

The Right Attitude Means Success”

The foundation of my career has always been built on a positive mindset. I believe that your thoughts manifest in how you speak and maneuver in the world. The way you think affects how you treat yourself and others. Your mind has the ability to destroy and delete a brilliant idea within a blink of an eye. The achievers and leaders of the world are those who are capable of staying firm in pursuit of their purpose. I found my purpose at Overbrook Senior high school. My love for music and educating the future generation was fueled by my high school choir director, Mr. McKenzie, who believed in my abilities before I did. “I think you can sing” were the words that led me to audition for the Honor’s choir, Overtones, and become a music director. Looking back, Overbrook wasn’t just a school, but a place of discovery for me. My dreams became a reality because I was given boundless opportunities to seek within and mold my drive, perseverance, and will to be excellent.
