

November is Native American Heritage Month in the United States. The students in Ms. Diaz's 4th Grade ESL classes have read a biography about Michael Naranjo, a Native American and a veteran of the Vietnam War. He is also "a sculptor who happens to be blind".

The students also learned and created Native American symbols. These are symbols which are geometric portrayals of celestial bodies, natural phenomena and animal designs.

The students had fun learning about new traditions!