Getting Started

Welcome! There is a lot of career information available here and we want to help you make the most of it. We have organized things according to the three basic principles of good decision making:

1. Know yourself. Knowing your strengths, values, personality, and skills will decide which choice best fits you. Take the Career Key test to discover which Holland personality types you are most like, identify the careers that are most promising, and learn detailed information about each one. Read about Holland's Theory of Career Choice to understand how job success and satisfaction is related to your personality.
2. Know your options. Think of as many alternatives as you can. Then, learn about each one. To learn about occupations, go to Learn More about the Jobs that Interest Me.
3. Make a good decision. In High-Quality Decisions, you will learn a method based on many scientific studies that is widely used and medical settings. It is easy to understand and use. Me.

The career key works like this:

- Answer questions about yourself.
- Based on those answers, your profile will be created.
- You will use your profile to identify jobs that will likely be a fit for you.

REVIEW PERSONALITY TYPES

- Scroll down to Identify highest personality type.
- Take a few minutes to read your personality types summary.
- Review the examples of the different occupations that have your personality environment.

Enterprising 14

Likes to lead and persuade people, and to sell things and ideas. Generally avoids activities that require careful observation and scientific, analytical thinking. Is good at leading people and selling things or ideas. Values success in politics, leadership, or business and sees self as energetic, ambitious, and sociable.

Persons having an Enterprising personality type "dominate" this environment. There are more of them than there are people of other personality types. For example, in a business or legal setting there will be more persons having an "Enterprising" personality than there will be people who have a Investigative type.

"Enterprising" people create an "Enterprising" environment. For example, they particularly value people who are energetic, ambitious, and sociable -- who are good at politics, leading people and selling things or ideas.

Examples of occupations that have an Enterprising environment are:

- Auctioneer
- Sales Person
- Travel Agent
- Recreation Leader
- Judge
- Lawyer
- City Manager
- Sales Manager
- Bank President
- TV Newscaster
- Customs Inspector
- Camp Director
- Hotel Manager
- Real Estate Agent
- School Principal
