until 2028. In 2019, of the over 20 SSOs in the state of Georgia supporting Georgia private schools, the $100 million cap was not met. That means that there were state tax credits available to taxpayers, and tuition assistance money to our school that we did not claim.

There are three easy steps:

1. Between now and December 15, 2019 get pre-approved by the state of Georgia; to get pre-approved, visit www.gracescholars.org and pre-register for your 2020 tax credit online or via the link to the paper form. When completing the pre-approval form, remember to designate your contribution for St. Anne-Pacelli! Please note you do not need to know what you will owe on your taxes to pre-register; your tax liability will decrease, or your refund will increase, based on your approved tax credit and contribution. For example, if you make a pledge, are approved for, and contribute $500, if you normally owe on your taxes, your tax liability will be reduced by $500. If you normally receive a refund, your refund will increase by $500. Based on how you file taxes you could contribute up to $2,500. Owners of interests in pass-through entities ('S' corporation, LLC or partnership) can give up to $10,000. 'C' corporation and taxable trusts can give up to 75% of estimated tax liability. If you own a business and receive a K1, we'd love to talk with you!

2. In January 2020, you will receive an approval letter from the state informing you of your available tax credit. It's at this time that you will make your contribution. You will have 60 days from the date of your letter to make your gift to GRACE Scholars (not to St. Anne-Pacelli directly).

3. When you file your 2020 state income taxes (in early-2021), you will receive a dollar-for-dollar credit on your state taxes for your contribution. You can also claim this donation on your federal return, if you itemize, under "state and local taxes."

To learn more details about the law, the pre-registration process, making a contribution, and GRACE Scholars, Inc., please visit www.gracescholars.org or contact St. Anne-Pacelli Catholic School Director of Advancement Tiffany Shreve at 706-561-8232 ext. 322 or tshreve@sasphs.net. Help us continue to grow our enrollment by donating to GRACE Scholars and provide the gift of Catholic education to new students at St. Anne-Pacelli Catholic School! Pre-register today for 2020!
