Four DCSD Teachers Receive Boettcher Foundation Recognition Award

Four Douglas County School District teachers have been selected as recipients of the Boettcher Foundation's Teacher Recognition Award. This annual award honors the educators who had the greatest influence on the 2018 class of Boettcher Scholars. Only 42 teachers in the state of Colorado received this year's award.

Congratulations to these outstanding educators:

- Olivia Holland, ThunderRidge High School
- Deborah Lynch, Highlands Ranch High School
- Anna Tesdahl, Rock Canyon High School
- David Wexler, Highlands Ranch High School

Each of these teachers was nominated by one of their students, who was recently named a Boettcher Scholar.

"We know that the success of our Boettcher Scholars is a direct result of the commitment made by their teachers, and this is a small but meaningful way of expressing our gratitude for their dedication to Colorado's students," said Tiffany Anderson, the Boettcher Foundation's scholarship program director.

Recipients of the Boettcher Teacher Recognition Award are recognized with a personalized plaque, a special tribute from the student who selected them and a $1,000 grant to be used for a project or activity to benefit students at their school.
