The PRHS Fall Play

What to Expect in This Year's Show

ANDIE BOWSER STAFF WRITER

27abowser36@prrams.org

"If Taylor Swift came to your house, but she was a bad person." -Senior Nicolai Ezolt when describing the premise of the play.

Thinking about attending this year's high school fall play? If not, you should definitely consider it. This year's fall play will certainly be one to remember.

This year's Pine-Richland High School production, "The Man who Came to Dinner," tells the story of a man in the 1930's named Sheridan Whiteside who is a very well-known and famous theater critic. While going on tour, he breaks his leg and he is forced to stay with his host family the Stanleys. During his stay, his true character is revealed and he turns out not to be the nice man people think he is.

The two main characters in this play are Sheridan Whiteside, played by senior Nicolai Ezolt, and Maggie Cutler, played by senior Lauren King. The play will take place in the high school auditorium on Friday, November 17th and 18th. There are many amazing cast members acting in this play, with a total of 27 members.

"This is the biggest cast we've had," said Mrs. Morrissey, the fall play's director.

"We have a very large cast, so we can showcase lots of talents," said student producer senior Michael Lattari. The cast is currently preparing to give their best performances on stage as they attend practices several times a week after school.

"The Man who Came to Dinner" is predicted to be a great success, as the audience for last year's show was very large. The members of the play are hoping people will come back this year to see another great performance.

The show will be a wacky and hilarious comedy: "Full of conflict and romance," said Mrs. Morrissey.

It is also a "change of pace" from what they've done before, which gives the cast a new and exciting challenge.

The cast collectively agrees that the fall play is similar to the musical; however, it's more tight knit as it's a smaller group, more lax, and characters can go off script sometimes to improvise, and overall it is less demanding and more intimate.

The original writers of "The Man who Came to Dinner" are Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman. The play debuted on October 16, 1939, and became a huge overnight hit. A movie version of this play was also created in the 1940's and won tons of awards.

"It's a terrific movie," said Mrs. Morrissey.

There are multiple moods, plot twists, and a handful of sabotage. The moral of the play is learning to not be selfish, allowing people to be who they are, and living your own life. Mrs. Morrissey said that the play is something old and the students will now get a new and different experience.

"There are so many kids excited to be in the show," she said.

Mrs. Morrissey is proud of each and every one of her students and the hard work they are putting in to give their best performance on stage. This year's fall play is sure to be an incredible one.

PRHS Courtyard Renovations

Senior Michael Lattari Takes on the Challenge

MARIANNA ZAHORCHAK STAFF WRITER

“Lying at the center of a school,
Forgotten, Dull, and Lifeless.
It could become a hidden jewel
If someone would show it kindness.

Students pass without a glance;
They do not hear its call.
The courtyard dreams of a second chance
To break free of its outer wall.

We have a dream, we have a mission.
There will be kindness shown.
Now that students have awoken,
The future is ours to own!

Ahead we see a future bright;
A courtyard filled with beauty.
It no longer has to fight,
For it is happy now, truly.

It smiles today, no longer forgotten.
Someone heard its call.”

“Performing renovations will help the high school and lots of people on a large scale and have a long-lasting impact.” -Senior Michael Lattari

If you didn’t know better, perhaps you’d think I had come up with this poem on the spot as a cute little hook for this article– but you’d be wrong. I wrote this poem two years ago with my best friend regarding the PRMS Courtyard. Alas, this poem could just as easily tell the tale of the PRHS courtyard, and senior Michael Lattari knows why.

During the summer of last year, Lattari began the process of setting up renovations for our high school’s courtyard as a part of his Eagle Scout project. He hopes that by taking up this project, he can “benefit the community and utilize something that has always been there, but has never been used.”

Working on the courtyard wasn’t Lattari’s original plan, however. Initially, Lattari had hoped to organize renovations not on the courtyard, but rather, the rooftop garden boxes. Unfortunately, the roof wasn’t stable enough to take on such a task. Lattari wasn’t thrown off his game, though, as he felt he could make a similar and equally great impact by working on the courtyard.

Lattari explained, “The PRHS courtyard has never really been used on a regular basis.” His new project hopes to change that.

Continued...

Nevertheless, once the renovation process is finalized, Lattari thinks that students should be allowed to utilize the space, most likely as a place for teachers to hold their classes. Although it is unknown what the exact future of the courtyard holds, talk of small groups of students potentially having the opportunity to eat lunch there has floated around as well.

Working towards making this idea a reality goes beyond simply doing the renovations; Lattari first needed approval. After communicating his proposal with the principals, he waited for the board's approval which he received. Finally, the idea is a go, so Lattari will move on to step three of the process— fundraising.

