Read Aloud Tips For Families

Fenway and Hattie by Victoria Coe

- ✓ Make reading time a priority – Sit down as a family and decide on a daily reading time, and then consider it an appointment that needs to be kept. Some families might find that right before bed is the best time, but early risers might enjoy reading at breakfast. For younger listeners, bath time can be great! Build it into your daily routine and soon you will find that everyone is ready and waiting to hear what comes next in the story.
- ✓ Show emotion that matches the story – All of the books from Read to Them capture a range of emotions over the course of the story. When reading aloud, mirroring the emotions felt by the characters will make the story more meaningful to your listener.
- ✓ Vary your rhythm – Have fun with the language in your book. During suspenseful sections, slow down and let the suspense build. During a particularly meaningful moment, pause and let the impact settle. During emotion-packed scenes, drop your voice to a whisper. When you are reading aloud, you are performing the story. Authors don't want their stories performed in monotone!
- ✓ Don't be afraid to be silly – Accents, funny voices, and sound effects are all great tools to use to make reading aloud more engaging. Character-specific voices or mannerisms also help listeners follow the dialogue. It might be a challenge, but it's worth the effort to make your story come alive.
- ✓ Stay engaged with your listener throughout your reading time – Stop from time to time to explain an unfamiliar vocabulary word, discuss an important point, or ask your child to make a prediction. You don't want to derail the story too much, but you do want to make reading together interactive.
- ✓ Expect some fidgeting – Listening during reading time does not have to be a stationary activity. Some listeners will sit still as stones with eyes and ears fixed on you, and that's great. But other listeners stay more engaged with something in their hands like a small toy, some crayons, or a stuffed animal. Some children might listen better if allowed to walk around the room, or even bounce on the bed a bit. Work together to find the way that works best for your child.

Fenway and Hattie by Victoria Coe

What do you know?

What is Hattie's regular smell?

What is the "squirrel's nest that looks like a house"?

What does Fenway think when he hears the doorbell ring?

What do you think?

Moving to a new home can be exciting and scary all at the same time. What are the good things about moving? What are the bad things? Have you ever moved? How would you feel if your family was going to move to a new home? To a new town?

What can you do?

Design a Treehouse

"There, in the little squirrel house...a face is peering out the window..." (p. 26)

Hattie loves the treehouse. But, because the book is told from Fenway's perspective, we don't know what the inside looks like. So you get to decide! Grab some paper, pencils, rulers, markers, collage materials, and glue and design your perfect treehouse. You can do a drawing of the outside, showing how it will stay up in the tree. Then, decide what the inside will look like. Will it have furniture? Will you paint the walls? Will you have curtains on the windows or shades so you can keep your space private? How will you keep your stuff safe from those dreaded squirrels?

What do you know?

What is the “very definition of impossible”?

What is the Perfectly Still Dog?

Who says, “It all started with that ball and glove”?

What do you think?

When Hattie plays with Angel, Fenway feels left out. That left out feeling can be one of the worst feelings for dogs and kids. Have you ever felt left out? Have you ever noticed someone else being left out? What can you do to help?

What can you do?

Despicable Squirrels

“No squirrels allowed!” (p. 73)

Fenway worries a lot about squirrels, so let’s learn about them. What kinds of squirrels live in your area? What do squirrels like to eat? Where do they build their nests? Do they hibernate in your area? How do flying squirrels fly? Next, head outside to do some field research. Take a walk in your neighborhood or a nearby park and see if you can observe some pesky squirrels in action. No squirrels? Try observing other living creatives in your neighborhood or park – chipmunks, birds, kids, adults. Take a notebook with you like a real researcher and record your observations.

What do you know?

What is Fenway's "life's work"?

What awakens Fenway from his nightmare?

What advice does Fenway give to Patches?

What do you think?

Fenway explains to Lance that it is a dog's job to make his human happy. Do you think people have a responsibility to help make other people happy? When you make someone else happy, how does it make you feel?

What can you do?

At Home Camp-Out (or In)

"She rushes over and collects her bag and rolled-up blanket. She turns and heads out." (p. 136)

Backyard camp-outs don't have to be reserved for when you are angry like Hattie. You can have one just for fun. If you have camping gear and a backyard, pick a night to sleep outside. Take some books, flashlights, and snacks. Cuddle up, have a treat, and read together. Don't have all that camping gear? Have an Almost Camp-Out. Put on your pajamas and go outside for everything but the sleeping part. No backyard? Have a Camp-In. Make a fort out of blankets and chairs and camp right in your living room. Spending time with family – and some great books – will make the time special.
