

The Great Depression and the New Deal

The Causes and Consequences of America's most significant economic downturn

Mr. Sean McAtee
Iroquois High School -
U.S. History & Government
Elma, New York

The 1920s had been a period of prosperity - good economic times

Black Tuesday - Oct. 29, 1929 -
Crash of the NY Stock Exchange
Caused panic - and an economic depression that would last until
World War II

Financial Collapse

- Banks had invested in the stock market
- and lost money in the crash
- After the stock market crash, many Americans panicked and withdrew their money from banks
- Banks did not always have enough cash on-hand to give meet their obligations - causing them to fail (go bankrupt)
 - In 1929 - 600 banks failed
- By 1933 - 11,000 of the 25,000 banks in the U.S. had collapsed

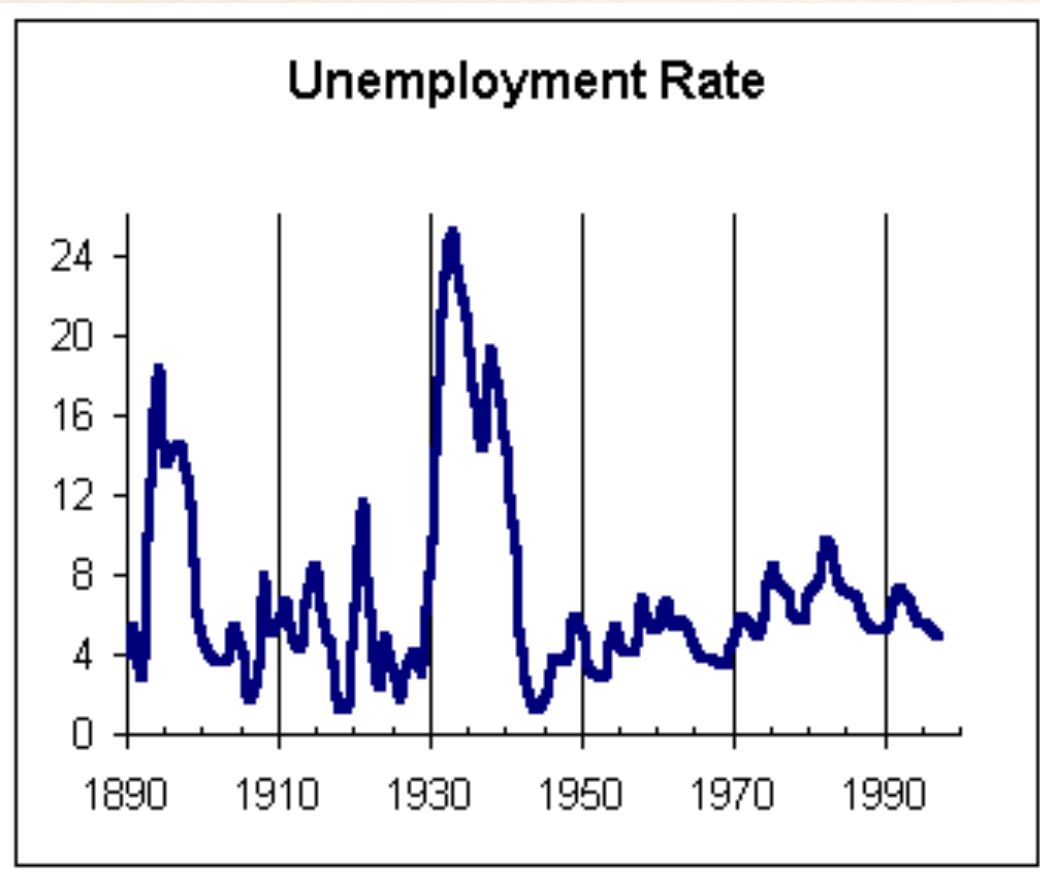

Bank run 1929, Los Angeles

GNP Drops, Unemployment Soars

Between 1928-1932, the U.S. Gross National Product (GNP) - the total output of the nation's goods and services - fell nearly 50%

90,000 businesses went bankrupt

Unemployment increased
3% in 1929
to 25% in 1932

Causes of the Great Depression

Unequal Distribution of wealth
Big gap between “the rich” and common people; Farmers continue to struggle

Excessive Buying on Credit
Efforts to pay-off loans leads to underconsumption

Weak Banking System
Banks were not required to hold adequate reserves ($)

Causes of the Great Depression

Inadequate Government Policy

Little regulation of markets, excessive speculation.

