- Body-

-this is a person walking through life

-These are different identities being displayed

- Outside-

-On the outside are oppressive stereotypes, some negative, some positive.

-they are all very damaging in some way in terms of pressure to live up to expectations, or feeling like you're not enough or wrong.

-Also the stereotypes are very loud and saturated, coming from the world around us....

-The stitching further represents intersectionality, a tangle of identities can work together and affect you

- Clarity ring

-around this person is a ring of clarity

-We can see beautiful and truthful words like..

-and the ring of clarity or truth helps this person to confidently without the appease of others helps them walk through life.

-it feels very freeing

-I learned it truly is best to mind your business in terms of what you think people can or cannot do, be, and try your best to undo all stereotypical conditioning

-Try to be this person with yourself, and you will help others to do so. With truth like this, you hopefully can move through your life as beautifully and smoothly as this person seems to be walking.