Once fundraising is complete, he'll have the ability to start making the changes, including power-washing the sidewalk and pathway, re-mulching the mulch beds, adding tables with benches and umbrellas, and finally, the addition of planter boxes around windows to prevent distractions within classrooms and encourage gardening. Lattari will consult other members of his Boy Scout Troop to assist in getting the job done.

“Anybody else who is interested is more than welcome to help,” he added.

Lattari hopes to have renovations done before November Break, but, at the latest, he will achieve completion of his goals by January 4. Hopefully, after all of Lattari's efforts –and up to 23 years of waiting– the courtyard will finally become a place for students to enjoy and teachers to utilize.

Football Game Recap

Rams Players Shine in 50-0 Pummeling of Fox Chapel

BLAKE FUCHS STAFF WRITER

After losing in heartbreaking fashion in their last home game to the Penn Hills Indians, Pine-Richland's football team bounced back in their return to Pine-Richland Stadium. The previous week was a win at Seneca Valley, so some momentum was on the Rams' side. Fortunately for them, the odds were against their opponents.

Fox Chapel was, and is, a significantly different looking football team compared to Pine-Richland. The fact that some of their starting players such as their quarterback being out was not a good sign for the Foxes, but that wasn't even the biggest sign that the game might be a bit lopsided. This being that Fox Chapel has not won a football game since November 12, 2021. A 14 game losing streak with their four losses that year with all their opponents scoring over 34 points was not a good sign for Fox Chapel. And indeed that was the case, with Pine-Richland taking advantage of an interception in the red zone to score on their first drive. And it didn't stop there. The Rams had two successive 21-point quarters, going up 42-0 by halftime. After that point, the game was pretty much over. Pine-Richland went scoreless in the third quarter, like their opponents, but scored 8 in the final quarter to finish the game with a nice 50 burger over Fox Chapel.

It's sufficient to say this game was a bit unfair in Pine-Richland's favor. If the score wasn't a big enough sign, the Rams had 291 total yards of offense, while only having the ball for 15 minutes, half of Fox Chapel's 32 minutes with the pigskin. The rushing game carried the offense, with senior Talan Hill-Ressler having 3 carries for 98 yards and an electric touchdown, as well as fullback senior Ethan Pillar utilizing the shorter run game with 8 rushes for 65 yards. There were some spots to improve on, such as Freshman Aaron 'Ubi' Straber not making a single completion save for an interception, but it's still early in the season, so improvements can be made.

Overall, the Pine-Richland Rams had a successful conference game, increasing their record to 1-1, inserting them back into the hunt for a playoff spot. That's not to say playing 6A rival North Allegheny will be a walk in the park, but this fairly easy game can help get them prepared for the challenges ahead.

Girls' Soccer Team Seeks Success This Season

Get an Inside Look into this Young, Thriving Team

ELLA BARKLEY STAFF WRITER

25EBarkley96@prams.org

With a tough loss to the 2022 girls soccer graduates, the Pine-Richland girls' soccer team looks to become a young, but strong, competitive team this fall season. Varsity Senior Captains Abby Rosenwasser and Sophia De Jesus strive to make this soccer season a positive environment for everyone including the new underclassmen.

“We’re a really young team, and we can only go up from here,” said Molly Baker, a sophomore on the varsity team.

This being said, this varsity team consists of three sets of sisters that helps this team to victory. Senior Abby Rosenwasser is playing alongside her freshman sister Lily Rosenwasser, junior Abby Satina alongside her freshman sister Riley Satina, as well as senior Sophia De Jesus with her sophomore sister Lily De Jesus.

For these girls, soccer is their whole life. At a young age, they tried multiple different sports, but soccer was the one that stuck. When growing up with your dad as the coach, it encouraged these girls to work hard due to the fun environment they had with their friends. But the hard work and dedication hasn’t slowed down at all for these girls.

Rosenwasser said, “Individually you have to give your best effort, and as a team, you have to work together.”

If there’s one thing to say about this soccer team, it’s how much they are devoted to this game, the desire to win, as well as create memories with their teammates.

Sophomore Riley White said, “As soon as you step across that line, you have to be in the game, mentally. You have to try your hardest and put in your best work to be a good teammate overall.”

As much as you have to be in the game mentally, these girls are also student athletes who are involved in various clubs as well as challenging classes. Soccer can be a big commitment, but worth it if you are enjoying it and balancing school and athletics the right way.

Throughout each and every game, these girls have all different emotions such as stressing or overthinking, but most importantly being confident in yourself. Varsity head coach, Alessandro Moreira, always tells the girls that in order to win games, you need to believe in yourself and want it more than the other team. You have to cheer on your teammates and give it all you got no matter what the score is out there.

