

CANUCKLING 1957

INTRODUCTORY PAGES

(Illustration by Carol White, entitled "Dream Castles")

MACBETH

by Diane Kroeter (Class of 1957)

There once was a cat; Macbeth was his name.

He thought himself cool and wanted some fame.

Three witches foretold he'd sit on the throne;

So he knocked off the king to make it his own.

But this wicked deed he'd done on the sly,

And it lurked in his mind that someone would pry.

Tormented was he, fearing Banquo and son;
So he hired some killers to have the job done.
Again checked Macbeth with the three bearded dames,
Who foretold his future with cauldron and flames.
The ghosts that were brewed by the weird sisters three Gave Mac the account of what was to be.
He twisted their words to suit his own ends;
Then, just for spite, he killed many friends.
So Malcolm and 'Duff in England did meet
And plotted with Siward the tyrant's defeat.
Onward they crept, leafy boughs as their shields,
And at Dunsinane Mac met this foe on the field;
Then, head-on, confronted Macduff and his death.
Hence the tragedy and end of Macbeth!

Illustration by Barbara Benham