Tax policy favors wealthy,
lax enforcement of anti-trust laws

Weak International Economy

WW I had caused depression in Europe.

Tariffs hurt international trade.

The Dust Bowl

A severe drought began in the Great Plains in the early 1930s

Wind scattered topsoil, exposing sand and grit. The dust often traveled hundreds of miles

One storm in 1934 picked up millions of tons of dust, and carried it to the East Coast.

These hard times began in 1931 and lasted until 1939

Kansas Farmer, 1933

Dust storm approaching Stratford, Texas - 1934

Storm approaching Elkhart, Kansas in 1937

Smoot - Hawley Tariff (1930)

Put in place the highest tariff rate in American history.

GOAL - Protect American businesses from foreign competition

European nations respond by enacting high tariffs as well - reduced trade for all nations.

Representative Willis C. Hawley (left) and Senator Reed Smoot

U.S. exports to Europe fell from $2.3 billion in 1929 to $784 million in 1932.

U.S. imports from Europe declined from $1.3 billion in 1929 to $390 million in 1932

Hoover's Response to the Depression

Believed the economy would “Fix Itself”

Economic policy = laissez faire

Encouraged Americans to buy American-made products

Goal - stimulate the economy

Organized private relief agencies

Hoover did not believe that the government should provide direct relief to people in need

Reconstruction Finance Corporation (1932)

Loans to businesses

Hoover's Trickle-Down Solution

RFC

Americans React to Hoover

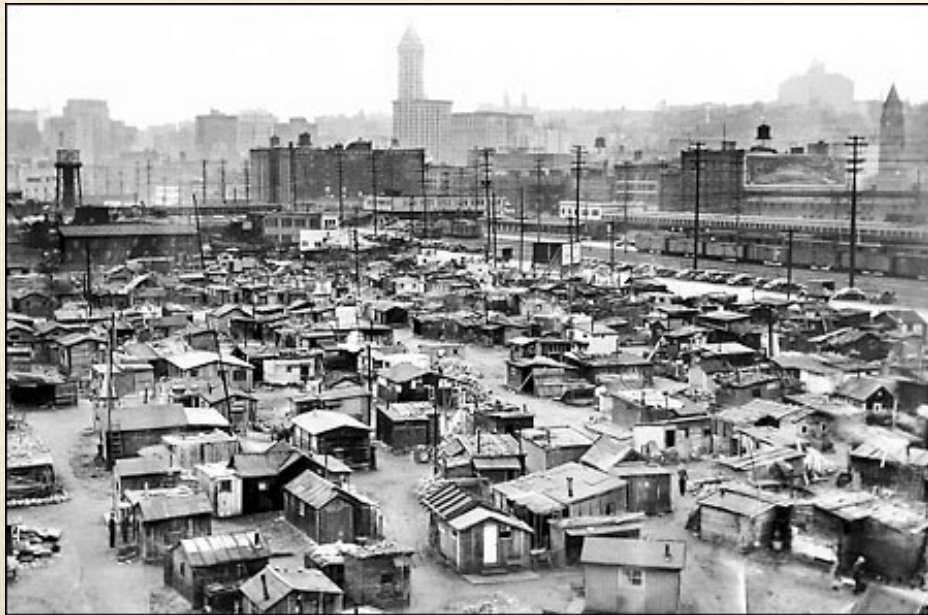

Hoover was very unpopular with the American people

Hoover did not support giving direct aid to individuals —
Rugged Individualism

Many felt that Hoover cared more about the wealthy / business owners than the “common” people

Slums were the homeless lived — “Hoovervilles”

Hooverville - Seattle, WA.

