Mutual fund investing involves various types of risk. An investment in money market funds is neither insured nor guaranteed by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation or any other government agency. International investing involves certain risks, such as currency fluctuations, economic instability, and political developments. These risks may be accentuated in emerging markets. Small company investing involves specific risks not necessarily encountered in large company investing, such as increased volatility. Funds that invest in bonds are subject to certain risks including interest-rate risk, credit risk and inflation risk. As interest rates rise, the prices of bonds fall. Real Estate funds are subject to risks, such as market forces, that may affect the values of their underlying real estate assets. Target date funds share the risks associated with the types of securities held by each of the underlying funds in which they invest. The principal value is not guaranteed at any time, including at the target date. Their objectives and investment strategies change over time, generally becoming more conservative as the investor nears retirement. The target date is the approximate date when investors may begin withdrawing from the fund. An investment cannot be made directly in an index.

Employers and plan participants should carefully consider the investment objectives, risks, charges and expenses of the investment options offered under the retirement plan before investing. other important information. Prospectuses may be obtained by calling 800.858.5420. Please read the prospectus carefully before investing. Investments are subject to market risk and fluctuate in value.
