Dear Alumnus,

Judging from the mail we have received regarding alumni interest in the Gleaner, we know you enjoy reading about your former classmates. Because of the interest you have displayed in continuing the publication of the Gleaner we know the efforts of the many people who spent hours gathering news, typing news and helping with advertising have not been in vain. Unless we hear otherwise, we will continue the fine tradition of publishing the Gleaner every other year.

I wish to thank everyone who helped in the preparation of this edition of the Gleaner.

Sincerely,

Barbara Hawkins

Barbara Hawkins, Editor

P.S. Please write to us to let us know your feelings about this issue of the Gleaner. We would like to hear from you. Just write to:

Message to the Alumni

by CHUCK BENTLEY, Alumni President

I wish to thank all of the individuals and committees responsible for making this Gleaner possible. Many people put in long, hard hours to accomplish this task. Also, I would like to express my appreciation to our many sponsors, without whose support this undertaking would not have been possible.

In recent years there have been some outspoken critics of the Academy. It is interesting to note that in most instances the critics of the Academy are not people who have attended our school. We, the Alumni, have much more intimate knowledge of the Academy from which to form our opinions, and understand the importance of passing along to our children the same educational opportunity and environment we were privileged to have.

The Alumni who support and believe in the Academy's ability to provide an excellent education can express their support through a strong Alumni Association.

The Alumni Association is attempting to reestablish the communication to you that is so necessary to maintain your support. One of the first projects we addressed was the publication of this Gleaner, and we hope to be able to continue with it on an annual basis. With the publication costs continually rising, it becomes increasingly difficult each year and your support becomes more critical. Hopefully, through increased advertising revenues and your support, we can accomplish this and enjoy the Gleaner every year.

Alumni Banquet 1980

Secretary's Report

The 1978 Alumni Banquet was held June 10 at 7:30 p.m. in the Field House on the Academy campus with an attendance of approximately 250. Jonron Associate of Andover, Ct., catered the affair with German food as the main theme.

Mrs. Lucy Parkerton and Mrs. ''Lady'' Ingraham were the Alumni's honored guests as they were both retiring from the Academy. The Class members were introduced and welcomed into the Alumni Association. The Alumni Scholarship was awarded to Pamela Putnam. Clark Child, President of the Alumni, introduced the honor classes beginning with two members from the oldest honor class of 1918 celebrating their 60th anniversary.

Mr. Child called the business meeting to order. The Secretary's and Treasurer's Reports were presented in a written report and were accepted as presented. The slate of officers for 1978-79 were:

President	Clark Child
First Vice President	Chuck Bentley
Second Vice President	Barbara Hawkins
Secretary	Marcia W. Tingley
Treasurer	Jane W. St. Onge

A motion was made and seconded that the slate be accepted as presented. The motion passed. As there was not further business, the meeting was adjourned.

Respectfully submitted,

Jottings in the 1923 Diary of a Woodstock Academy Teacher*

January 12

Woodstock Academy.
Went to Putnam to a basketball game in a truck. We all stopped at the Academy for cocoa, etc., served by Mr. Childs (the Principal).

January 18

It was my day to lead chapel.

January 20

At home. (Saturday)
Spent most of the day reading Monte Christo. Expect to take my French class to see it in movie, in Putnam Monday.

January 22

Twenty members of French class and I went to see Monte Christo. Very good, though quite a little change from the book.

January 24

Saw exciting basketball games at Academy. Boys and girls games. Both victories for us.

March 2

Academy prevailed on me to stay over last night. After school we had a faculty basketball game, in which the women won, score 32-24. In evening boys had a game and won.

A MESSAGE FROM THE HEADMASTER

by RICHARD J. MCKAY

As is the way of life and events in Woodstock, the roots of the GLEANER run deep in time. From a Philomathean Society periodical founded in 1872, the first member of THE GLEANER was issued on March 6, 1874 and was edited by Anna L. Comings, Wallace P. Dick, Susan E. Morse and George L. Scarborough. Perhaps Woodstock's agrarian heritage contributed to the title of THE GLEANER in that a gleaner gathers grain left by reapers and also collects little by little and with patient effort. Gleanings contained herein are attributable to the patient efforts of Charles W. Bentley, Jr., President of the Alumni Association, and to Barbara Hawkins, Editor-in-Chief. Both serve as members of the Academy's Board of Trustees.

In beginning the academic year 1980-1981, the student body and faculty gathered in the Alumni Fieldhouse on a bright September morning. It was my first opportunity as Headmaster of Woodstock Academy to address the school family and I took some time to reflect upon the long and distinguished history of the school. Many purposeful people have served the school as headmasters, master teachers and as effective workers. Generations upon generations of young men and women have received a firm foundation of education on this lovely little hilltop site and they have gone on to become the cornerstones of this community, the region, the state of Connecticut and to the United States of America. The impact of Woodstock Academy in helping to spring forth people of substance and of worth has been to a measure equalled by few institutions of learning in this country, including colleges and universities. So it is to a profoundly deep and proud heritage that we look to in providing for the present and planning for the future.

Currently, Woodstock Academy is in its second year of a ten year continuing membership in the New England Association of Schools and Colleges. It is important to note that in recent years fewer and fewer institutions are receiving ten year continuing memberships. For example, fewer than fifty percent of public comprehensive high schools are in the ten year category. The Headmaster is now required to develop a two year report to the Commission on Independent Schools and we must react to the recommendations of The Visiting Committee comprised of administrators and teachers from independent schools throughout New England. We have been asked to provide single leadership in each of our major departments, develop basic organizational changes, and to bring about facilities improvements in vocational/technical education and in our library. In responding to the recommendations by the New England Association, we have developed a document which we have shared with the Executive Committee of the Board dealing with long range needs for improving educational facilities at Woodstock Academy. Dr. George J. Collins, former Associate Commissioner for Education for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts worked with me in putting that document together. It is important for me to restate the fact that we are working on plans to meet the specific major recommendations of the Visiting Committee from the New England Association of Schools and Colleges.

