Message to the Alumni

by CLARK D. CHILD '66
President of
Woodstock Academy
Alumni Association

Dear Alumni and Friends,

I wish to thank each and every one of you who has contributed to the Alumni Association during the past year.

Last Fall the Association sent out a questionnaire which received a very favorable response. We asked for your suggestions about all phases of the Association and especially whether or not you wished the Gleaner to continue. In response to your feelings in that questionnaire, and through the financial generosity of some seventy local business organizations, we have been able, I am pleased to report, to once again bring the Gleaner to publication.

The format has been altered somewhat in this year's Gleaner. These alterations are due partly to your suggestions as to what you wanted to see published in it, and also partly to defray the ever rising costs of publication.

The Association also received many other suggestions from its members throughout the country on how it might, in the future, become more prolific. Although these suggestions were very interesting and sincere, it has been impossible, with the manpower and time available, to put all of these into effect this current school year. This does not mean, however, that they have been forgotten. Again, I wish to thank each of you who has contributed this year and promise you that every effort will be made to carry out as many of these suggestions as possible for the future benefit of the Association.

If there is anyone who may have additional suggestions about this edition of The Gleaner or any other Alumni-operated activities, please do not hesitate to drop a note to the Alumni Office in care of the Academy. All correspondence is kept on file and brought before the executive committee at regular meetings.

I sincerely hope that you enjoy this issue of the Gleaner.

Happy Reading,

Clark

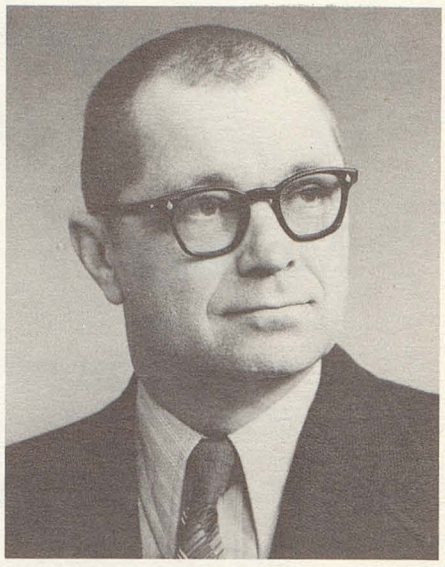
Random Thoughts from the Headmaster's Desk

by Allan D. Walker,
Headmaster



Congratulations to Clark Child for mustering the energy and enthusiasm necessary to ensure the publication of The Gleaner. And thanks to everyone who has worked so hard on it - especially the editor, Barbara Hawkins.

As the interval between Gleaners increases, it becomes more and more difficult to decide which of many random thoughts may be included in this short article because so many interesting and exciting things are happening at the Woodstock Academy.

First, a couple of perplexing problems. As violence, vandalism, disruption and drug abuse become more and more prevalent in secondary schools throughout this country, we here at the Academy find it more and more difficult to insulate ourselves from those kinds of problems. Secondly, as we are expected to cater to a wider and wider range of abilities in our student body, our faculty faces a continuing challenge in developing appropriate curricula to meet these expanding needs - a challenge particularly difficult to meet at a time when we are under terrific pressure to minimize increases in costs. Third, escalating costs in every phase of the school business, and particularly the energy crunch, cause many headaches. However, it is to the great credit of our Board of Trustees that they have managed to hold our increase in per pupil cost to less than 3% for the coming year.

Several bright spots around the campus: Our Special Education program has got off to a wonderful start and is functioning smoothly. Electronics/Power Mechanics courses have proved to be an attractive addition to the curriculum for a great many students. Our Q courses (short courses of infinite variety offered during the old "activity period", taught by nearly every member of the taculty) have proved to be popular and have added a whole new dimension to the possibilities for course selection for our young people. Our Guidance and Counseling services have been broadened, extended, and remarkably improved to the immense benefit of the entire student body. Our various athletic teams have met with overall excellent success and our math team has consistently tallied remarkably high scores in the Worcester County Mathematics League in competition with excellent calibre very large schools. Follow-up studies on our graduates show that they are making excellent records in college and have a remarkable retention rate there, and that many of our graduates have found their way from high school directly into some excellent career opportunities.

I am pleased to be able to report to the Alumni that we continue to have an excellent faculty, very well trained and remarkably interested in our young people. The faculty has been able to meet the challenge of developing increasingly rigorous academic challenges for the outstanding students and, at the same time, remarkably expand services to those young people who are having a wide variety of academic difficulties.