“Whether it is a win or loss, we celebrate with each other for everyone's hard work, but also get right back at it in training the next day. Nothing ever stops,” said De Jesus.

It’s important for Pine-Richland students of all ages to come out and support both boys and girls sport teams for how much effort they put into this game. When seeing fellow students in the stands, players' confidence can be boosted and allow them to play a better game knowing their friends are there to support them. Good luck to the girls soccer team the rest of this season.

Pine-Richland’s Freshman Choir: Keep Calm and Sing On

MADDY HOMER STAFF WRITER

27mhomer86@prrams.org

Pine-Richland’s Freshman Choir meets fourth period every day as a class, practicing and learning various songs to perform at concerts throughout the year.

This choir is directed by Ms. Flora, who graduated from Geneva College with a bachelor's degree of Science in Music Education with a vocal concentration. She is incredibly talented and makes music fun and easy to learn.

The majority of the freshmen choir have been singing with Ms. Flora since 7th grade and will continue throughout all their years of high school if they choose to do so.

In freshman choir we learn to sing in four part splits, Alto 1, Alto 2, Soprano 1, and Soprano 2. Singing in four parts is difficult because each part has different notes that form a perfect harmony so it teaches us to be more independent and confident when singing since each part has less people. We also work on maturing our voices, so that we sound more like high school students rather than little kids.

I had the opportunity to interview Ms. Flora and ask her a few questions about being a choir instructor.

When did you begin teaching?

“I began teaching in 1996. I was hired by Pine-Richland a few weeks after I graduated from college and it has turned out to be one of the biggest blessings of my life.”

What is your favorite part about being a choir instructor?

“I LOVE working with kids, both in terms of building relationships and in partnering to create music. Because I am fortunate enough to teach students for multiple years, I get to watch them grow as people and as musicians. I am so grateful to get to be a part of that journey with each of my singers.”

What is different about teaching middle school versus high school students?

“I genuinely enjoy teaching both age groups for very different reasons. I think the biggest difference between them is the type of energy they bring to the classroom. Middle school students bring enthusiastic and lively energy to their work while high school students bring more focused and passionate energy. High school students begin to appreciate and enjoy music in a deeper, more connected way and it's always fun for me to observe that growth.”

Who is someone that inspires you?

“My colleagues in the high school music department - Mr. Rickard, Mr. Scott, Mr. Stillwagon and Mr. Belchick - inspire me every single day. They are all very different people with very different strengths. But, every single one of them are incredible educators in their own way and work extremely hard to provide great musical experiences for kids. They absolutely push and challenge me to be a better educator as well. I couldn't have handpicked a better group of people to work alongside.”

What values are you trying to instill in your students?

“More than anything, I want every student that walks into my classroom to feel seen, heard, and valued for who they are. Kindness, respect and caring are things I hope my students see in me and, in turn, are things that they share with others in the room also. I believe that these are always important characteristics to demonstrate in all aspects of life. But, specifically in a performing arts ensemble, creating music can be a very vulnerable process. It's really important to me that all of my singers feel safe enough to freely engage and share their contributions with others.”

What advice would you give new or old students in “surviving” Pine-Richland High School?

“Always be true to who you are and don't ever compromise yourself to win the approval of others. I absolutely love the quote that said: ‘Be who you are because those who matter won't mind and those who mind don't matter.’ Don't be so caught up in being accepted by others that you lose yourself. When you're always your authentic self, the right people will come into your life.”

Ms. Flora is such a sweet and optimistic person. She cares so much about each and every one of her students and loves to teach them the things she loves most. On behalf of all the freshman choir we thank you for never failing to put a smile on our faces and coming into class each day with an optimistic attitude that lights up the room, and for teaching us to love music and to always be ourselves.

The freshman choir offers an opportunity to be a part of the honors choir. If you are in the honors freshman choir each week you must complete a recording of you singing a specific part of a song we are learning in class and be graded for it each week. At the end of the first quarter each of the Honors students will perform an Italian Aria song of their choice and perform it in front of their peers fully memorized. The second quarter students will research one of the songs we are singing for our Winter Concert and analyze the music. In the third quarter students will have weekly choir peace journals. The fourth and final quarter students are required to sing a solo at the Pine-Richland Talent Show. The major difference between freshman choir and the honors freshman choir is that honors is more critically graded and requires extra projects. So to be a part of the honors choir you have to put in a lot of extra effort and do assignments outside of the fourth period choir.

