POLITICS SIZZLE IN QUEENS.

CASSIDVISM THE SOLE ISSUE HIS MEY DESPERATE.

Politica has reached a boiling point in becaugh of Queens, Practically the entire interest in the campaign countries in the effort of the fusionists under the leaderthin of Joseph Bermel to overthrow Horotigh President Cassidy, who wants to hold the office four years more. The sole issue is

The Cassidy forces, who made light of the opposition when Bernel was nomiare now disposed to take a more soher view of the contest, and they are beginning to compet to demonrate faction secure the election of their leader. Officeholders who are friendly to Bermel are threatened with diamissal, and already to obey the order of the Cassidy gang.

Bermel was expelled from the Democratic Club in Newtown, of which he had long been president, at a meeting which was packed with Cassidy shouters who were nonmembers, and through the consivance of the police a Cassidy transparency was hung on the outer wall of the building in the face of a resolution of the board of directors forbidding displays of that kind

The case of Peter Beuerlein, a clerk in the Department of Taxes in Long Island City furnishes a good illustration of the bulldozing tactics that the Cassidy gang is now using in the public offices. Beuerlein is an admirer of Bermel and he has not tried to conceal his views on the local political situation. A few days ago Richard D. Homeyer, his immediate superior in the Tax office, approached him and said: "Hereafter you will remain at your desk from 9 A. M. to 4 P. M., including Satur-'All right," Beuerlein is reported to have answered. "I suppose that order applies to every clerk in the office?"

"Well, it applies to you anyway," Homeyer retorted. And I will obey it when you make it

It apply to all hands," was Mr Beuerlein's

It is a notorious fact that the vast majority of the army of employees that Cassidy has quartered in Borough Hall, quit at 1 o'clock every day in order to dope out the races in the "official poolroom," the only one that is allowed to do business in Long Island City. Cassidy has been charged openly with having more than a passing interest in this poolroom, which, it is said, has cleared more than $100,000 to the lest few Years. in the last few years.

One of the most active of King Joe's lieu-one of the most active of King Joe's lieutenants is Matthew J. Goldner, who draws a fine salary from the city as Deputy Commissioner of Sewers in Queens. Just what Mr. Goldner does for his salary is something of a mystery, but there is no doubt about the political services he renders to his boss. Mr. Goldner is Mr. Cassidy's press agent. His official title is chairman of the campaign committee, and he spends most of his time at the headquarters in Davis street.

Recently Goldner has been sending out letters to well known citizens of the borough sking them to assist "in making this a banner year for the Democracy of Queens county." One of these letters was sent to John Bohmbach, a well known attorney of Middle Village. He replied that his sense of duty as a citizen made it impossible for him to aid the election of Cassidy. One of the five pointed reasons he gave for declining "That the real object and purpose of con-

That the real object and purpose of continuing the present administration is to gratify the selfish purpose and ends of a dictator and continue the pecuniary interests of a board of placeholders who, at the com-mand of their master, do his bidding and who are calling honest and independent who are calling noisest and independent men renegades and traitors simply because they possess the manhood to strive to main-tain a local government by the people and for the people instead of by Cassidy and for tain a local government by the people and for the people instead of by Cassidy and for Cassidy."

The reference to the calling of names was born of the meeting at which Bermel was expelled from the Democratic Club of Newtown. There was not a single officer of the club present, it is said, and of the sixty or more men who crowded into the room not more than eighteen were members. Warren K. Haviland was the man who denounced Bermel as a renegade and a traitor to his party. Mr. Haviland up to a few years ago was one of the most partisan Republicans in Queens, but he suddenly I ecame a Democrat, for reasons that concerned his job in the County Clerk's office. It was recalled yesterday that it was through the intercession of Bermel that his official head was saved when the County Clerk had made up his mind to fire him.

At this same meeting a resolution was a assed to hang a Cassidy transparency in front of the building in spite of the fact that the board of directors of the building association which owns the building had voted against the proposition. At first the police, who had been summoned to guard the building, would not allow the transparency to be erected, but they were called off after George Jarvis, secretary to Cassidy, had had a heart to heart talk with Police Captain Aloncle.

The Second ward Republican Club, which opened the campaign in Flushing on Wednesday night, heard a report that the followers of Cassidy would attempt to break up the meeting. President Dumas, who was in the chair, sprang a surprise at the opening by asking all who were in favor of four years more of Cassidy to stand up. Three men arose. After the meeting two of them shook hands with Mr. Bermel and promised to do all in their power to elect him. In his speech Mr. Bermel said:

"Rumors are being freely circulated that Joseph Bermel means Joseph Cassidy. I take this opportunity to say that there is as much difference between Joseph Bermel and Joseph Cassidy as there is between the Commissioner of Public Works under Mr. Cassidy, I ha much corruption Mr. Cassidy alone is responsible."

