A watercolor illustration featuring a variety of fresh vegetables and herbs arranged around a central white circle. The items include red bell peppers, green cucumbers, red tomatoes on the vine, purple basil leaves, green olives on branches, purple garlic bulbs, green broccoli, and red chili peppers. The background is a soft, textured orange. The central text is in a dark brown, serif font.

STEALING SULLIVAN'S DINNER

TABLE OF CONTENTS

- ABOUT THE AUTHOR (PAGE 3)
- FAVORITE SNACKS (PAGE 4)
- GERMAN CHOCOLATE CAKE (PAGE 5–6)
- RECIPE #2
- RECIPE #3
- RECIPE #4
- RECIPE #5
- RECIPE #6
- RECIPE #7
- EPILOGUE (PAGE #)

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

I was born and raised in the Houston, Texas area.

My mom raised me by herself, along with my older brothers...

ALL TIME FAVORITES

MAC AND CHEESE

CHIPS AND DIP

ORANGE DANISHES

POPCORN

BROCCOLI

GERMAN CHOCOLATE CAKE

BACKGROUND

My birthday was only two days before my Grandpa's; I was born on July 4th and my grandpa was the 6th. It was tradition when I was still very young to share my birthday with him. The type of cake I'd get would vary year-to-year, but Poppy always requested the same one: Nana's German Chocolate cake. Even though we haven't had a shared birthday party in almost two decades, every time I eat, smell, or see German Chocolate cake, I think of Poppy and how he would let me blow out both of our candles.

GERMAN CHOCOLATE CAKE RECIPE

MY FOOD JOURNEY

Despite not growing up in a traditional household with a strong attachment to our roots, this put me at an advantage...