A recent in-depth study of the New England Academy conducted by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges has revealed that there are a substantial number of New England academies thriving and flourishing, as well as several throughout the northern tier of states extending throughout the midwest.

Recent months have found us spending substantial amounts of our time and resources in the courts and battling with the Freedom of Information Commission - time and money which we would much rather have spent serving our young people directly. These kinds of hassles are particularly distressing. Institutions of all kinds, and more particularly private institutions, already bear the burden of substantial government intrusion into what were originally wholly private concepts. The continued diminution of the privileges of private ownership and direction serves only to hasten the day when the community and such institutions will sever their relationship, and

by RICHARD NOREN,
President
Woodstock Academy
Board of Trustees

Woodstock Academy is often looked upon as unique — a privately endowed secondary school, governed by a Board of Trustees, chartered by the General Assembly, yet providing educational services to public Boards of Education on a contractual basis for towns which do not maintain high schools of their own.

Historically, however, the private Academy was far from unusual and has had a long, and enviable, record of educational excellence and service — a record which is detailed in an informative and delightful book entitled Old New England Academies Founded Before 1826 by Harriet Webster Marr, a copy of which I recently acquired, and which frequently mentions Woodstock. Most of the institutions which it describes have ceased to function as private schools largely because of the advent of free public secondary education. But throughout New England many remain, providing the same service that Woodstock Academy provides, although only two others — Norwich Free Academy and Gilbert School — continue to exist in Connecticut.

How, and how well, they and we fulfill that function is detailed in a recent study funded by a grant from the Rockefeller Brothers Fund entitled The New England Academy — A Private School in a Public Role. One of the conclusions drawn from that study, in which Woodstock Academy participated, is that the endowed private Academy provides a greater degree of flexibility in meeting the need for quality education at a reasonable cost because of the relative freedom of the policy makers, the Board of Trustees, from the pressure of the political marketplace.

There are those who would change that role and who would, consciously or unconsciously, remove that independence and thus the flexibility. Recent proposals in the Legislature unilaterally and probably unconstitutionally to amend the Charter of Woodstock Academy, to prescribe its curriculum, and to make public our records, like their counterparts before administrative bodies such as the Freedom of Information Commission to open all our records and meetings to the public will have this effect — of removing the independence of the Trustees in establishing policy and subverting that independence to the pressures of the political marketplace. What is really being sought is political control over the Trustees and thus political control over our policies.

Otto Kraushaar, in describing the rationale and strength of private schools says the following.

"The ingredients of a good, productive school are no mystery, and they are not essentially different today than they were fifty years ago. The first element is sensitive leadership by a principal or head who has a genuine interest in the education of children; he or she must be sufficiently free of bureaucratic impediments so that he can select the teachers and plan a program which he can administer with enthusiasm and pride. The second is a teacher corps expressly selected for just that school, selected not only for their teaching skills, but for the personal qualities each teacher can bring to the classroom and to personal relationships with students and colleagues. The third ingredient is the presence of some tone-setting uniting bond, whether it is religious, class, ethnic or racial background of the students, their level of intellectual ability, or a neighborhood with a strong sense of identity and community. The bond must be strong enough to accommodate a measure of heterogeneity and to assimilate divers members to a common standard. The fourth element is parent and community involvement in support of the school. Ideally, a good school is an extension of the home, and the two are mutually supportive." He should have incorporated the strength which the Board of Trustees provides — their intellectual, physical and financial resources.

The Woodstock Academy has all the ingredients which Kraushaar mentions plus that which I added, the independent Board of Trustees. To remove that independence is to insure that the Board will wither and cease to function, taking from the Academy the resources which it now