FDR Elected President 1932

Roosevelt defeated Herbert Hoover

FDR promised government action to help end the Depression
A ‘new deal’ between the American people and the federal government

Goals of the New Deal

Relief (help those with needs)

Recovery (fix the economy)

Reform (to prevent another crash)

Franklin Roosevelt and the New Deal

Franklin Roosevelt and the New Deal

New Deal - government action to end the Great Depression

Step 1 - Fix the Banks

Bank Holiday Announced -

March 6, 1933

- Less than 36 hours after taking presidential oath, FDR orders that all banks in U.S. be shut down so that they can be inspected by the government
- Banks that are “healthy” will be allowed to re-open - Emergency Banking Act 1933
- FDR gave first “Fireside Chat” to explain what had been done, and why the banks were now safe

*When banks re-opened, people once again deposited their money.
Confidence in the banks had been restored!*

In time, much of FDR's New Deal legislation would be challenged in court

FDR's opponents felt that FDR, and the Executive Branch, had become too powerful

Hear Ye! Hear Ye! Iear Ye!

Supreme Court Rules Against New Deal Programs

Schechter [Poultry Corp.] v. U.S. (1935)

- The NRA (National Recovery Administration) was declared unconstitutional
- Federal government has the power to regulate interstate commerce [between states], but not commerce within one state.
- NRA “codes” were developed by agents of the Executive Branch. The court ruled that these “codes” were like laws, and therefore were a function reserved for the legislature

U.S. v. Butler (1936)

- The AAA (Agricultural Adjustment Admin.) was declared unconstitutional. Farming is a state issue, not a national issue

W. O. STIEL

FDR wins Re-Election in 1936

With his easy victory, FDR felt that he had been given a mandate to continue New Deal policies

Court Packing (Re-organization) Plan

- FDR believed that the court was slowing America's economic recovery
- Wants to increase the number of justices (to pack the court) from 9 to 15
- There was much opposition to this plan, so FDR withdrew it

