

EveryDay Intervention Family FAQs

What are these communications?

These communications are letters about attendance and include excused and unexcused absences. The goal of these communications is to help families keep track of their students' absences and offer resources and support.

What type of attendance information is listed?

The mailings include both excused and unexcused absences, for remote (if applicable) and classroom attendance, to help families keep track of the total days missed.

What is the date range for the attendance information?

The dates listed are from the student's first day through the date listed on the mailing.

Where do you get this data?

This data comes directly from the school's daily attendance system and is what was on file for your student when their attendance was reviewed.

Is this a truancy letter?

No, these are not truancy notices. The mailings are designed to inform families about their student's absences and encourage them to help their student attend class daily.

Do I need to take further action after receiving a mailing?

No, the mailings are a helpful resource for families. The mailings have resources listed that families can call for assistance as well. To stop receiving attendance reports, call the phone number at the bottom of your report and enter your opt out code.

My student needs additional resources. Is there any way you can connect me to additional district resources?

We can provide you with a number to communicate with additional district resource offices. Please call the family support phone number at the bottom of the report for additional information.

I don't think my attendance looks accurate.

If you have any questions about the days your student has been absent, visit your school's family portal or call your school.