The Bermelites charge the Cassidy forces with fraud and trickery in the matter of filing independent nominations for the Municipal Ownership League ticket. A petition was quickly gotten up by the Cassidy people and filed with the Board of Elections. A formal protest was made by the Bermelites, and the matter of who is entitled to go on the ticket will be decided at a meeting of the board to-day.

Mr. Bermel's friends say that the ticket presented by the opposition is a mere sham and was gotten up simply to keep Bermel off the Hearst ticket. Mr. Hearst himself, they say, wants nothing to do with Cassidy or his followers. To show the character of the movement they point to the fact that the head of the committee which filed the petition was Patrick F. Leahy, Collector of Assessments and Arrears of Taxes in Queens, a Cassidy office-holder. On the night of the day the petition was presented by Leahy, presumably in the interest of Mr. Hearst's candidacy for Mayor, Leahy addressed a Tammany mass meeting in Astoria, and according to the Long Island City Slar, a Cassidy organ, "he spoke in the highest terms of Mayor George B. McClellan and Borough President Cassidy."

As far as the signatures on the petition are concerned the Bermelites charge that they

ner's Non-Partisan Opening. Max Eisner, the Grand street Delmonico held his winter opening last night, and it was a notable event on the East Side, especially in political circles. On one side of Eisner's café is the headquarters of the Florrie Sullivan Association On the other side is the Republican headquarters. Across the street are the rooms of the East Side Jerome Volunteers

Eisner doesn't talk politics; but there was great jam of politicians at the opening. At one time it looked like a riot inside the café. It was necessary to have several policemen detailed to the place to keep

The main table near the front door was early grabbed by Max Levine, Tammany candidate for Alderman in "de Ate." Just after Levine grabbed the chairs there was a football rush from a crowd of friends of his Republican opponent to get them away from him, but he held his ground. A few minutes later the Hon Florrie Sullivan and his crowd pushed in and the Levine table was safe for the night. There were tables enough, however, for all the opposing elements in the district.

General Sessions Justice Otto A. Rosalsky received a cordial greeting as he entered the place and took his seat at the kepublican table. Justice Rosalsky took his seat on the bench earlier in the day. Several floral tributes were placed on the table in front of him.

Myer Schoenfeld led a crowd of Jerome followers to several other tables.

Elsner greeted all his guests with a smile and took no sides in the political quarrels that caused awful talk fights in the afterdinner discussions.

District Attorney Jerome, who frequently dines at Eisner's, was expected, but he sent regrets. Pretty nearly all the candidates for minor offices on the East Side were present with their shouters. When the present with their shouters. When the Jerome delegation came in there was a mighty shout. Tame any men and others arose and the enthusiasm was spontaneous and genuine.

When Myer Schoenfeld called for three cheers for Jerome they were given with a will and the orchestra started up "He's a Jolly Good Fellow." The crowd; led by Schoenfeld, joined in this chorus.

The festivities were kept up all night. Among those present were Port Warden Charles S. Adler, Gustav Auger, Frank Rosen; Senator Fitzgerald, City Clerk Scully, Assemblyman Rosenstein, Alderman Falk, Congressman Goldfogle, Samuel Koeniz, Republican leader of the Fourteenth Assembly district; Deputy United States Marshal John Stiebling, Assemblyman Louis Friedel, Deputy Sheriff Porges, the Hon. Patrick Farley, Senator Samuel Foley and Port Warden James March.

Eisner prepared an elaborate menu for the occasion and everything concluded harmoniously.

WIDOW KILLED BY A LODGER. Repulsed Sultor Then Fires a Shot Into His Brain.

Mrs. Alveretta Scheidt of 127 Woodbine street, Williamsburg, the widow of a policeman, was shot and killed last night at her home by John Bewick, a lodger, who was madly in love with her. After shooting Mrs. Scheidt Bewick ended his own life. Two of the eyewitness of the tragedy were the sons of the murdered woman.

Mrs. Scheidt's husband died two years ago, leaving her with two boys to support, She took Bewick as a lodger last March. He was an Englishman and a cabinetmaker. He was 54 years old, and Mrs. Scheidt was 35 years old. He hadn't been in the house very long when he asked her to marry him. He met with a flat refusal, and Mrs. Scheidt told him she intended to devote all her time to raising her two boys and did not want to be bothered with a husband.

Several times in the last month he asked her again to marry him and she again refused. Bewick arrived home last night about 9 o'clock. He had been drinking. He went to the kitchen, where Mrs. Scheidt was at work. In an adjoining room were her two boys, George, aged 16, and William, aged 13 years. The oldest boy was playing a mandolin. Mrs. Scheidt greeted her lodger pleasantly and the boys saw Bewick approach their mother and heard him say to her:

"Have you had your last laugh?"