For the second year, the State of Connecticut has completed competency testing of ninth graders. In composite scores in English, mathematics and reading, Woodstock Academy students did very well indeed. Our composite scores were the best in our region and too, our basic test scores placed us in the lead in comparison to our sister schools in the state. It is the faculty's aim to go well beyond minimal competency standards, and we have developed a writing skills program which brings Dr. Sandra Stotsky of the staff at Harvard and Curry Colleges to us monthly in an in-

Trustees' Report

David Boyd
President
Woodstock Academy
Board of Trustees

These are times of rapid change, and Woodstock Academy is in a period of transition. At this time it is essential that we remember the Academy's historical role as a private institution serving public needs. While we as Trustees must adjust to change in the attitude of the public we serve, we must remember that we are Trustees of an institution that has survived one hundred and seventy-eight years through eras as turbulent, if not more than, our own. Our challenge now is to preserve the values that have kept the Academy apart and distinctive from other secondary schools.

What are these values? The question is increasingly raised, and it is very difficult to articulate a response that does not offend someone somehow. I will not attempt to ponder them in any depth here. We are concerned that governmental intrusion will, however well intended, require more and more time of our administrators to the detriment of the students they are serving. We are concerned that we will lose some of our autonomy, our own right to decide what is best for Academy students, through the same process.

Several events have occurred during the past year which will have some impact on the Academy. Our teachers have decided to accept the rights and duties of public school teachers, which means primarily that we will negotiate their contracts with them as if they were so. Our courts have decided that we are a public agency for purposes of the Freedom of Information Act. Just how these events will affect us is yet to be determined. It is my feeling, that if we approach the situation calmly and rationally, the Academy will continue to function without any impairment to the quality of education we have attained.

After twenty years of service as our Academy's Headmaster, Allan Walker resigned in the winter of 1980. We are proud that the prestigious town of Litchfield, Conn., has chosen Mr. Walker to be the principal of its high school. This is a tribute to our former Headmaster and to the school he has served so well. The Litchfield Board of Education was not unmindful of Mr. Walker's and the Academy's record.

The very difficult task of finding a successor Headmaster became the charge of our search committee. The committee's chairman, Jay Milnor, a professional educator with considerable experience in these matters, warned the search committee at the onstart that its work would be overwhelming. It was.

Now we have elected a man who comes to the Academy with a profound respect for the school. He has abundant energy and tremendous optimism, and both of these qualities are infectious. I know we will all enthusiastically work with him.

Despite its demands, one year after accepting the nominations for President (while on summer vacation when I temporarily lose my mind), I am excited about the Academy's immediate future. We have a very fine school with a potential for excellence. My hope is that in the process of attaining that excellence, we will attract more students by earning an appropriate reputation. This will have both economic benefits, in holding tution rates at reasonable levels, and obvious educational rewards. The next school year will be challenging for all.

HEADMASTER'S MESSAGE

service program with both our English and social studies departments. All of us are deeply concerned about the development of writing skills and verbal communication skills at Woodstock Academy.

In the fall of the year, Woodstock Academy experienced one of its most successful combined records in sports for both men and women. Both the boys' and girls' soccer teams were in the playoffs and our cross country teams distinguished themselves as well. Thus far in the winter months, all of our teams have superb winning records and the girls' basketball team has already qualified for the playoffs. I must indicate, however, that many of us have been displeased with our overall crowd behavior and I have recently met with each of our classes at the school in order to review our expectancies of them both within and without the school. The shining image of Woodstock Academy must be preserved and perpetuated.

A serious consideration for Woodstock Academy is the fact that we will be experiencing declining enrollments in the mid 1980's. Historically Pomfret has been closely tied to the accomplishments of the Academy and Pomfret students have distinguished themselves here. Vital to us is the need to retain a relationship with the Pomfret School Board so that students from that community may continue to have the choice to attend Woodstock Academy. Incidentally, since August, there has been a close interchange of ideas and frequent meetings with administrative staff and teachers from the Woodstock, Pomfret, and Eastford elementary schools.

Some two weeks ago a new desk was completed for the office of the Headmaster. The traditional piece was built by a company run by a grandfather and father of Woodstock students and was built specifically by a grandfather of one of our seniors. The front of the desk displays the profile of Thomas Williams, first headmaster at Woodstock Academy in 1801, and the bell tower of the Academy building. It is my deepest hope that the logic and good sense which have been so much a part of the very fiber of Woodstock Academy will continue in interchanges in this office and in the school. As the Academy approaches a decade which will bring it into two hundred years of existance, it is my sincere hope that we will continue to produce individuals with character and deep moral strength.

An Adventure at the Catrocks*

by ETHEL E. UPHAM, 1906

"Come, girls, get up, it's four o'clock!" called my brother Paul outside the window of the room where Marion and I were asleep. "It's going to be pleasant, and hot, too!" he added.

The day was the last which Marion and Arthur,our Iowa cousins, were to spend with us, and we had planned to take them on an eighteen-mile drive to the Catrocks. The Catrocks are in the Connecticut town of Union, of which we are accustomed to say, "Out of the world into Union." The date was the thirty-first of August, the last and worst day of a month of hot, dry weather.

At half-past five we were on our way, and at eight o'clock we came to Union village. An hour later we were approaching the last farmhouse on the road, where we should have to leave our team. It was extremely hot. "There ought to be showers," said Paul, with a critical glance at the sky, "but all signs fail in dry weather."

