Technology Tips From Principal Slaughter

Parents,

Often our kids tell us they will not look at their phones or computers during the night when they are supposed to be sleeping. One way to ensure they are following this rule is to require them to charge their technology overnight in a room other than in their bedrooms. This will help your kiddos and you have a better night's rest, knowing they are not accessing their technology when they should be sleeping.

The Golden Rule is our RESPECT book of the month!
