

A scale factor represents the ratio of two corresponding lengths in similar geometric shapes. Two shapes must be similar for the scale factor between the two of them to be a relevant ratio. To compute the scale factor, one should divide the length of one shape's side by the corresponding length of the other shape's side.