From the farmhouse to the Catrocks is a distance of nearly three miles, not too long a walk for us under ordinary conditions. But on this particular day, the heat in the woods, where not a breath of air was stirring, was intense, and that and the hordes of mosquitoes, the boxes of lunch which we carried, and the warmth of our khaki suits, all conspired to give us a very uncomfortable hour.

At length we reached our destination, but it was nearly noon before anyone felt sufficient energy to do any exploring. Then the boys clambered down among the rocks. As they descended, Marion and I listened to their voices, which grew more distant and reverberated and echoed among the rocks until their words became almost unintelligible.

"Hark!" said I, "what are they saying?" and I went to the edge of the precipice to listen. Arthur's voice sounded from below: "Come down and see the cave we've found!" Accordingly, we made our way slowly down the preciptious wall of rock.

The entrance to the cave which the boys had found was very narrow and low, but once inside, there was plenty of room. At the back a crevice extended away up for many feet, and looking up, we could just see a little patch of blue sky and some green pine needles. "This is the chimney," Arthur said. The cave was quite the coolest place we had been in that day, and when its darkness had been illuminated by a pine torch, we voted it a very satisfactory dining room, and decided to have our lunch there.

We had hardly finished eating when we realized that it was growing darker outside. We ran out to investigate. From the northwest great black clouds were moving slowly up; uglier-looking clouds I never saw. "We are surely going to have a shower," said Paul, but glad as we would be to have the much-needed rain, I noticed there was no pleasurable anticipation in his voice. Moment by moment the gloom increased. We began to see it lighten, and then to hear the first mutterings of distant thunder. "Lucky we have our cave," said Arthur, trying to laugh. Darker and darker it grew; the lightning became blinding, and the thunder, one incessant deafening roar.

At length there came an awful flash, and a terrific burst of thunder. And before our astonished eyes the whole forest seemed to leap into flame. "Quick! into the cave, the woods are afire!" shouted someone. Into the cave we leaped,into inky blackness, for the torch had gone out. We huddled together in a frightened group until the smoke from the burning forest began to pour in on us. Then it seemed as if we were caught in a deathtrap. It was Marion who thought of a way to save us. Quick as a flash she tore off her khaki skirt and told me to do the same. Then in pairs we took

The Cellar Ferns of Woodstock Academy*

Are ferns now growing in the basement of Woodstock Academy? Probably not. But once not so long ago, several kinds of ferns adapted themselves to a natural environment inside the Academy.

This is how it happened. In 1873 when the cellar for a new Academy building had been completed, the north wall was unusual. It was not a newly-constructed wall, as the others were. Instead, it consisted of high rocks, covered with ferns that had been there before construction began.

After the building itself was completed, some light, but not too much, entered the cellar. Also the cellar was damp. Rocks, subdued light, and adequate moisture are the natural habitat for ferns, and they continued to grow well. I could enjoy seeing them, for my home was in Woodstock, and I was a language teacher at the Academy.

My brother, Alan W. Upham, was a graduate of the Academy (1903) and a piano teacher in Boston. Like other alumni, he knew about the Academy ferns. But, even more, he had made a study of all the ferns in Woodstock. In the Gleaner for 1925 he wrote a six-page article enumerating and naming them. There were thirty species and several varieties. About this time he joined the Connecticut Botanical Society and broadened his interest in botany to include all the wildflowers of Windham County.*

Among the members of the Connecticut Botanical Society and one of my brother's friends was a Hartford botanist who in 1924 was invited to become a research associate at the Gray Herbarium at Harvard University named for its founder, Asa Gray. In changing his headquarters from Hartford to Cambridge, this eminent botanist and his wife often passed through Woodstock. On one such trip the botanist stopped at the Academy to see a particular fern he had heard was growing in the unusual habitat of the Academy cellar. He introduced himself to the principal, who in turn, introduced him to me. I took him into the cellar and showed him the ferns growing there. I also met his wife who was waiting in their car and they both urged me to attend the coming botanical meetings in Cambridge and Boston, and to visit them. I accepted and greatly enjoyed these botanical contacts.

Not long afterward I joined the Connecticut Botanical Society. I often went with my brother on the botanizing trips into the fields, meadows and woodlands of the state, arranged by the Botanical Society. Often my brother was a leader of a group that was searching for plants.

Thus I found myself gradually becoming a botanist. In the meantime I had learned to be a typist. With these two new interests, combined with my long familiarity with the Latin language, I started a new career. Ultimately, for ten years, I was an herbarium assistant, first at the Arnold Arboretum in Jamaica Plain and later at Harvard's Gray Herbarium in Cambridge. At the Arboretum and later I did editorial work on its Journal of the Arnold Arboretum.

Before I went to the Arboretum, I was for eight years editor of the Woodstock Academy Gleaner. Later, from time to time, I wrote several short stories.

I hope the Gleaner will publish this reminiscence. It is a true short story, but, secretly, I should like to submit it as a fairy tale, the title of which might be "How the Magic of Cellar Ferns Changed a Language Teacher into a Botanist."

*A Reminiscence by Ethel E. Upham (1906); Faculty, 1918-1925; 1928-1929; editor of the Gleaner, 1935-1942. With the assistance of Lois Bannister Merk.

by GLENN ANDERSON, Junior Varsity Coach

The 1979-1980 Boys' Junior Varsity Basketball Team had an undefeated, 19-0 record. They won the Q.V.C. North League Championship and went on to defeat Griswold in the Q.V.C. Tourney to capture the League Crown.

