

Weymouth Township School is eager to answer all questions and resolve any issues that may be of concern.

To ask questions or discuss the services currently being provided, a parent/guardian should first reach out to the G&T teacher. If a parent/guardian has a concern or complaint about G&T services in the district, they should begin by reviewing the information that the district has provided regarding the gifted and talented services that it offers. This information may be found on the district website on the curriculum page.

If questions remain, the parent/guardian should contact the Supervisor of Instruction.

If there are further concerns, the parent/guardian should contact the superintendent. The superintendent will respond in writing.

Finally, if there is a complaint or dispute, you may take it to the NJDOE Commissioner of Education, as per the directions here:

*“If you have been unable to resolve issues by navigating the four local levels, there are several ways to bring issues to the attention of the Department of Education. Every county has an office with personnel who can help resolve issues if you have exhausted all avenues in the district.
