

Native Wildflowers at Dary Prairie

Cup Plant: A tall yellow perennial native that grows up to 8 feet tall. It has square stems and leaves with cuplike bases that hold water.

Compass Plant: A tall yellow, coarse, sunflower-like perennial that grows up to 3-10 feet high.

False Wild Indigo: It grows in bushy clumps, 3-4 feet tall and wide when mature. The leaves are a soft blue, green mix. The flowers are pale to intense indigo blue and produce in mid-spring. Flowering lasts for just 2-3 weeks.

Purple Coneflower: A perennial that grows 1-3 feet tall. It has large lavender flowers with a spiny dome shaped orange or brown center. It's stems have small, rough hairs. Flowers usually bloom in early summer from June to July.