The one outstanding characteristic of this year's squad was the total team effort that went into the successful season. Eight different players were high scorers in different contests. We offered our opposition a balanced scoring attack led by Randy Lynch (11 pts.), Jim Whitehouse (10 pts.), Chris Phillipi (9 pts.), Bruce Lavallee (8 pts.), Steve Rapose (7 pts.), Jay Erickson (5 pts.), Doug Mayhew (4 pts.), Tim Kelly, Todd Willougby and Greg Messier (3 pts.), and David Saltonstall and Eric Reidemeister (1 pt.) per contest. We outscored our opponents by an average of 25 points per game.

The following boys led us in some of the vital statistics.

1. Steve Rapose—Best free throw percentage
2. Bruce Lavallee—Most assists
3. Randy Lynch—High scorer, most steals, best defensive player
4. Chris Phillipi—Most rebounds
5. Jim Whitehouse and Doug Mayhew—Most improved

This season was probably a once in a lifetime experience for myself and the team. I really enjoyed coaching these boys because of the type of persons they were off the court as well as on the court. I wish them continued success on the varsity level next year.

turns blocking up the cave's entrance with our skirts. Time and again they caught fire, but the boys stamped it out.

Even with the help of this barrier, I believe we would have suffocated if it had not been for our chimney, which drew the smoke that penetrated within the cave. To Marion's thought, and to the chimney, I am certain we owe our lives.

At last, with a mighty rush that drowned the thunder, the rain came. And such a rain! All the clouds of heaven must have combined to effect our release from the cave and our escape from death. The water came down in bucketfulls, and our chimney ran a flood. We were saved!

When the rain was over and we dared look outside, the fire was out and the charred trunks of trees were steaming. Slowly we made our way through the ruined bit of forest, with the pungent odor of smoke in our nostrils, then through the dripping green woods where the fire had not penetrated. Four sorry-looking young people we were when we reached the farmhouse, and so utterly weary that we could hardly stand. Our story was received with amazement, for the family had seen and suspected nothing of the fire. Quickly the farmer hitched up our horse, who, sniffing the freshened air, started away at a trot that brought us home in two-thirds of the time the trip in the morning had taken.

And I am sure that never in my life, though I live to be a hundred, will the sight of home be so welcome as it was on that night.

Through The Years

GERTRUDE TABER HOWARD. "Hello" to my classmates and friends, from Simsbury, Conn. I am a resident of McLean Home and am able to go walking daily, something I truly enjoy. I have pleasant memories of my years at Woodstock Academy."

FLORENCE BARBER WASHBURN writes, "There were fifteen in our class. I do not know how many are living. We are old people now. I am living with my daughter. A few days ago, my husband, Rev. Charles J. Washburn, died. I send greetings to those who remember me."

1904

BERNICE LEAVITT. In January I moved to a retirement home. I have a two-room-and-bath-apartment. I get all meals at the dining room. This is not a nursing home. All must be able to care for themselves and be ambulatory. The church bus comes to the home each Sunday to take me to church.

1905

HELEN HAMMOND MATHEWS writes, "In Woodstock again! After two years as a student at Woodstock Academy in the early 1900's, and after having an article of mine published in the Gleaner when I was a South Pacific resident, I am living in Woodstock again. Special greetings to any of my classmates of 90 years or older.

1906

ELIZABETH CARR GROSJEAN is living at the Matulaitis Nursing Home in Putnam.

ETHEL UPHAM lives at her home in East Woodstock, and has worked with Barbara Hawkins, Editor of this issue of the Gleaner, on an article which you will find elsewhere in this year's Gleaner.

HAZEL DAVENPORT LEWIS writes "I am well and nearly 90 years old. I am writing my family history, that of the Davenport family of Pomfret, Conn. Please do send me the new Gleaner."

HARRY L. TRASK. In 1978 Harry fractured his hip and after six months in the Day Kimball Hospital he went to Westview Convalescent Center in Attawaugan. Harry received a letter in July, 1980, from the Chief of the Boy Scouts of America congratulating him on his 50 years in the Scouting Movement, as well as a citation from the Indian Trail Council, a small bronze plaque with his name on one half and '50' on the other, and a fifty-year veteran card.

LYLE W. TURNER. "Sorry there is nothing new or interesting about me. I've been at Medford Leas in Medford, N.J., eight years now—very comfortable, but quite inactive. I shall look forward to the Gleaner."

1910

LOUISA HOWARD CLARK. "There's not much change, but I keep myself busy making stuffed elephants and small dolls which my niece sells in her shop."

1912

HELEN PERLEY CORNELL says that she has nothing special to report, but that she did take the three-day Heritage Tour of Cape Cod in June and enjoyed it.

JARDA CARLSON LINDE writes "I am still enjoying my home and taking short trips. I have recently been to Delphi, New York, and to Maine and New Hampshire."

IDA (SPALDING) MASTERS - Ida resides in Irvine, California, and because of the energy problems, her travels have been limited to areas in California. Her prime interest has been in art and during the past year she has completed 16 oil paintings, five of them portraits, including one of her father, Dr. Joseph Spalding, who was a practicing physician in Woodstock for 46 years.

1914

ARTHUR ANDERSON writes "We have just moved to a new retirement center in Clemson, S.C. Fifty-six apartments are completed and forty more to be ready soon. We have our own dining hall and infirmary. This is owned by the people who live here. My daughter, Marjorie, and her family have just moved from Los Angeles to Tucson, Ariz., and my son, Alan, and his family still live in Holden, Mass. We love it here and have wonderful neighbors.

ROLFE N. LYON writes from Pomfret Center, "Nothing new."

SUSAN SUMNER REYNOLDS and her husband, Jotham, are living on their farm in Woodstock, and are happy but not too rugged. They celebrated their 44th wedding anniversary in April and in June enjoyed a visit from their daughter, Ann, and her family, now living in Grosse Pointe, Mich.