The PR Color Guard

Behind The Flags That Paint The Night

BROOKE DEEGAN STAFF WRITER

@26bdeegan66@prrams.org

“As a member of the Color Guard, I think game day is very fun and exciting. We get to sit and watch the game while it is happening, and also cheer and dance along whenever the band plays. It’s truly a great experience,”

said sophomore Lucy Bish.

Typically, when people think of the football season, the miraculous players, enthusiastic cheerleaders/dance team, and harmonious band are what most clearly come to mind. These three massively impressive groups are the ultimate staples of Friday night lights after all. However, there is another group that is just as important to the high school football culture, and equally as remarkable as the rest. Far too often overlooked, the Pine-Richland Color Guard is bound to make its mark on the district this year as they paint each night with their undoubtedly vibrant skills.

Sophomore Lucy Bish is new to Color Guard this year and she is ecstatic about what is to come for the remainder of the season.

“This is my first year,” she said. “I joined because I wanted to do something different and try new things.”

Color Guard practices the art of doing beautifully choreographed dances while using colorful flags in order to interpret the music that the band plays. They contribute to the bright atmosphere of every PR football night in a way that is simply unforgettable and should never go without mention.

Game day is just as important to members of Color Guard as it is to anyone else involved in the rush of high school football. They have to work arduously in order to get to the place that they are supposed to be. The reward of finally performing is, without fail, beyond worth it.

Though there is positive adrenaline embedded within the anticipation of game days, they, of course, also have their fair share of nerves as well.

“I get really nervous while performing, but it is still is exciting,” Lucy said. “I can always hear my friends cheering me on from the side and the stands, and that helps me a lot.”

For Bish, other than dancing on the field, her favorite thing about the entire enchanting experience of being in Color Guard is learning new choreography with her eye-catching, vivid flag.

She said, “I love getting to learn new moves with our flags. It really is a lot of fun.”

Each member of the Color Guard practices multiple times a week, doing their utmost to master their skills and learn their routines so that each Friday night is absolutely flawless. To Lucy, hard work paying off may just be one of the most wonderful parts of being on the team.

“We’ve worked extremely hard on our routines, and it feels amazing to be able to show that to everyone,” she said.

This year’s football season is bound to be one of our best yet, and for the Color Guard Team specifically, there is most certainly a lot that is in store.

“I’m really excited for this season, and can’t wait to see what it will bring!” Lucy Bish said.

Come support the color guard and others! Football tickets are bought upon entry $2 for students.

Are You “...Ready For It?”

The Taylor Swift Club Debuts at PRHS

ELLA BARKLEY STAFF WRITER

If it is one thing that most people can agree on, it's that Taylor Swift could easily take over the world. She has a huge reputation and her "Swiftie" fan base is one of the biggest in the globe. With 10 albums and a total of 237 songs, Swift rose to fame very quickly over the past 17 years and has become one of the greatest singer/songwriters in all of the world. With this being said, juniors Anna Karmanos and Jake Pazin, founders of the Taylor Swift Club, are massive fans and they knew that it would be an amazing idea to create a Taylor Swift Club at PRHS.

“We thought that Pine-Richland needed a way for the Swiftie community to get together, and knew that if we wanted it to happen, we had to be the ones to create it,” said Jake Pazin.

They were originally inspired by Brown University's Taylor Swift Club and thought that it would be the perfect opportunity to create one at a high school level to encourage students to see how much she brings people together. With the attention this club is getting already without its first meeting, Karmanos and Pazin knew how much of a hit this idea would be and were excited to embrace the fame that it is getting throughout the school.

This new and fascinating club at Pine-Richland is scheduled to have its first meeting in October where they will discuss what it is about and what they hope to accomplish. Locations and times for these meetings have not been finalized, but will be shared as soon as possible.

Now you may ask what makes this club so different from the other clubs offered at Pine-Richland? This club gives students of all ages the opportunity to connect different genres of Swift's music with the PR community. Swifties are so passionate about the things that they love and will go to great lengths in order to express themselves. During these meetings, members will analyze song lyrics and music videos through discussion with others, as well as examine the impact she has on people and the way she has evolved as an artist over the years. There will be fun activities to do and of course listen to all of her music while doing so.

Co-President Jake Pazin at the Eras Tour this past summer

While some people are new to Taylor Swift, Karmanos and Pazin have been listening to her for as long as they can remember. They have grown up listening to her music on the radio and have been Swifties since day one. And as you can probably guess, they both attended the Eras Tour in Pittsburgh this past summer and had the time of their lives.

“I had an amazing time, and I always go back and re-watch the videos I filmed to try and relive the experience. It created such a wonderful family memory and was very worth it,” said Anna Karmanos.