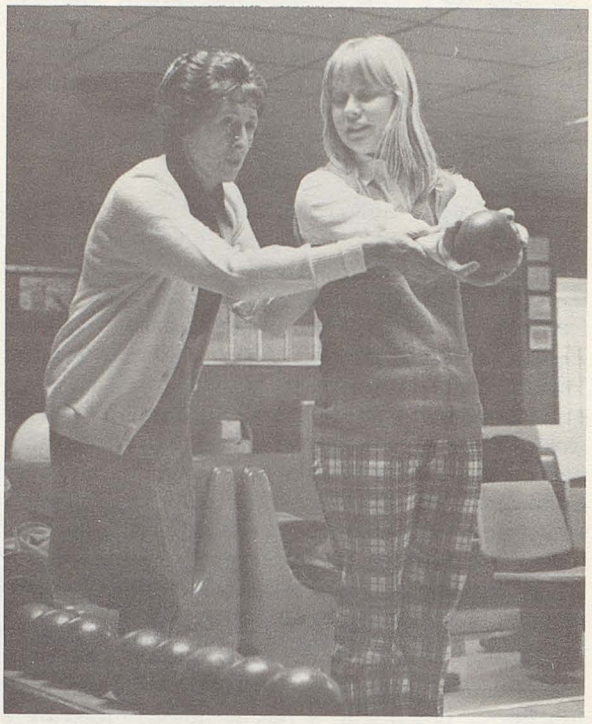
Mrs. Cecelia Ingraham — "Lady"

by KRISTEN E. CROTEAU



Allan D. Walker, Headmaster, in several conversations with different school administrators, has found Woodstock Academy being accused of turning out a girls' athletic factory. The fact is that Woodstock girls have shown athletic potential and the Academy has had a good girls' coach to develop this potential.

In 18 years of coaching, girls' coach Cecelia Ingraham has never had a losing season. Having a genuine interest in all sports, she has coached softball during all of her coaching years, basketball for 17 years, soccer and volleyball for 4 years, and field hockey for 3 years; the newest of her endeavors in coaching being soccer for girls.

As well as becoming interested in these sports in order to teach and introduce them to young high school girls, she involves herself in other sports for her own enjoyment. "Lady", the name she has always gone by, is an extremely active golfer. As past president of the Worcester County Women's Golf Association and a member of the Women's Golf Association of Massachusetts, she has been club champion of Nichols College Golf Club from 1959 to 1975, and club champion of Thompson Raceway Golf Club from 1971 to the present date.

Aside from golf, she has played semi-pro softball in the past and, being an active member of a bowling league, has bowled in several state and world candlepin tournaments. She has also shared her skills and knowledge in bowling by creating a girls' candlepin league at Woodstock Academy which she has coached for twelve years.

At this point, one can only conclude that the Woodstock Academy has in its midst, a most dedicated, active girls' coach. The type of dedication that Lady has shown has led to successful girls' teams in all the sports she has coached. She has produced girls' basketball teams which have compiled an overall record of 324 wins and 50 losses and girls' softball teams compiling a record of 178 wins and 33 losses. But can this trend of success simply be the result of a coach's dedication?

The answer is quite obviously negative. In order to produce winning teams a coach must be dedicated but must also have a special relationship with her team. Most definitely, a good knowledge of the sport and general coaching technique is also important, but perhaps the basis of a good team is the relationship existing between the coach and the team.

Mrs. Ingraham has all the qualities necessary to be a good coach but she excells in establishing this good relationship with her players. Having experienced team and individual sports under her supervision for four years, I have been able to observe her qualities and techniques. To build an understanding with her team she begins by respecting each member as a person first, and then as an athlete. She asks for respect in return and a best foot forward at all times. Every girl must show this respect by competing in games with good sportsmanship.

Perhaps Mrs. Ingraham's nickname says it all. She is always a "Lady" and she expects her girls to be ladies also. They always have been ladies; Woodstock has been known for its good conduct on and off the playing surface. Faithful fans admire the coach and the team for this quality.

Glee Club Trip to Washington

The Academy Glee Club and Director Daniel H. Graves were singularly honored during February 1976 when they performed in Washington, D. C., at the annual convention of the National Association of Secondary School Principals. The Glee Club was invited to perform for the NASSP by Headmaster Allan D. Walker, who was president of the NASSP, because in his nationwide travels during the past few years on NASSP business he had heard many singing groups from many schools from all over the country and knew that the Academy group was as good as any of the groups he had heard - and better than some - and because he knew he could present the Academy Glee Club with pride. Funds to defer the expenses of the four-day trip were raised by operating a barbecued beef booth at the Woodstock Fair the previous Labor Day weekend, selling Christmas trees, generous contributions from friends of the Academy, and by digging into the Glee Club treasury, using money from its concerts.