Mrs. Scheidt looked up, startled, and then Bewick said in a lower tone:

"Well, take your last laugh now, for you will never laugh again."

Bewick quickly threw his left arm around her neck and drew her to him. Then he pulled a revolver with his right hand and shot Mrs. Scheidt in the right ear.

The boys made a rush for Bewick. George, the eldest boy, hit the lodger with his mandolin the moment Bewick fired. Mrs. Scheidt fell to the floor and never uttered a cry.

The attack of the two boys was so furious fused. Bewick arrived home last night

Scheidt fell to the floor and never uttered a cry.

The attack of the two boys was so furious that Bewick struck at them with the revolver and declared he would kill them. That scared the boys and they ran crying into the front part of the basement. They had no sooner got out of sight than another shot was fired. This shot Bewick put into his own head, and it killed him instantly.

When the boys looked out into the kitchen they saw Bewick lying on the floor stretched out beside their mother's body. George ran from the house and to the office of Dr. George L. Bartruff at 473 Evergreen avenue. He notified Police Headquarters and an ambulance was sent from the Bushwick Hospital.

When Ambulance Surgeon Dunton appeared he pronounced Bewick dead and said he did not think Mrs. Scheidt would linger long. She died half an hour after reaching the hospital.

IRVING'S ASHES IN THE ABBEY Friends and Admirers Follow the Hearse to Westminster.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN.
LONDON, Oct. 19.—The ashes of Sir Henry Irving were removed this evening without display from the residence of Baroness Burdett-Coutts to Westminster Abbey The coffin was borne in a glass panelled hearse, which was followed by two carriages containing relatives. The cortège was headed and escorted by police. An impromptu procession of hundred of black clothed friends and admirers, who had long waited in the street, accompanied the hearse at its side and behind it, forming an impressive addition to the simple ceremony. The coffin was covered by a pall of laurel leaves, on which was a wreath sent by John Lawrence Toole, the

Throughout the route the streets were lined with sympathetic onlookers, while a great crowd assembled in the open space outside the Abbey. The hearse and carriages passed through the Dean's yard to the entrance to the cloisters, where they were received by Archdeacon Wilberforce and Canons Duckworth and Henson. The Dean was ill and unable to be present.

The coffin was carried by bearers through the dimly lighted cloisters, headed by the clergy and followed by Sir Henry's sons and two others, and placed in St. Faith's Chapel, where it was surrounded with lighted tapers. The sub-dean closed the brief ceremony with prayer.

Over 50,000 applications for seats in West-minster Abbey for the funeral services tomorrow have been received. Only fifteen undred seats are available.

The ashes of Sir Henry Irving lay in state all day in the house of the Baroness Burdett-Coutts, in a room arranged as a chapelle ardente. The wreath Cent by John Lawrence Toole, the comedian, had the place of honor on the top of the coffin, and around it were piled innumerable floral tributes.

Charles Frohman's tribute was a large pillow of white chrysanthemums, with purple streamers bearing the words: "With sorrow for my personal and an international loss." The Actors' Association sent a wreath of chrysanthemums, with wide red satin ribbons bearing in letters of gold the last words uttered by Irving upon the stage at Bradford: "Into Thy hands, O Lord.

The most noticeable offering was sent by H. B. Irving. It was a pall, made entirely of laurel leaves sewn together.

Ellen Terry sent a shield of pansies and rosemary, inscribed: "That's for remem-To the great actor Henry Irving, in 'Hamlet.' From Ellen Terry." Sarah Bernhardt and Eleonora Duse were among those who sent remembrances.

Edwin Long's portrait of Irving in the haracter of Hamlet stood at the head of the coffin, illuminated with electric light. The city corporation to-day passed a reso lution of condolence with the family of the late Sir Henry Irving.

ALWAYS A STRIKE IN MOSCOW Police and Cossacks Kept Hard at It Clubbing Mobs.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN. LONDON, Oct. 20 .- The Moscow correspondent of the Standard says the strikes there continue, and that business is almost at a standstill. The strikers in one trade hardly resume work before those in another Collisions of mobs of strikers and their sympathizers with the police and soldiers are of daily occurrence. The Cossacks are particularly brutal. Their favorite method of operation is for a dozen of them to cut out a few unfortunate victims from the crowd, as a cowboy separates cattle from a herd, and then circling round them, beat them until they are senseless or dead.

ALL VIA THE HOOF AND ALL WITHIN TWO BLOCKS.