AGNES WHITE STONE writes, "After my husband, Dewey, died, I sold our house and tried apartment living with Cay, my eldest daughter, in Florida. In the summer of 1979 I came north to spend the summer at Betty's, my younger daughter, in Higganum, and landed in the hospital, following a fall causing a fractured hip and cracked spine. I am now in a Convalescent Hospital and have graduated from my wheelchair and walker, and am fairly ambulatory with a cane. It has been wonderful to have my family near enough to come in to see me, but institutional living is by no means like home.

I went to the Academy graduation exercises to see my great-grandson, Brian Saltonstall, receive his diploma. He was a member of the fourth consecutive generation of the family to graduate from the Academy.

Recently, my granddaughter, Cathy, took me up to Woodstock, where I had lunch with my brother and his wife and saw a few old friends. It was truly a delightful day. I should be happy to see any friends who happen to be down in this area of Connecticut."

GRACE HAWKINS HEALEY enjoys her Woodstock home and her afternoons of bridge with her friends, and is happy to have a grandson living nearby in Danielson.

RUTH BATES KEITH writes from Gilbertville, Mass., "I have recovered from a broken hip and am now rejoicing in the birth of my second great-grandchild, Jessica Ruth Sprague, of Leicester. Tempus Fugit!"

HARRIET SAMPSON PITT writes, 'I am blessed by still living in my house between the Academy and the cemetery, both of which I serve as Trustee. Happily I also go on researching and writing. Fellow students of my time will remember the house on the other side of the Academy when it was Bowen property. I wrote about my neighbors there in 'Mrs. Bowen's Bustle.' "

EWART HEALEY. "My wife, Mary, and I now spend six months in Woodstock and six months in Florida, at 802 Rowan Road, New Port Richey, 33552. We think there is no place like Woodstock in the summer and Florida in the winter."

ELEANOR WILLIAMS BACKUS. "I sold my home in West Woodstock three years ago and am living in an apartment on Stone Bridge Road, South Woodstock. I have a daughter, Arline MacFarlane, of Eastford, two granddaughters and a grandson."

OWEN J. WHITE writes, "Quietly enjoying my 63rd graduation from Woodstock Academy at my home in West Hartford; also enjoying my 81st birthday. Regards to all of my former classmates."

THEODORE PERKINS sends us this news from Georgetown, Mass.: "I have just returned from an extended vacation so I am tardy in reporting my activities. As you probably know, I lost my wonderful wife, Beda, in 1979. My sister, Marion, is gravely ill. Elizabeth is very well and keeps busy with her ten grandchildren. I miss my old friends of Woodstock Academy."

JULIA JOHNSON JOHNSON. "Greetings to classmates and friends who were at Woodstock Academy when I was there. I have been a widow for 20 years and am still living alone in my home in Worcester. I am interested in doing things for my church. My daughter and husband and three grandchildren live in Connecticut."

MARGUERITE BOSWORTH MAY sends this message: My husband, Stuart, died in February, 1979. I am now living with my son, Wesley, and his family in their new home, located on the site where our barn used to be. Although my eyesight is poor, I'm in reasonably good health and would enjoy hearing from my friends."

AGNES R. PETERSON. "I am still living on the old homestead with my two brothers. The highlight this summer was a visit from five of our relatives from Sweden whom I had never seen before. They were such lovely people and it was such a thrill to meet them."

GEORGE P. SWANSON writes from Manchester, Conn.: "I have been retired now for fifteen years. I have a great-granddaughter, three years old, who fills my life with sunshine."

OTTO PIKE writes, "Your card caught us away on a trip to Metlakahtla, Alaska, my birthplace, our first vacation in years. I have always wanted to see the place as we left when I was so young I remembered nothing about it. My wife and I went by boat from Seattle through the 'Inside Passage', a beautiful trip. On the way we visited Bob, Ken, and Eunice in Dallas, Texas. It was 107° in Dallas, 52° in Seattle, and 54° in Matlakahtla."

EDITH LOWE FLUGEL writes from Pomfret, Center, Ct. "I am feeling quite well. I play bridge twice a week and I am very active in my Church, the D.A.R. and the American Legion Auxiliary."

MERRILL HEALEY lives at his home in West Hartford and his wife, DOROTHY BUNDY HEALEY, lives near one of their daughters in a Convalescent Home where the family is able to visit.

FLORENCE DEAN PROSSER. "I enjoyed my practice of medicine in Woodstock and surrounding towns for many years. I retired in September, 1979, and enjoyed the winter of 1979-80 at Penny Farms, Florida. I expect to go there each winter and to spend each summer in Woodstock."

HOBART L. SANGER. "Hard to believe that 61 years have passed since graduation. This Eastertime I had the ill fortune to lose my wife and helpmate after fifty years of marriage. This has been a time of adjustment for me, but I am thankful for those many happy years."

JULIA DECHAND SCHWARTZ, married to the late Dr. Louis Schwartz, spends her winters in Orlando, Florida, and her summers at Lake Michigan.

SIGNE HAGSTROM presently resides in Woodstock and is enjoying her second retirement from the Thompson School System. Her son, Robert, recently worked as a carpenter in Alaska and son Richard is president of Hagstrom Consulting, Inc. Signe is busy with family and friends and especially her first great-granddaughter, Jenny.

MYRTLE WARE PLACE married the late George Place. She has been residing in Webster, Mass., for the past ten years. She is enjoying reuniting in Eastern Star associations and ritual work.

OLGA ERICKSON, since retiring from the American Optical office force, has been occupied with the activities of the Putnam Baptist Church. She is involved with Sunday School, Youth Group and musical activities, as well as being the church clerk.