Two chartered buses filled with singers and chaperones left the Academy early the morning of Wednesday, February 11, and arrived late during the afternoon at the Key Bridge Marriott Motel, where the group stayed for its three nights in Washington. After dinner the first night, a tour of illuminated Washington was conducted with stops at the Jefferson, Lincoln, and Iwo Jima Memorials.

Other sightseeing events during the three-day stay included a tour of the White House, Arlington National Cemetery, Mount Vernon, the Capitol, the Supreme Court, and the Library of Congress.

Thursday a noon concert was sung at the John F. Kennedy Center for Performing Arts, the Capitol's principal center for concerts and cultural events, the Glee Club participating in the 1976 Bicentennial Showcase/Special Projects of the Alliance for Arts Education, administered by the Kennedy Center and the U. S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

A Thursday evening concert was presented at the Congressional Country Club at the NASSP President's Dinner, to which were invited officers and members of the Board of Directors, past presidents of NASSP, and senior members of the NASSP headquarters staff in Reston, Virginia, and their spouses. The oft-hidden whimsy of Headmaster Walker revealed itself when he introduced the Glee Club to his dinner guests, saying, "I know almost all of you are heads of schools having several thousand students. You, Leroy, I know to head a school pushing 5,000 students. So I take very special pride in presenting to you the Woodstock Academy Glee Club, which is one-fourth my school."

Friday afternoon the Glee Club sang at the Sheraton-Park Hotel for the National Advisory Council of the NASSP, comprised of all officers and members of the Board of Directors, all past presidents of NASSP, and three officers of each of the state associations.

In spite of the busy schedule of three concerts and organized tours, the students had time for shopping and visiting places of particular interest to them - these ranging from the Smithsonian Institution to the National Gallery, to the New Hirshhorn Museum of Sculpture and Modern Art.

The singers presented an unscheduled mini-concert: While wandering about the Jefferson Memorial during the tour of illuminated Washington, the group was assembled by Mr. Graves, who led them in "Jefferson," part of Four American Portraits by Earl George. The Department of Interior guard on duty was careful to assure that the group sang not in the Memorial but on the steps because the Academy had not obtained a permit for a public demonstration or performance. It was a thrilling few minutes - singing about Jefferson in the light and shadows of his Memorial with illuminated Washington all about.

Students on one of the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority buses, which served for sightseeing and transportation in Washington, formed a respect and affection for the driver, Mr. Joseph Jackson, a truly genuine person, interesting raconteur, and friendly and knowledgeable guide for the city. They renamed him Joe Metro, made him honorary member of the Joe Metro Fan Club, and invited him to the 1976 graduation at the Academy. Joe and his wife and children spent the graduation weekend in Woodstock Valley and attended the commencement exercises, at which Joe was presented with an honorary diploma. Joe told Academy chaperones that doing his work with the Washington Metro he has met thousands of students from all over the country and that he had early become impressed with Academy students because of their courtesy, friendliness, and excellent conduct, and formed a special attachment to them.

RANDOM THOUGHTS

taxpayers, against their local interest and judgment, may be required to look to academic alternatives rather than specifically chartered institutions such as the Academy.

Particular thanks to so many of the alumni who have supported us with such enthusiasm over the past many months since our last communication. And again an earnest and honest invitation to all alumni to feel free to call us or contact us by letter concerning your thoughts, ideas, aspirations, and criticisms of what is happening on this campus.

A last and particularly optimistic and hopeful note. Woodstock Academy students will soon be the beneficiaries of a remarkably fine athletic field suitable for full-sized soccer field, surrounded by regulation-sized grass running track at the Woodstock Fair Grounds. At literally almost no cost, because of the magnificent cooperation and nearly unbelievable contributions of a large number of citizens in the towns that we serve - contributions amounting to the equivalent of many, many thousands of dollars of donated equipment and labor - all originally contingent on the fact that the Woodstock Agricultural Society was willing to let us use some of their property for this purpose, this was accomplished. Suitable publicity and other ceremonies will, hopefully, appropriately thank each individual responsible. Suffice it here to say that these magnificent contributions will materially improve our facilities to the benefit of the young people. It has been an immense source of encouragement and support from a tremendous cross section of people in our towns, support for which the students, faculty, administration and trustees are all immensely grateful.

Best wishes to our entire alumni body - I hope to be hearing from many of you soon.

provides. Taking those resources will make it impossible to provide the other necessary ingredients.

