Interviewing ASB Student

By: Isabella, Halena, and Jovana

On Friday, October 29, 2021, Journalism interviewed Jaysson from ASB. ASB stands for Associated Student Body. He does ASB because he likes his teacher and classmates. They are always helpful and they guide you through school, work, and personal stuff. He says that ASB is very helpful for example, picking up trash, and passing out candy. It makes people happy and it makes him happy too. Jaysson says that Mr. Reveles is really helpful and no matter what it is, problems with your family or school work he can help with anything. The upcoming activities that are happening by ASB is Fall Theme Week, a Giving Tree. In December, there's going to be a basketball tournament, half court contest, and the prize will be either $50 or $100 if you win. He joined ASB because it's a leadership elective and he wanted to help the school. He has a lot of privileges by doing stuff that not a lot of people can do and a lot of free range. He also can't wait to be in ASB next year.

I make sure they use them safely, I trust them and try to give them projects and things that allow them to use engineering and creativity." Another question that we gave Mr. Davey was how many years

Why You Should Dye Your Hair

By Lilyana Russell and Marlyn Morales

Many people were stuck in quarantine, and could not find anything to do. Some people turned to dyeing their hair. There are many different opinions about colored hair. Some opinions are that it is impractical and can seem inappropriate, while others enjoy it because it is fun, and can find a form of comfort in it. In this article, we will try to disprove some stereotypes, as well as give students and teachers' thoughts on the matter. People have often said that colored hair can give people the impression that you are a troublemaker. Certain employers and companies will turn away people for looking "unprofessional". However, this is very untrue. These stereotypes are extremely unfair. Hair color can't dictate your personality. There are many different ways to dye your hair, and many different colors. Serena Williams has had many different hair styles, and she has had an ombre with a very pretty light brown color before. Reese Witherspoon has also tried different styles of hair, like being blonde and brunette.

As for damage to hair, it often turns out fine if you go to a professional. Melting your hair can be avoided by checking to make sure your hair doesn't stretch out as it is being bleached. Hair dyes can be natural colors as well as bright colors, and there are different styles, like just coloring the tips of your hair. This is an opinion from a 7th grade student at this school. "I personally dyed my hair due to boredom, and I thought it would be a cool and fun thing to pass the time. My sister had dyed her hair many times, both by herself and by a hairstylist, with good results. Having colored hair was very fun, and I like having it because I prefer it to my naturally dark brown hair."

We also interviewed a teacher who works here, and here are the questions and answers. What do you think about colored hair? Do you think it's a bad thing? "I used to think colored hair was weird but now I think it is unique, and I think it's very stylish, and I think that people who take the time to do designs are really being artistic and creative."

By: Joaquin Fregoso

He used the skills that his sister taught him when he was 8 to make more bow ties. He was so proud of himself when he first learned how to sew that "he wore the new Ninja Turtle-themed tie to school the next day." Darius Brown started to make bow ties after Hurricane Irma happened on August 30th, 2017. Hurricane Irma made many dogs homeless. Darius wanted to help the dogs that were homeless to get adopted.

Meteorite Hits Canada

By Sergio P

According to USA TODAY, on October 3rd, 2021, Ruth Hamilton was asleep in her Canadian household when a meteorite struck her house while she was asleep. The meteorite had landed right beside her when she was asleep and had almost hit her.

She described it as being as large as a fist, and it weighed nearly 3 pounds. "There's still a hole in my ceiling" she said.

A Meteorite is a solid piece of debris from space from leftover rocks from comets and asteroids. A professor from the University of Western Ontario said that "there's a 1 in 100 Billion chance of this situation happening."

Facebook Under Investigation

By: Jovana P

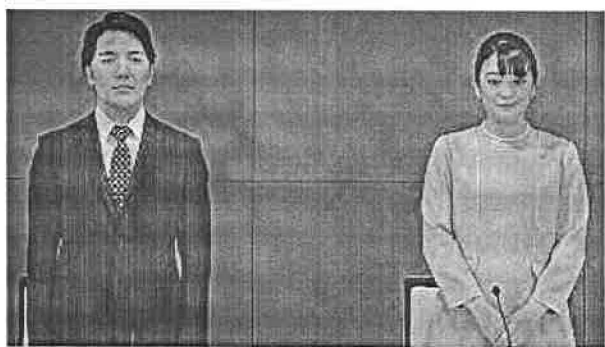

According to AP News, Facebook shut down earlier this month. It was all because anti-vaccine comments swarmed users. They are now under an investigation due to a lawsuit. "Critics say the reason Facebook was slow to take action on the idea is simple: The tech giant worried it might impact the company's profit." Facebook might be gone if the lawsuit goes through. It's a huge problem for the company and they need to fix it right away. Anti-vaccine comments on Facebook have grown so big that even prominent public health agencies were urging people to take the vaccine.

Princess Chooses Love, Not Royalty

By Marlyn M

According to CNN news, Japan's Princess Mako (niece of Emperor Naruhito) from Tokyo, Japan found love with a commoner. She said that she is going to marry commoner Kei Komuro who works in a law firm. Eventually, they will marry and will leave the palace life for a fresh start in the U.S. On Tuesday, Princess Mako wedded her fiancé Kei Komuro, the wedding distinctly lacking in bells and whistles. Usually when a royal gets married it's a loud and public wedding.

That wasn't the case for Mako's wedding. The couple's wedding was at a local ward office in Tokyo, followed later with a short news conference. This marriage marked the end of Mako's time as a royal. The thing is though, Mako is not choosing to give up her royal title. She is losing the title because of Japan's centuries-old strict imperial law. The couple is expected to move to New York City, where Komuro works at a law firm. Though 30-year-old Mako isn't the first Japanese princess to swap the palace for a more ordinary life. Her Aunt Sayako, (only daughter of Emperor Akihito), was the last to do it in 2005 when she married town planner Yoshiki Kuroda. But Mako's marriage to Komuro faced an unusual level of hate. But they are still choosing to get married and live a happy life.

Hollywood's New Horror & Science Fiction Museum

By: Jazlyn P

According to The Los Angeles Times, a new museum has come to Hollywood this year with props and costumes from horror movies and science fiction films. Rich Correll is the one who created this museum called the Icons of Darkness.

Rich spent 15 million dollars on props, costumes and other items. This museum is meant to attract people who are big fans of Horror, Sci-fi as well as music lovers to see the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame that's on the side. Rich at first just collected these items as a hobby but it led up to this. Rich Correll first started collecting when he worked with "Beaver" who is a friend of his that goes by that nickname. They worked at Universal Studios and they were both huge monster fans who loved horror movies. When they went to the studio's makeup lab where monsters were created, he was amazed and thrilled. Rich was shocked to see that all these props and costumes were being thrown away. At one point he went to the trash to get a costume head. After that, he started collecting these items that would have been thrown away. About half of Rich's collection is on the first floor of his museum which will open in April 2022.
