WHAT YOU EARN
WILL DEPEND ON WHAT YOU LEARN.

The next four years are the best chance you will have to determine your future. Starting today is the best time to plan your high school years—and your whole life.

That's right, dreams of a great job, financial security and a great life can come true if you make the most of your education. Tomorrow's best jobs require people with good skills in English, math, science, and technology. The jobs that usually require these skills often pay the highest salaries.

Taking rigorous courses within the career cluster you choose and having a positive attitude toward your work will best prepare you for college, the military or other post-high school endeavors. Deciding to excel early will have a huge impact on your future earnings.

Who wouldn't like to have a job that's interesting, enjoyable and pays well? What YOU earn will depend on what YOU learn.