SH.500 Worth of Lost disthered in Tirre Hours in East Stat St. Preefnet Man. Hey and Ladder in the Case Almilar Rothery During Sight on the West Alde

Three burglaries, all of the same brand and probably engineered by the same crew took place within three hours yesterday afternoon in the territory of the East Fifty first street police station. The numerous detectives at work on the cases hadn't caught the thieves at a late hour last night

The first place entered was the home of second street. Mrs. Herman, her mothe and her sister were at luncheon on the first floor of the house, which is a four story brownstone one, shortly before it o'clock and the servants were all busy when Mrs. Herman heard unusual noise in the upper part of the house. She and her sister rushed to the top floor in time to see man in a brown suit and a boy in knickerbockers crawl out through the skylight and run over the roof, dragging a ladder with them. The ladder did not belong to the house and the crooks in removing it prevented Mrs. Herman from ascending to the roof for observation.

Mrs. Herman immediately telephoned to Police Headquarters and despatched a maid to the street in search of a policeman. The maid found none until she walked several blocks on Fifth avenue, where she located a mounted cop. He reached the house just ahead of four policemen from the East Fifty-first street station.

According to Mrs. Herman, the police men brought with them an unusual supply of mud on their shoes and left most of it on the stairways and carpets of the nouse on the stairways and carpets of the nouse during their investigation. Mrs. Herman says that they finally came down stairs and gave her the startling information that the robbers had escaped. The ladder that had been dragged through the skylight was found on the roof of a dwelling house at 50 West Fifty-second street.

The thieves had completely ransacked the three upper floors of the Herman house; beds had been upset, drawers of chiffoniers and dressers had been pulled out and the contents dumped on the floors, while pictures on the walls had been torn down and in many cases ruined. Mrs. Herman took an inventory and found the following articles missing: One gold chain, a pocket-book containing $25, a pair of gold and pearl mounted opera glasses, one jewelled Jurgenbook containing $25, a pair of gold and pearl mounted opers glasses, one jewelled Jurgensen watch valued at $1,800, many rings, one of which was a large diamond solitaire; four stick pins and numerous articles of bric-à-brac. Mrs. Herman places her lose at between $4,000 and $5,000, independent of the damage done to her home and its contents.

of the damage done to her home and its contents.

About 3 o'clock, when the family were out, thieves effected an entrance into the home of Peter Johnstone, on the top floor of an apartment house at 116 East Fifty-third street. They entered through the scuttle, jimmied the door of the Johnstone apartment and proceeded to make the place appear as if a cyclone had struck it. Even the carpets in all the rooms were torn up, and this leads the police to believe that the crooks were searching most eagerly for cash. Beds were upturned and everything movable in the place suffered.

Departing, the thieves took with them two men's gold watches, one lady's gold watch, one gold leaf pin, one horseshoe pin set with six pearls, one scarf pin set with two pearls, an opal ring and much new clothing. Mr. Johnstone estimates his loss at nearly $1,500.

At about the same time, perhaps just be-fore or just after, the home of Thomas Brown, in an apartment house at 120 East Fifty-third street, was entered in the same way and treated in the same way. The following articles were taken: One diaway and treated in the same way. The value is figured by Mr. Brown at $2,000.

The robbery was discovered by a maid, who, hearing a strange noise on the upper floors, rushed up to investigate. When she reached there no one was to be found, but a ladder extending through the skylight told what had happened. The ladder did not belong to the Veltin house.

Detectives Lynch and Storer found that the crooks had departed over adjoining roofs and made their way to the rear vards by way of a vacant house. The robbers in their haste had overlooked a jewel case, containing many thousand dollars' worth of jewelry, that was in a chiffonier near the spot from which the other jewelry was spot from which the other jewelry was

FEAR GREAT TEXTILE STRIKE. Fall River Operatives Refuse 5 Per Cent.

Advance-Other Unions to Act. The United Textile Workers of America concluded yesterday their four days convention, which has been meeting at 8 Union Square. The results are looked forward to with some apprehension by the textile with some apprehension by the textile manufacturers all through New England. Two years ago, when the cotton crop was very light, there was a general cut in the wages of 100,000 operatives, followed by a strike, which was lost. This year the conditions are different and there is a general ditions are different, and there is a genera strike, which was lost. This year the conditions are different, and there is a general movement in some twenty cities to secure a restoration of the wages in effect before the strike.

The convention decided to give financial support in case of strikes. Demands will be made in the locals in the different towns throughout the manufacturing districts. The convention was notified by the locals in the Fall River district yesterday that the operatives had refused an offer of 5 per cent. advance made by the employers. They demand 14 per cent. advance, which will bring the wages up to those paid before the strike. If this is refused a general strike in Fall River will follow.

The locals which are next expected to make demands are those in Dover, Lynn, New Bedford and Lowell, where the textile workers are well organized. The convention decided to organize in the other towns thoroughly. John Golden, chairman of the meeting and president of the United Textile Workers, said after the convention:

tion:

"The national union has decided to support the Fall River operatives financially in case of a strike, and will support the locals in any of the other cities if necessary. The wages for years have been based on the prices paid for the new cotton and the finished article and the demand. This year every mill is busy; and the operatives want to have their former wages restored."