DOROTHY HEALY, we are sad to report, is ill and in a nursing home in Massachusetts.

LOUISE LAWTON has resided on Cape Cod for 25 years and loves it there. She enjoys the visits from her niece and nephew and their families. Louise is reasonably well and is rendering what are considered risque songs of the 1920's. She hopes to visit Woodstock this fall.

FRANK HARRINGTON retired from Westinghouse Electrical Corp. in Chicago in 1967. He then moved to Asheville, N.C., for warmer winters and cooler summers. He has two children, Charles and Claire, and four grandchildren.

HAROLD JOHNSTON retired from Scoville Mfg. Co. on his 65th birthday after thirty-one years as their Patent Attorney. He was Deacon of the First Baptist Church of Waterbury for forty-nine years. His hobby is collecting wild flowers. In excellent health, Harold is still on a self-employed basis at Scoville Co. making their patent drawings. He is enjoying watching his son David's three children grow up.

SYLVIA MAY WHITE retired in 1966 after twenty happy years of teaching kindergarten. She is fortunate to have a son and a daughter both living in Woodstock. Life is rich with family, friends, church, books, music and acres of woods to satisfy her love of nature. She has nine grandchildren and two great-grandsons.

MARVIN A. BARRETT. "Healthy, happy, and busy with golf, home maintenance, and occasional real estate appraisal, an occasional real estate sale, and a few winter months in sunny Florida. Looking forward to many more years of the same."

ANNETTE MAY CLARK and her husband busy themselves with their garden each year, and Annette is most active year-round with the Grange and the Eastern Star.

JULIA SWENSON is presently retired and sharing a home with her brother Arthur.

BEATRICE HEALY WHAPLES resides in Storrs, Conn., and was recently installed as Matron of Betsy Putnam Chapter 106 - O.E. Star. She is involved with home and community activities while enjoying the addition of her second and third great-granddaughters this year.

LEON DECHAND owned his own automobile business in Miami, Florida for over 50 years. He died in Coral Gables, Florida, on November 24, 1976.

ALICE CROSS HEMENWAY after eight years is still working part-time at the Concord Animal Hospital. Enjoys her small apartment. Is a Church deaconess and has taken some interesting bus trips visiting old churches in New England.

LESTER W. GALLUP has lived in Fort Lauderdale, Florida for twenty-two years. He retired as an active employee about eight years ago, but still does some work in the sales field.

ELSA S. JOHNSON lives in Woodstock with two sisters and is enjoying her retirement.

JUDITH JOHNSON FITZPATRICK lives in Woodstock with her husband in the old Elmvale school which they bought and made into a home some years back. She enjoys working in her yard and flower garden.

LUKE EDWARD WHITE graduated U.S. Naval Academy in 1928. In 1955 received L.L.B. and J.D. from George Washington University. Member of Bar of Dist. of Columbia, Florida and Supreme Court of U.S. Following military service entered Federal Civil Service with U.S. Dept. of Justice. In private law practice in Miami 1970-72. In 1974 appointed Administrative Law Judge for the Florida Flood control and two years later became an Assistant Staff Counsel for the Florida Bar, prosecuting cases involving grievances against attorneys and persons engaged in the unauthorized practice of law. Retired in 1979 to enjoy Florida's wonderful climate and its golf courses. Lives with his wife in Titusvill, Florida.

LYDIA TABER WALLING now resides in New Roxbury Village on Butts Road in Woodstock. She enjoys it there and keeps busy with various activities.

ALFRED CARPENTER still lives in Union, Conn.

ERIC ERIKSON lives with his sister Olga at Lakeside in South Woodstock.

CHARLES L. PECKHAM lives with his wife Dorothy in a tenement of their farm which his youngest son Stewart bought in 1979, after returning home in 1976 cutting lumber, building a new barn and remodeling the house, where he, his wife and three children now also live. Charles helps what he can on the farm. Charles' oldest son Prescott teaches in a U.S. Government machine shop at Westover Air Force base in Chicopee, Mass. and lives in Brimfield. The middle son Bradford works as an assembler at Ethan Alan furniture and in his spare time at a farm on Dresser Hill. He has two children. Dorothy and Charles will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary on April 22, 1981.

REUBEN T. SWANSON moved from San Diego, Cal. in 1978, to Chesapeake, Virginia. Living on a large corner lot there is plenty of room for flowers, trees and shrubs. He has set out fruit trees and harvested his first peaches this year. Also has a vegetable garden, and because of the long growing season he can start a second garden for fall harvest. Since retiring has taken up a hobby of woodcraft, making such things as spoon racks, wine racks and all kinds of wall racks and shelves. His daughter and family live in Baltimore where she has an antique shop, stocked with antiques she purchased in Scotland.

ELISABETH ROLLINS ANDERSON still living in Woodstock, but in a smaller house on Childs Hill Road. She is secretary of the Woodstock Housing Commission. She and Leonard have done some traveling, quite a bit of it to visit daughters, Dorothy in the West and Margaret, who with her husband and two children now lives in Raleigh, No. Carolina.

ERIK ERIKSEN writes that two of the many thrills he has experienced this year have been seeing his classmates at Northeastern University and seeing the famous Model T Ford that he and his family went south in many years ago. It is now resting in a museum outside of Boston.

DONALD WILLIAMS resigned as Secretary of the Woodstock Fair after 35 years of service. He does remain as General Manager, however. This past summer Donald and Hope enjoyed an extensive tour of New Mexico, Utah, Colorado and Arizona.