The club members' main goal is to try and create a comforting environment where anyone is welcomed. Students are able to make new friendships, appreciate Swift's music, and feel connected to the community.

Continued...

After these two juniors graduate, they hope to have underclassmen take over this club in order to make it a solid contributor to the plentiful extracurricular activities offered at Pine-Richland High School.

“Many people have already expressed interest in officer positions, so we don’t think there will be any issue of finding people to run the club once we leave,” Pazin said.

Who is the head coach?

Tommy Campanella

Are there assistant coaches?

There are no official assistant coaches yet because the season has yet to start, but Bruce Ledon has been helping with the team.

When is the season?

Girls wrestling takes place in the winter.

How many girls are on the team so far?

26 girls are officially on the team as of right now.

How many practices do you have a week?

During the off-season (right now) there are three practices a week on Monday, Wednesday, and Thursday at 5-6:30. But once the season rolls around practices are held every day after school.

Where are practices?

Practices are currently being held in the wrestling room, above the pool, but they will be in the gym once the renovation is done.

Can girls still join?

The team is still happily accepting new athletes.

Who’s idea was it to start the team?

Giada Campanella and her dad, Tommy Campanella, decided to start the team because she was so passionate about wrestling.

What else should we know?

Campanella has said that the program is looking for female coaches who are interested in joining the coaching staff. Women's wrestling is the fastest-growing sport in the United States and it continues to develop every week. Lastly, Giada informed me that colleges are looking for girls on wrestling teams, and are more likely to get a scholarship just from being on the team.

Heaven On Earth: Thoughts on the Lana Del Rey Concert

ELLA DAVIS STAFF WRITER

After eagerly waiting outside of The Pavilion At Starlake outdoor venue, it was finally time to see my favorite artist perform live. It has been five years since her last concert, "LA To The Moon," which was a tour based on her album "Lust For Life." Walking into the venue, you feel a rush of excitement, as this is a once in a lifetime experience. This may have been my only time seeing Lana Del Rey live and I deeply admire her music.

Lana's line for

View of the stage by Ella Davis

Everyone was wearing outfits that fit the singer's aesthetics including red heart sunglasses paired with jean skirts and lacy tops. Everyone there matched all of different album aesthetics. The anticipation that everyone felt while waiting in merchandise and everyone was getting chills just seeing the stage from afar.

The lights dimmed and the whole venue began screaming with excitement. Her backup singers and band players walked out onto the stage and her piano player began playing a familiar melody that made everyone freeze. In a matter of seconds, she was walking out onto stage singing a fan favorite song, NFR. Uproars of screams and sobs praised Del Rey. I found myself crying with tears of joy, as I had loved this song and it felt so surreal to be able to see her in person after listening to her music for so long. Her smile lit up the entire area.

She then began singing A&W and the flashing lights and beat of the music got everyone moving and dancing. Throughout the entire concert she sang some of her most popular songs Bartender, The Grants, Chemtrails Over The Country Club, Cherry, Blue Jeans, Pretty When You Cry, Summertime Sadness, Ride, Did You Know There's A Tunnel Under Ocean Blvd, Young And Beautiful, and Diet Mountain Dew.

Pittsburgh was her second to last stop on her tour. At the end of her show, she played her album title track, "Did You Know There's A Tunnel Under Ocean Blvd" and everyone turned their phone flashlights on and swayed to the music. For one of her songs "Video Games," she swung on a swing decorated with flowers across the stage. Everyone was singing together and everyone felt so connected.

Pine-Richland student, Annabelle Burk, described the concert as "Life changing and the best concert I have ever been to."

Even though this concert wasn't as elaborate as Taylor Swift's "Eras Tour," after attending both, I would say that they are both equal in comparison. This concert truly was an intimate experience. There were only 22,000 people as opposed to an entire stadium, and it just felt like you got to know her better as a person. This concert was by far one of the best concerts that I have ever been to. Words cannot describe how much I admire Lana Del Rey and her performance only made me appreciate her more. Her vocals were on point and she sang each song effortlessly.

Every person there felt the same love for her music and this was a night that I will cherish forever.

The Rampage is a student-created publication of Pine-Richland High School, 700 Warrendale Road, Gibsonia, PA 15044. The newsroom is room 221.

The RAMPAGE is available online every Thursday under the high school Resources Tab. It is written by students, for students, and will make every attempt to report all school-related news. We welcome freelance submissions, suggestions, comments, and story ideas from students and staff. Since this is a student-publication, we realize we make mistakes: we encourage readers to report mistakes to the staff writers; you may win a prize if you locate any/all mistakes.
