

Need-Based Financial Aid

The Avery Coonley School is pleased to support qualified families living within or below their means. The Financial Assistance Committee takes into account the number of children in the household, additional dependents, assets, and all sources of income. In addition, the Committee considers lifestyle choices and discretionary spending patterns that may affect availability of funding for a child's education. Vacation homes, luxury vehicles, and similar lifestyle choices are typically viewed as disqualifying in the context of financial assistance applications. You will need to submit federal and state income tax returns along with all schedules and W-2 forms to be considered for financial assistance. We do not offer merit scholarships.