Secretary

CONSTANCE WETHERELL PESHMALYAN
Holmeslea Court
South Woodstock, CT 06267

REBECCA HIBBARD WEBER writes, "Retired now for over two years, and enjoying my new 'career in leisure' to the fullest. Eleven grandchildren, six great-grandchildren—how the family grows. A recent trip with my sister, Elsie, to the Canadian Rockies, Banff Springs, Jasper Park, and Lake Louise. Helicopter drops and hikes in the mountains from a ski lodge in the Cariboos were especially beautiful and invigorating." Rebecca's new address is 14 Azalea Drive, Milton, Mass. 02186.

MARCUS JOHNSON is now retired and trying to take it easy on Senexet Road in Woodstock.

ESTHER HICKS LARKIN, from her new home in Spring Hill, Fla. sends this news: "Now have eight grandchildren. Like living in Florida very much. Just couldn't shovel any more snow. Would be glad to see any classmates should they be in this area. Ellen Kallgren stopped by this spring."

FLORENCE CHILD YOUNG writes, "In greeting the Class of 1928, I might tell you all that Connie, Reba and Floss were the persons to represent our class on our 52nd year away from Woodstock Academy at the Alumni Banquet. Living alone at Valleyside Farm is lonely at times, but with all my family living nearby—three children, fourteen grandchildren and two great-grandchildren right next door, one is never lonesome!

The usual farm chores and activities go on as usual, and some days one has no time to think. I'm busy with Church and other community interests—serving on several committees.

During the last couple of years in March I visited in Florida. A stop each time to visit a grandson in Virginia gave me a marvelous chance to enjoy some of the interesting places and activities in our national capitol—a place I had never seen before.

Two summers ago, I went with a cousin and her husband in their comfortable motor home for a lovely trip to Tennessee, going south to Georgia, and back in a northerly direction over some of those beautiful mountain parkways, starting in Asheville, N.C. We were traveling about two weeks, stopping at many interesting places along the way, and going through ten states.

In June, 1979, I had a short flight to a nephew's wedding in Wichita, Kans., and enjoyed seeing some very different farming country from our New England hills and vales."

ROBERT PIKE. "We are now settled on the Mexican border, in Mission, Texas. (Have you read, She Came to the Valley?) We are just back from a nice vacation in Porto Rico and a visit with my brother, Otto. Our flight home was canceled because of riots in Miami, but the next day we took another route through New Orleans. We would love to have anyone from Woodstock drop in to see us."

KENNETH L. PIKE writes from Dallas, Texas: "This past academic year both Evelyn and I were lecturing at the University of Texas in Arlington. In September I leave for lectures for two weeks in Brazil, Colombia, and Panama. In October Evelyn and I leave for India for lectures there and other places in Asia and the South Pacific."

ESTHER JOHNSON NORMAN, from her home on Joy Road, Woodstock, tells us that she and her husband take great interest in watching their grandchildren grow up. Three of the girls completed elementary school this last spring, and now Esther has two grandchildren in Woodstock Academy and two at Purdue University.

WARREN PECKHAM and his wife are living in Merrimack, N.H., and they have both been ill and hospitalized this year—unable to travel, but looking forward to a brighter future.

ELLEN CARLSON KALLGREN and her husband, Alfred, live in Louisville, Ky., and are enjoying their retirement and their annual visits to Woodstock.

CONSTANCE WETHERELL PESHMALYAN. It has been a pleasure this year to act as secretary for the Class of 1928, for you all answered my news calls. During the winter months of 1980 I traveled and visited in Greece, Italy, and Switzerland, returning home in time to enjoy Spring in Woodstock. Thank you all for your fine response to my request for news.

Secretary
JOAN MCWILLIAM BOYD

An unbelievably short twenty years have passed since the Class of 1960 graduated from the Academy. (This alumna still has an eighteen-year old mind living in a slightly different body.) With luck, the next twenty years will treat our class with the same benevolence as the last twenty.

MICHAEL MCGRATH writes that he and Linda would be delighted to see anyone in our class who is in Wilmington, Delaware. Mike and Linda have just built a new house and are enjoying putting on the finishing touches. They both work for Dupont, where Mike is in purchasing, and Linda is a Computer Systems Analyst. It seems incredible that their oldest son, Chris, is now a freshman at the University of Delaware. Brian is a sophomore in high school and Doug is in seventh grade.

A new home also takes up a great deal of CAROLE REED ALLEY'S time. She and Jan purchased their house on Lake Bungee last year. Jan works at Mansfield Training School and Carole manages to snatch a bit of time for craft projects in macrame and pressed flower arrangements.

CHARLOTTE AMBERG NOWAKOWSKI and her husband Matt live at Phoenixville, where they enjoy owning and operating a campground. Matt works at Whitcraft in Eastford. Their daughter Debi is an enthusiastic baseball player.

Special education children have benefited from DALE SHIPEE IVERSON'S work for the last three years. Dale works primarily with teenagers at EastCONN. She lives in Pomfret. Dale also finds time to be active in Women's AGLOW, a Christian service organization.

CECILE PATENAUDE DUCHARME ran into Dale at a Women's AGLOW activity. Cecile, Gerald, and their three children live in North Woodstock. Sam and Judy both attend the Academy. Gerry works for United Lens in Southbridge and Cecile provides a much-needed service with her work for Home Staff, Inc., an organization that provides homemaking services for senior citizens.

PAUL AND PAM PAQUETTE'S children, Sean and Chan, also attend the Academy and their son Seth is in the sixth grade. Paul invites everyone to stop at his new studio and gallery on Cutler Hill Road in Woodstock. He has exhibited with the American Watercolor Society and hopes to become a member soon. Paul is currently a member of the Connecticut Watercolor Society.

Woodstock is also home for DORINDA DODGE LUNDIN and her husband Emil. Dorinda has been teaching in Hampton for thirteen years. She is also working on a second master's degree program in elementary guidance and counseling which will feed into a six-year program in administration. Dorinda hopes to finish her six-year program in the Ed.-Psych. department at the University of Connecticut within two years.

