

Magnitude of Numbers

Students use reasoning skills and their understanding of numbers to order numbers and understand their value in relation to other numbers. For example, 198 is close to 200, so it is about the same amount as 200 and it comes just before 200.

Number lines allow students to better understand relationships between numbers and to better understand the relative magnitude of numbers.