Woodstock Academy is not unique, but it, like its fellow private schools fulfilling public roles, does provide unique strengths, strengths which cannot exist under political control. Politicized, Woodstock Academy, now in its one hundred and seventy-fifth year will, in effect, cease to exist, a real loss, not only to the Academy, but also to the towns we serve and, most importantly, to the students of the area.

To sum up a story of success, Woodstock Academy has had a good combination in girls' sports for a very long time. Lady is very simply an outstanding person. Her colleagues respect and admire her for her hard work. She, in fact, works hard for her players. Luckily, she has had girls who have wanted to work hard for her also. At times, because she is so concerned for individuals, she has been taken advantage of by team members. But overall, taking the good with the bad, she has been rewarded by frequently observing in her girls the good qualities which she has exemplified in herself.

She has also been recently rewarded in a more materialistic way having received the Outstanding Coach of the Year Award in girls' softball for 1976. This is awarded by the Connecticut High School Coaches' Association. If there were an award large enough to say all the things that need to be said about this woman, I would most certainly present it to her.

Being unable to find such an award, I find it suitable that we respectfully tip our hats to this "Lady" for 18 years of hard work, and undoubtedly, for more to come.

MRS. MARY BOWEN KEITH writes she has one son, Lawrence Keith, three grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

1898

HENRY J. POTTER moved to Cape Cod in early December of 1974, where he has several relatives, one being MABEL EDDY MORSE, class of 1907.

LESLIE P. HARRIS was 95 years old on April 10, 1975 and he reports he is pretty well for his age. He and his wife live in Statesville, North Carolina. They keep busy with church and club activities.

MRS. GERTRUDE TABER HOWARD reports that she is fine and living in West Hartford. Her older son, Harvey, has just retired from General Motors Corp. Her other son, Bob, is associated with the Fred S. James Insurance Brokers in Hartford.

MRS. FLORENCE BARBER WASHBURN was honored last year on her 90th birthday. Florence attends church every Sunday and teaches a class in Sunday School.

BERNICE LEAVITT was honored by her fellow church members on her 89th birthday for "being not only a loyal and faithful church member, but for being a good friend to many over the years". Bernice lives in Lakeland, Florida and was visited by some Woodstock relatives over the summer.

VICE ADM. F. W. ROCKWELL, USN Ret. of St. Simons Island, Ga. celebrated his 90th birthday in July with four generations of children, grandchildren, great-grandchildren, relatives and friends. The Admiral is in good health and enjoys narrating his experiences in World Wars I and II during his 40 years with the Navy.

ETHEL E. UPHAM writes: "The two Woodstock members of the class of 1906, LOTTIE HOWARD SPALDING and myself were glad to celebrate the 70th anniversary of our graduation by attending the Alumni Banquet in June, 1976.

1908

MRS. HAZEL DAVENPORT LEWIS resides in Harrisburg, Pa. and says she is in good health for her 85 years.

HARRY L. TRASK's only news is he spent a 13-day vacation in the hospital and except for trouble with one leg is feeling fine.

1910

LOUISA CLARK writes: "Seven of us took a camper's trip to Florida Keys and Everglades and compared the different kinds of weather, land and cool breezes from Tampa to the Keys. The camping sites were crowded. We got the idea of calling ahead several days to make reservations for a campsite."

1911

MRS. BLANCHE PERRY BOSWORTH, who lives in Pomfret Center, is always pleased to see or hear from Academy friends.

1912

MRS. GRACE ELLA MYERS lives with her daughter, Mary White in Quincy, Mass.

WILLIAM RICHARDSON writes: "Just put down an 80 year old member of the class of 1913 is still around. My health is fairly good and hope to visit Woodstock again at least one more time."

From IDA SPALDING MASTER we hear: "For most people life begins at 40; not with me, life begins at 80 and I enjoy every minute of it." Besides her trip to Hawaii, she went as a chaperone with her Granddaughter's singing group, the Ambassadors Chorale, to Switzerland and Germany. She also enjoys her Grandson's activities. He is part of the Santa Ana Winds, the official band of Disneyland.

ROLFE NELSON LYON of Pomfret Center is still striving to bring family genealogies up to date. He needs vital statistics regarding Academy Students. Upon request he will send an individual his family tree as he has it at the present.