BARBARA FROELICH LISZKA works at Pomfret School in the accounts payable department. She has two children. Cindy is ten years old and Jeffrey is eight years old.

PAULINE SALVAS MIOUR reports that she enjoys being back in Woodstock, where she works for Rogers Corporation as Marketing Department Secretary-Sales Assistant. She has been with Rogers for a year and a half and has also found time to attend QVCC for executive secretarial training.

SISTER NATHANA MARCY (Corinne) is a member of the Evangelical Sisterhood of Mary. Corinne left the sisterhood's center in West Germany, where she has been since 1969, to help start a new career in New Brunswick, Canada. As in our Academy days, Sister Nathana is still very active musically. She was organist for the sisterhood in West Germany and continues her role in the music program at the new Canadian center. She has also managed to fit in several trips to visit family and friends in Woodstock this year.

JANET SMITH has also done her share of globetrotting. Janet now lives in Berkeley, California, where she is a commercial artist. Janet has vacationed in both Honolulu and London within the past year.

This summer, RICHARD AND CELINE SWANBERG traveled to California to visit his sister. They have also visited St. Maarten and Aruba recently. Dick is Vice-President at Linemaster Switch Corporation in Woodstock.

One member of the Class of 1960 has received international acclaim. HEIDI NEUMANN TROMBERT produced a documentary melodrama entitled "Rizzo," concerning the mayor of Philadelphia. The film was shown on national TV in January of 1979 and won both the Silver Hugo award, an international award for the best documentary of the year, and the American award for the best documentary of 1979. This summer Heidi was invited to the Eugene O'Neill Theatre in Waterford to attend a workshop for film producers and critics.

MARGARET CHASE DEXTER raises and shows Morgan Horses with her children; Mark, Meg, and Alan, who just graduated from the Academy. This year they won the pairs class at the New England Morgan show in Northampton and they are active in three local tri-state shows. Bob is enjoying driving his first carriage horse in competition this year. Bob works at Pratt and Whitney and Peg is an aide at the Woodstock Public School.

For the last fifteen years GEORGE SMITH has worked for Glass Containers in Attawaugan. George and his wife Judy have a son Kyle, who is thirteen, and a stepson Roger, who attends North Adams State College in North Adams, Mass.

JACK SANGA works at Frito-Lay as Maintenance Manager. His wife Laura is an active member of the Board of Trustees at the Academy, as well as a member of the Eastford Board of Education. Their daughter Sharon graduated from the Academy this year and will attend King's College in New York. Jack, Jr. is a senior at the Academy.

Collecting and refurbishing antique trunks entertains RICHARD RODENSKY and his fiancee Doris Deveau. Richard owns and operates E.C. Hastings Co. in Wauregan, which manufactures fishing line and small rope.

ROBERT SCRANTON is Purchasing Agent at Pratt and Whitney. Bob and Gail '61 have four children; Asa Robert V, Elizabeth, Victoria, and Jaso, who is six months old! Bob is active with the Little League and is an EMT with the Eastford Fire Department. Bob has also been giving Academy alumnus Dave Osier a hand with his new enterprize, Saw Mill Brook, where Dave is a blacksmith.

LOWELL SPINK and his new wife recently built a log cabin in Union. Furniture building is Lowell's hobby and he is presently building an extra building to house his work. Lowell is an inspector at Pratt and Whitney.

New Mexico is home for LARRY FREEMAN, his wife Kathleen, and their children, Laureen and Deborah. Larry is a Military Security Major in the United States Air Force. He leads an exciting life maintaining missile and warhead security.

Willimantic Savings Institute is fortunate to have ALEXANDER FABIAN as its Vice-President and Senior Loan Officer. Al recently completed Fairfield University's extended advanced mortgage course. Bernice works at the Willimantic Flower Shop. They have two children, Doug and Holly.

JOAN MCWILLIAM BOYD and her family spend as much time as possible at their house in Chilmark on Martha's Vineyard. David leads a very busy life between his law practice and his new role as President of the Board of Trustees at the Academy. Christopher is a junior at the Academy this year and Jonathan is in the sixth grade. Both boys are enthusiastic sailors and do a good deal of racing on the Vineyard.

ARTHUR MANTHORNE has recently received an associate degree in arborculture from the Stockbridge School of Agriculture and a bachelor of science degree in natural resources. Arthur works for the soil conservation districts in northeastern Connecticut through the University of Connecticut. He offers advice on raising ornamental and fruit trees. In his spare time, Arthur is a member of the Woodstock Conservation Commission and he also gives lectures on geology and natural resources for various community groups.

UPS keeps BRAD DOWNS busy as their mechanic in Hartford. Brad spends his leisure time showing horses and working on his model railroad layout. He has a daughter Cindy, who is eight years old.

JOE HECKLER works for the Connecticut Department of Agriculture and also raises beef cattle with his father. He has two children, Chuck and Katy. Joe also enjoys hunting and fishing.

Those magnificent flying machines you see overhead may be a product of RAYMOND IVES' effort. Ray has owned and rebuilt a number of planes. He has been to various meets with experimental bi-planes as far away as Oshkosh, Wisconsin. Ray is an inspector at Pratt and Whitney in Hartford. He also manages to keep a horse and do some golfing.

DONALD DEMERS is presently a controller at the Boston Air Traffic Control Center in Nashua, N.H. and he is enjoying it. Donald, his wife Sylvia, and two daughters Dawn and Angelique, live in Milford, N.H. where Sylvia teaches second grade. The family enjoys skiing, biking, swimming, sailing and vacations in the mountains and in the Virgin Islands.
