Synopsis

Theseus, the Duke of Athens, is planning his wedding to Hippolyta, the Queen of the Amazons, which will happen in four days. Egeus, a noble Athenian, tries to dissuade his daughter, Hermia, from marrying the man she loves, Lysander. He demands that she marry another man that loves her, Demetrius. Theseus tells Hermia that she has until the day of his wedding to decide if she will marry Demetrius or become a nun. In answer to that, Hermia and Lysander decide to flee Athens through the forest to Lysander's aunt's house. They tell Helena, who loves Demetrius, who then decides to tell him. In another scene, we meet a troop of inexperienced actors who are putting on the play of "Pyramus and Thisbe" for Theseus' wedding. They decide to rehearse in the forest. In the forest live the fairies where the king is Oberon and the queen Titania. These two characters are fighting over a small boy. Oberon, who wants revenge on Titania for keeping the young boy, seeks help from Puck, his servant who is known to cause trouble. He asks him to find a flower with special love powers and pour the juice into Titania's eyes to make her fall in love with the first thing she sees. At the same time, Helena follows Demetrius into the forest and he repeats to her that he does not love her, but only Hermia. Oberon feels bad for Helena and asks Puck to pour juice on Demetrius. When Titania wakes up, the first thing she sees is Bottom, an actor rehearsing for his play, that now has a donkey head because Puck cursed him. Titania falls in love with him and begs him to stay at her side. On the other hand, Puck has accidentally poured the juice on both Lysander and Demetrius, so both of them fall in love with Helena. Hermia becomes mad at Helena and blames her for stealing Lysander's love. Oberon feels bad for Titania and reverses the love spell; Puck reverses the love spell on Lysander so he loves Hermia again. At the end of the play, all of the characters gather at Theseus' wedding where the lovers also get married and everyone watches the play of "Pyramus and Thisbe".