MRS. SUSAN SUMNER REYNOLDS reports that Jotham and she are happy just living on Lyonsdale Farm, but are not doing much work. A garden, a few apples and two ponies keep them out of mischief. She sends greetings and best wishes to all and wants to keep in touch with others through the Gleaner.

MRS. AGNES WHITE STONE has found the past year to be a difficult one adjusting to being alone after her husband's long illness. She spent a month in Connecticut and Massachusetts this last summer and enjoyed her grandchildren and great-grandchildren and a few old friends. Agnes would welcome anyone from Woodstock who happened to be in her area to visit.

MRS. MABEL RICHARDSON HILL of Middletown, Conn. writes she has three grandchildren. The oldest granddaughter attends Ithaca College in New York.

MRS. HARRIET SAMPSON PITT writes: "Two results of my research in early Woodstock history have been printed in 1976. 'Apple Molasses or the Discovery of a Gentleman at Woodstock' was in the fall issue of Galaxy, the magazine published by Old Sturbridge Village, and 'Samuel Sewall and the Town He Named Woodstock', which grew out of my work on 'Apple-Molasses', appeared as a booklet sponsored by the Woodstock Historical Society.

MRS. GRETCHEN MCKAY has spent two months in California with her son Dick and family. She drove out with a friend and flew home.

GEORGE M. WILCOX writes: "After spending 35 years in the grain business, I had to retire in February 1961; on November 1st of the same year I went to Florida to visit my oldest daughter; I hired a building at Boynton Beach and went into the antique business. I was at Boynton Beach for 9 years. Then as the building was sold, I moved north 7 miles to Lake Worth, where I stayed until last June. My daughter moved out to California last July, and as I live with her, I came along. We live in San Jose, but I have a small store at 325 East Campbell Ave., Campbell, California."

AGNES PETERSON has nothing new to report except she still enjoys life on the farm, which is a busy, happy life.

MRS. MARGUERITE BOSWORTH MAY reports that she and Stuart are still at home in East Woodstock.

1920

In February 1975 the HAROLD F. JOHNSTON's took a 7,000 mile trip out west as far as Arizona and then down through Texas. Along the way he was able to collect and identify 100 different kinds of wild flowers.

MRS. MYRTLE WARE PLACE and husband George welcome any friends to call on them. They live in Webster, Mass.

MISS JULIA SWENSON
East Woodstock, Conn. 06244

In late 1974 C. LEONARD ANDERSON and his wife Elizabeth, class of 1924, moved from their large house to the smaller one next door. They enjoy their granddaughter, Tiffany Lyn Refior, who is the daughter of Margaret, class of 1963 and Wendell Refior of Manchester, N. H. Their older daughter Dorothy Bowman and her husband are in Nebraska.

BEATRICE HEALY WHAPLES is enjoying her home and gardening in Storrs, Ct., where she attends UCONN Athletic and Theatre events. She took two trips this past year; driving from Florida to New Mexico in the spring and from Connecticut to Montana in the fall.

1923

MRS. ALICE CROSS HEMENWAY writes: "I have returned to work at the Concord Animal Hospital after two months leave recuperating because of total hip surgery performed at Emerson Hospital."

1924

Secretary:
MRS. C. LEONARD ANDERSON
(ELIZABETH ROLLINS)
RR 2 Woodstock, Conn. 06281

REUBEN T. SWANSON and his wife were expecting a visit from their daughter and two grandsons, who are living in Edinburgh, Scotland.

1925

WALTER H. ANDERSON and his wife continue to keep busy in retirement with golf, some fishing, and community and church activities. They would be happy to see anyone from Woodstock who happens to be in the Ormond Beach, Florida area.

DONALD WILLIAMS has been connected with the Woodstock Fair for 31 years and is still going strong. He and his wife Hope enjoyed cruising the intra-coastal waterway to Florida last fall.

ERNEST H. PECKHAM writes that he and his wife are keeping busy with home duties and Ernest works part-time at the Woodstock Golf Club.

KENNETH ANDREWS, SR. is driving the "Taxi" in Putnam and enjoying it very much.

NILS S. SHENNING works as a volunteer at Manchester Memorial Hospital now he has retired. Golf, fraternal clubs and church keep him active, as well as his hospital duty.

LAURA CROSS PRINGLE and her husband enjoyed her 50th reunion in June. They spent the summer visiting their sons and families.