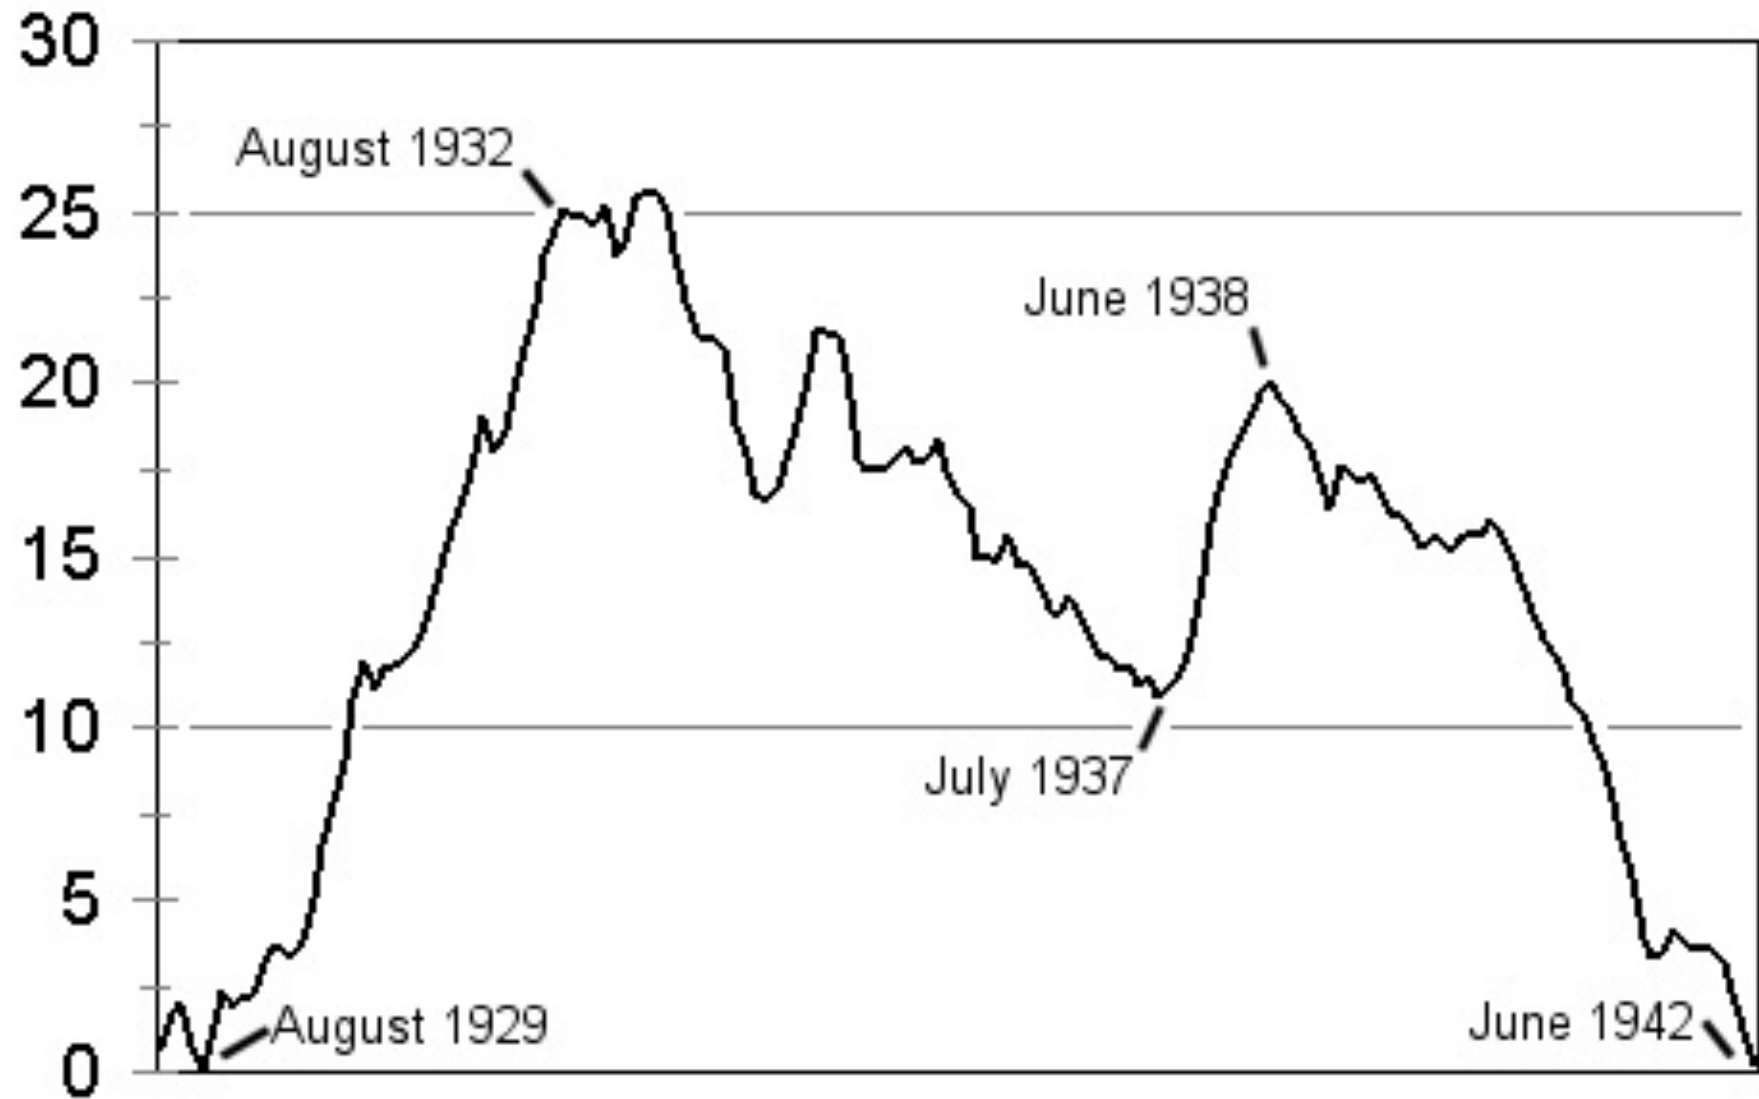

In time, sitting justices retired - FDR got to appoint new justices - (total of 8) that would approve New Deal Legislation!
