

2007-08 Conestoga Valley School District Distinguished Alumni

John P. Lines, Class of 1985

John Lines is the Director of Public Relations and Corporate Communications at the Lancaster General health system. He has served as the spokesperson for major events, including the Amish schoolhouse shooting at Nickel Mines and the birth of quintuplets at Women and Babies Hospital. Prior to joining Lancaster General 11 years ago, Lines was a reporter for the Intelligencer Journal. In the community, he has served as a West Lampeter Township supervisor and has volunteered for several community organizations. He earned his bachelor's degree in communications from Temple University and a certificate in corporate community relations from Boston College. Lines is also a graduate of Leadership Lancaster.

Donna Leicy Willingham, Class of 1973

After graduating from CV, Donna Willingham went on to earn a bachelor's degree from Indiana University in Bloomington, Ind. She started her career playing in the Ft. Worth Symphony for four years. In 1980, she earned her Master of Music degree in violin from Texas Women's University in Denton, Texas. While working on her doctorate at Washington University in St. Louis, Willingham did freelance work, playing the violin and teaching at the Conservatory of Music in St. Louis and Missouri Baptist College. She moved to Annapolis, Md. in 1984 where she taught in public schools for five years before joining the President's Own U.S. Marine Band. In her current role as a violinist with the U.S. Marine Chamber Orchestra, Willingham plays for White House state dinners and other White House receptions.