SARAH HEALEY PEDERSEN submitted this summary of their 50th reunion:

Eleven members of the Class of 1926 accompanied by husbands and wives, met at the home of Franklin and Marie Wetherell for a social hour before our 50th Anniversary banquet. Franklin is now retired, but by the looks of his yard and garden I think he must keep busy. Some were there who had not seen other classmates since we graduated 50 years ago.

Two of our number who moved away from town before we graduated returned to be with us, namely Burton Harrison and his wife, who have recently retired to Woodstock and both are occupying some of their time at Sturbridge Village. Also Burton's sister Elizabeth and her husband Rowland Cutler who live in Sudbury, Mass. where they have greenhouses.

The one coming the farthest was Laura Cross Pringle and her husband George, who came from Lake Wales, Florida, where they have retired. They have two sons and five grandchildren.

Nils Shenning and wife Helen came from Manchester. They are now retired and making themselves useful as very happy grandparents.

Raymond Anderson and wife were here from Glastonbury, Ct. He also is retired, but keeps his hand in his son's Insurance business in an advisory capacity.

Edith Colburn and husband Karl can still outrun us all. Edith still works, takes care of her home and is a busy mother and grandmother and her latch string is always out to them all and to all her friends at her home in Woodstock.

Stewart Morse and wife Janet live in East Woodstock and have one son Stewart Michael and three grandchildren, Seth, Joel and Jared. Stewart and wife Barbara, also W. A. graduates, now live in Virginia.

Ernest Peckham and wife Alice also live in Woodstock where Ernest still keeps busy and works a few days each week at Roseland Park.

Sarah Healy Pedersen and husband Vilhelm now retired, live in South Woodstock. Sarah has just completed two years as Matron of Betty Putnam Chapter Eastern Star and attended the Grand Chapter session each year in Hartford.

Eleanor Peterson Lawton and husband Robert live at Alexander's Lake in Dayville.

We were sorry Selma Johnson could not be here. She is in Kentucky. She is retired, but is staying with a friend who is not well. Some of us were glad to see her when she was home in March.

Fifty years seemed but as yesterday
Some looked older
Some were thinner, some were fatter,
But after all, what did it matter?

Old Friends, much chatter
Remember when, way back then?
Bringing us all up to date
Many incidents to relate.

I heard someone say
I haven't seen you for 50 years.
Can you imagine such a way
To treat your friends in this age and day?
When we no longer depend on horse and carriage
Or skates and sleds on icy roads;
A plane or a car are much faster
by far.
So let's not wait so long again,
Let's get together now and then.

Sarah H. Pedersen

WARREN P. PECKHAM is enjoying retirement and is getting to see some places and people that he hasn't seen for many years.

MRS. E. REBECCA HIBBARD WEBER is still working full time as a supervisor in the Outpatient Dept. at the Beth Israel Hospital in Boston. Recently Rebecca and her sister, Elsie, class of 1930, spent a week in Puerto Rico and St. Thomas.

MRS. ELSIE JOHNSON WOOD keeps busy with a part-time job and family.

Secretary:
Miss Elinor Perrin
RR 1 Woodstock, Conn. 06281

FLORENCE JOHNSON DODGE writes that she has two grandchildren. She and her husband Bryant Dodge enjoy vacationing along the New England Coast, and as a hobby she likes to hike, garden and do woodworking.

1932

Secretary:
Mrs. Elmer White
(Geneva Cross)
Box 16
Thompson, Conn. 06277

DONALD CHILD and his wife EDITH TOURTELLOTTE CHILD (class of 1933) retired this year and were happy to spend the summer in New England with their daughter. They would love to have anyone stop by who is in the vicinity of Largo, Fla. Edith says that although Don is completely blind, she has a hard time keeping up with him.

GENEVA CROSS WHITE can be found most every day at her shoe store in Putnam. She and Elmer have three grandchildren. Her daughter Jane is a teacher, and her husband is assistant principal at Tourtellotte. Her son Justin is Service Forester for the State of Conn. Daughter Sally is a member of the Air Force Reserves and specializes in Graphics.

EDNA HIBBARD has just completed 18 years in Mansfield in the Training School. She writes, "I expect that 1977 will find me working with a different type of resident because of a recent promotion. I shall miss my blind musicians."

EVELYN MORGAN WEIMAN is still a ballgame fan and she and her husband still take in all the games at the Academy, be it baseball, basketball or soccer. They are also great fishermen.
